Union Leader Attacked After He Demands Housecleaning

C. I. O. Fights Isms

THE C. I. O. CONVENTION at Atlantic City adopted a resolution denouncing "the dictatorships and totalitarianism of Nazism, Communism and Fascism as inimical to the welfare of labor."

NEGOTIATIONS FOR ENDING the C. I. O. strike at the Vultee airplane plant in California collapsed with labor rejection of a clause barring strikes in the life of the proposed two-year contract.

Purge Suggested

Associated Press Staff Writer

New Orleans, Nov. 21.—Three fist fights punctuated the American Federation of Labor's annual convention tonight and thrust to the forefront the scorching issue of antiracketeering.

David Dubinsky, author of an antiracketeering resolution, said he was attacked thrice because of the measure. He requested police protection after the early morning hotel lobby fight.

The Dubinsky resolution would enable the A. F. L. to take into its own hands the power—now lacking—to drive racketeers and labor gangsters from the unions. Dubinsky is president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers.

Dubinsky said that twice in the Roosevelt Hotel bar and once in the lobby he was attacked by an "unknown red-headed man" and Joseph Fay, of New York, vice president of the Operating Engineers Union, who denounced his resolution as "lousy."

Knocked to Floor

The unknown man and Fred Umhey, executive secretary of Dubinsky's union, both were knocked to the floor, Dubinsky said.

"I'm more determined than ever to fight for the measure," Dubinsky declared and added he would take his battle to the convention floor if there seemed danger the resolution would not be approved.

Fay could not be reached for a statement. Dubinsky requested police protection "not for himself but for my family." A uniformed officer was stationed outside his hotel room door.

A. F. of L. President William Green said the fight was just a "personal matter" and would not be placed before the convention, which was in adjournment over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 21.—The Congress of Industrial Organizations convention went on record unanimously today in favor of representation in Congress and self-government for the District of Columbia.

The C. I. O. reaffirmed "its support of the residents of the District of Columbia in their fight to obtain the right to local self-government, the right to representation in Congress, and the right to vote for the President and the Vice President of the United States".

Sidney Katz, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland-District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, spoke in favor of the resolution, saying he wondered why there was "no democracy in the Capital of the greatest democracy."

Hospital Reports Archbishop Curley 'Much Improved'

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, was in a "much improved condition" from an acute attack of high blood pressure, an attendant at the Bon Secours Hospital in Baltimore said last night.

Archbishop Curley entered the hospital last Monday, it was reported. His associates kept news of his condition a secret.

The Archbishop's condition was disclosed yesterday after he failed to appear at the Pan-American Mass in St. Patrick's Church here.

THANKFUL, Mrs. Lucas embraces Baby Judith

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lucas, of 319 Kennedy Street Northwest, probably had more to be thankful for yesterday than anyone in Washington. And they will remember Policeman Shirley R. Collins for the rest of their lives.

If it hadn't been for Collins, an acting sergeant of the Sixth Precinct, the Lucas' 3-month-old daughter, Judith, might not have been alive for the holiday.

About 2 a. m. yesterday, Mrs. Lucas returned home from her job as a waitress in a nearby restaurant. Preparing for bed, she glanced at Judith's crib and found it empty. Her husband already was in bed and asleep. Frantically, Mrs. Lucas

G.O.P. May Put Taft Partner In Martin's Job

Hollister Is Declared Acceptable to Willkie; Some Desire No Change

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Former Representative John B. Hollister, law partner of Senator Robert A. Taft and adviser to Wendell L. Willkie during the recent campaign, yesterday was being boomed for Republican National Committee chairman.

At least three leading candidates for the 1940 Republican Presidential nomination favored Hollister for the post if House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., resigns as chairman in the spring.

Representative Martin, who recently indicated his intention to sever his Republican National Committee connection in March, meanwhile was being urged by some influential Republican House colleagues to continue in office at least through the 1942 Congressional elections.

Martin Won't Comment

Should a sharp contest or party bitterness develop over selection of a successor, Martin was expected to continue at the head of the committee. Beyond his recent announcement of intention to resign, he would make no comment.

One name frequently mentioned for the post was eliminated yesterday when Representative Bruce Barton, of New York, announced he was "not equipped for the job, and under no circumstances would I take it." Barton said he "knew of no better man" to succeed Martin as chairman than Hollister.

Capital Offers Its Thanks For Peace

Churches Observe Day With Prayers, Special Services

On the hard benches of missions, in thousands of homes and under the vaulted domes of great churches, Washingtonians yesterday bowed their heads to Providence in gratitude for the Nation's peace and brotherhood.

Into the worship crept admonitions on the strife in American labor ranks and thoughts on the state of the hemisphere in the world crisis.

At Washington Cathedral Bishop James E. Freeman said "I love labor and the two great leaders of today are my friends but I would cite to them both the text of this morning, quoting St. Paul's letter to the Corinthians, 'Look not every man on his own things but every man also on the things of others.'"

Pan American Mass

In one of the Capital's most solemn services, diplomatic and governmental leaders of the Americas, assembled under their flags in St. Patrick's Church at the Pan American mass, were told that this hemisphere must put its own spiritual house in order and so give moral leadership to all the world.

Addressing the mass, resumed after a lapse in 1939, the Right Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen said from the pulpit that "our internal morality must not be different from our external morality," that "we can't condemn something as wrong internationally and then condone it as right domestically."

The Catholic University professor spoke after the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, resplendent in gem-sparkling mitre and rich

Dies Links Nazi Envoys, Propaganda

Newsletter Service Quoted as Having Tarnishing of U. S. Prestige as Goal

The intimate connection between the German Embassy and the supposedly "private" Transocean News Service in this country was revealed yesterday in the Dies Committee's report on Nazi espionage and economic and political penetration in the United States.

"The German Embassy and the various German consulates throughout the country took lively interest in spreading the work of the Transocean News Service," said the report, adding that "it is quite evident that Manfred Zapp (head of the service) felt himself to be under the direction and supervision of the German Embassy."

Agents of the Dies Committee are being sent into nine cities this weekend to "seize records of all organizations that are pro-Nazi, pro-Communist, Pro-Fascist and pro-Japanese", committee officials announced yesterday. The cities are: Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Milwaukee, Cleveland, New Orleans and St. Louis. Raids have already been made in New York and Chicago.

The report issued yesterday made public correspondence linking Hans Thomsen and Heribert von Strempel, counselor and secretary of the embassy, respectively, with Zapp, who, the committee suggested, "regarded himself as an agent of the German government and not as an individual engaged in some private enterprise."

Alexandrian's Letter Quoted

Declaring that Zapp was encouraged by Berlin to make the acquaintance of prominent Americans, the committee reprints a letter in which a man said to have been Col. Edwin Emerson, of 5 Edgewood Terrace, Belle Haven, Alexandria, sends his "sincere sympathy" to a "Mr. Thonn" at Transocean, who is apparently Guenther Tonn, Zapp's aide.

"With a Sieg-Heil for your Fuehrer," Emerson closed the letter, written on September 28, 1939, less than a month after the outbreak of the war.

Emerson, 71-year-old author and vice president of the Washington Fencers' Club—which includes many members of the Capital's diplomatic set—told The Post last night that "I don't remember any such letter at all."

Addressed to "Thonn" at Transoceans office in New York, the letter says:

"In accordance with my promise I am sending you a brief report about an occurrence which may have escaped your local representative since nearly all the local papers assiduously suppressed it. It is, of course, understood that for such small services I do not expect any honorarium.

"As I have stated orally to you, you have my sincere sympathy in the difficulties of your dangerous post. You are constantly devoting yourself to Transocean and your fatherland that you are able to overcome attendant inconveniences.

"Of your reports, which are always welcome, only two have failed to appear so far. My latest German mail arrived so mischievously rumpled that postman felt constrained to apologize for the Alexandria postoffice.

"With a Sieg-Heil for your Fuehrer Yours,

Pro-Axis Madrid Paper Says Few Frenchmen Favor Bowing to Hitler

By the Associated Press

Algeciras, Spain, Nov. 21.—A French battleship of the Paris class was reported tonight to have entered Gibraltar and surrendered to the British authorities. The battleship was anchored at the entrance of the port.

(French at the outbreak of war had two battleships of the Paris class, each of 22,189 tons—the Paris itself and the Courbet.)

French Defiance of Hitler Awaits Spark, Madrid Told

By T. J. Hamilton
Copyright by New York Times

Madrid, Nov. 22.—Both occupied and unoccupied France are refusing to "cooperate" with the Germans, and on Armistice Day there were demonstrations in the Place de L'Etoile, resting place of the French unknown soldier, the Paris correspondent of the newspaper Arriba reported today.

His account of the "sullen rancor" the French are showing their conquerors may come as a prelude to further German action against France and the French Colonies. However, the growing spirit of discontent at least, if not defiance, has been confirmed by a number of travelers who have come through Spain in recent weeks.

The correspondent complained that in both Paris and Vichy the French are still under the "monumental derby hat of British dominance," and refused to "recognize or accept defeat."

"Nobody," he said, "wants to cooperate. What do the dozen and a half people—(premier) Petain, (vice premier) Laval (ambassador to Germany) Brinon . . .—represent, who loyally and sincerely work for cooperation. Against them is the remainder of France, which would accept cooperation on a commercial basis."

Declaring that a French newspaper had the nerve to say that France was the most successful colonizing power in the world and therefore Germany should make France the guardian of European interests overseas, the correspondent contrasted these hopes with the fact that "the Frenchman growls when he sees Petain shaking hands with Hitler."

The article speaks of "repeated incidents" and asks how Hitler could release 2,000,000 prisoners to "swell the ranks of those who want revenge." It declares "almost the whole of French public opinion is on tiptoe for the London radio.

Japanese Arrest American Nurse Bound for Home

Honolulu, Nov. 21 (AP).—Americans returning to the United States from Japan reported here today that Miss Edna Lawrence, of Ontario, Calif., a missionary nurse, had been removed from the Japanese ship Yawata Maru at Yokohama and charged with violating Japan's peace preservation law, a military statute.

Miss Lawrence, 48, had served 20 years at the Severance Medical Union School at Seoul, Korea. The group of fellow Americans, passengers on the Yawata Maru, said she boarded the ship at Yokohama.

The Americans also reported Joseph P. Grew, American Ambassador to Japan, was aboard the ship at the time, bidding farewell to some friends, and was informed of the incident. They said they understood he planned to make representations to the Japanese government.

The Yawata Maru arrived here today.

The warm weather that accompanied the Thanksgiving observance in Washington will continue today, the Weather Bureau reported last night, but it warned of rain and colder temperature tonight.

The forecast read: "Mostly cloudy with mild temperature followed by rain and colder at night."

Maximum temperature expected today is 62, and lowest is 48. Highest yesterday was 66 degrees at 2 p. m., and minimum was 47 at 4 a. m.

America Calls Up Her Hero

Gen. Pershing to Be Named U. S. Ambassador to France

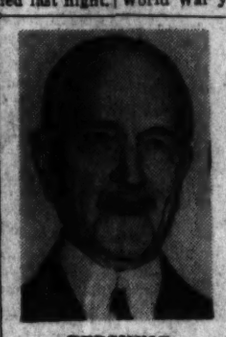
Copyright, 1940, by The Washington Post

John J. Pershing, only General of the Armies of the United States, has been selected as Ambassador to France, The Post learned last night.

Announcement of the selection within the next few days, is expected. It might come when President Roosevelt returns, probably early next week, from his Thanksgiving holiday at Hyde Park, N. Y.

All requests for official confirmation of the understanding were referred to the White House last night, but in the President's absence no comment was forthcoming there.

This dramatic development in relations between the two countries would reunite, again under tragic circumstances, two outstanding figures who served together in desperate attempts to save France in World War years.



PERSHING

Gen. Pershing would be accredited to the Vichy government headed, as Chief of State, by Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, veteran of the French army who took over control of the government of his country last summer after collapse of the French defenses and flight of the government from Paris.

Together the two aged military figures and former comrades, Petain at 84 and Pershing in his eighty-first year, might be

Parliament Opens in Optimistic Spirit as King Hails U. S. Aid

London, Nov. 21.—Parliament opened its second wartime session on a note of determination and optimism blended in the speeches of King George VI, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax. The importance of the role the United States is expected to play in supplying the wherewithal to help Britain down the Axis powers received particular emphasis.

It was a session in which all the traditional ritual was observed by King and commoner although the pageantry of the peacetime ceremony was lacking. The speeches of the Prime Minister and members made it clear that even in the midst of this grim war the importance of Parliament in the preservation of democracy was not overlooked.

In his speech from the throne, the King declared his confidence that ultimate victory was assured. Unable to use the time-honored phrase asserting that the relations of his government remained friendly with all other powers, the King emphasized that relations with the United States were most friendly and said that the flow of war munitions from that country gave him the "utmost satisfaction."

British Middle East Air Chief Taken Prisoner by Italians

By Camille Cianferra.
Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Nov. 21.—While en route to take up his new post of deputy commander of the British Royal Air Force in the Middle East, Air Vice Marshal Owen T. Boyd and four other officers were captured by the Italians, the high command announced today.

They were traveling aboard a twin-engined Wellington bomber when it was forced to land in Sicily.

The communique gave no other details, and despite press dispatches asserting that Italian planes reconnoitering in the central Mediterranean sighted the British bomber and forced it to turn toward Sicily, it is understood in aeronautical circles that Vice Marshal Boyd's capture was probably due to an error in navigation caused by bad weather.

BOYD

The possibility of a plane traveling at 200 miles an hour being surrounded by enemy aircraft and being forced to land cannot be excluded, it was stated, but it is thought highly unlikely in this case.

Vice Marshal Boyd, it is held, must have flown from London to Gibraltar and, after stopping there for refueling, resumed his trip, heading for Malta. He is believed to have decided on taking off from Gibraltar late Tuesday night, timing his departure so that he

Two Italian Bases Are in Imminent Peril of Capture, Athens Reports

Bulletin

Athens, Greece, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The fall of Italy's Albanian base of Koritza is only a matter of hours, military observers believed tonight as they reported Greek infantry and cavalry advancing rapidly on the three main roads leading into the town.

Budapest, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Greek forces have broken through three Italian fortified points on the southern Albanian front near Argyrocastro, the Greek radio broadcast tonight quoting a war ministry communique.

By Max Harrelson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Athens, Nov. 21.—The Greeks reported tonight that they had placed both of Italy's main Albanian bases under threat of capture and that they were fighting almost entirely on Albanian soil.

A Greek column in the coastal sector of the front was reported to be within 6 miles of Argyrocastro, and, to the northeast, the Greeks said their armies were at the outskirts of Koritza.

(Dispatches from Bitolj, Yugoslavia, said the advance guard of Greeks was reported entering Koritza tonight after a hard day's battle, and that one 12-mile-long column of Italians could be seen retreating northward on the Pogradets-Elbasani Road toward Tirana, Albanian capital.)

(The United Press in a dispatch from London, quoted an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens as saying that Greek troops charging with fixed bayonets had driven the last Italian troops from Mount Morova and had occupied the 6,000-foot peak, strongly fortified with artillery and machine-gun nests.

[The Greeks, vigorously following up their advance, closed in on the fleeing Italians until they were within rifle shot, the dispatch said. The Italians were reported to have abandoned such great quantities of war material that many days will be required to sort it.]

The bases are the fifth and third cities of Albania, in population, and they are equally important in military value. It was on Argyrocastro, a town of 10,836 population, and on Koritza, 22,787 population, that the Italians based their drive into Greece 3½ weeks ago. There they assembled huge stores of war materials to supply their armies. Now the Greeks say they are menacing those stores.

Duce Reported Purging Italian Army in Greece

Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 21.—The Daily Mail diplomatic correspondent said tonight between 50 and 60 highly placed Italian army officers in Greece had been summarily dismissed from their posts by Premier Mussolini.

Information received in London yesterday from a reliable neutral source, he said, supports rumors that Mussolini is making frantic efforts to reorganize his forces and save the prestige of Italy.

The correspondent added that Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, new Italian commander in chief, has given orders to "purge the Italian army in Albania quickly." Evidence now accumulating, said the Daily Mail, suggests that Mussolini launched the attack upon Greece without prior consultation with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, thinking the Greeks would capitulate.

Only Reveille the Same to Doughboy 'Caught' In Draft Who Finds Kindness Unheard of in '17

By Marshall Andrews.
Post Staff Writer

Twenty-three years ago I joined the Army to help make the "World Safe for Democracy."

This week I joined the Army again, the new citizen army of 1940. While my motive was less noble than that of 1917, the result was, I hope, more concrete.

Andrews Today

With the idea of finding out, against the background of service in the citizen army, that fought through the World War, what this new citizen army is like, I went out to Fort George G. Meade, in Maryland, and went through the mill. As a recruit whose ethereal status as a soldier was known only to a few officers, I passed through the Recruit Reception Center, the qualification and ability tests, the recruit camp. In other words, I got the works.

I found out what selected men from Washington and Maryland and Virginia will undergo when they enter the Army next week and thereafter, and it wasn't hard to take.

By 1917 standards, this is a panty-waist Army they've got now. But that's what the veterans of El Caney and Mindanao said even less elegantly of us in 1917; no doubt the recruits just before Waterloo looked that way to the men of Lodi; very likely the veterans of First Manassas had small regard for the farmer boys and the gnarled old men who came to Lee's army to fill the gaps after Gettysburg.

22 Years Ago

At 10 o'clock one winter night in 1917, I stepped from a train with 17 other recruits at Fort Oglethorpe Ga. Snow was 2 feet deep on the flat parade; a biting wind wound down the valley of Chickamauga. We shuffled through the snow to a

Rumania Reported About to Join Axis

Premier Antonescu Leaves for Berlin To Talk With Hitler

By Louis P. Lochner.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Nov. 21.—The German foreign office prepared a welcome for Rumania's Iron Guard premier, Gen. Ion Antonescu, today as the Axis roundup of Balkan nations into a solid alliance pledged to a German-Italian order in Europe drove ahead.

The Rumanian is due in Berlin tomorrow morning, informed sources said, and will be received by Adolf Hitler in the afternoon.

Foreign diplomatic circles were of the opinion Rumania's entry into the German-Italian-Japanese Alliance, expanded by the adherence of Hungary, was assured and that only the formal signing of the papers remained.

Still to follow suit next week, they believe, is Bulgaria and the little German-protected state of Slovakia.

The well-informed commentary, Dienst aus Deutschland, said Rumania's imminent joining of the Axis showed how any state in Europe which desires order at home automatically becomes a partner of the Axis.

Paves Way to Turkey

Accompanied by his foreign minister, Prince Costin Sturza, and the German Minister to Rumania, Wilhelm Fabricius, Antonescu was greeted at the Austrian border town of Bruck by Baron Alexander von Doernberg, protocol chief of the German foreign office, and other officials.

Observers pointed out that adherence of Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria would pave the way for Nazi troops to march to the Turkish and Greek borders to strike at the eastern Mediterranean bastions of Britain.

(German troops already are stationed in unannounced numbers in Rumania, where they are engaged, according to official announcements, in training Rumanian troops and protecting Rumania's oil wells.)

The opinion of diplomats that Bulgaria is about to follow Hungary into the alliance was supported by informed comment that the visit of King Boris of Bulgaria to Hitler last Sunday "served the new political order in Europe."

(Rumanian dispatches from Bulgaria said that country is expected to alter her attitude of "defensive neutrality" soon by presenting Greece with a demand for a corridor across Thrace to the Aegean.)

Yugoslavia Anxious

President Joseph Tiso, or possibly Premier Bela Tuka, of Slovakia, formerly part of Czecho-Slovakia, is expected in Berlin shortly.

Alignment of these nations in a bloc, pledged to pool forces against any country which may join Britain or China in war, leaves the Balkans in this shape:

Greece, definitely a belligerent against Italy, but still with normal relations with Germany.

Turkey, still committed to England, but, in the German view, still engaged in making up her mind where finally to stand.

Yugoslavia, hoping to remain neutral but anxious.

If Yugoslavia should decide to join the bloc it would facilitate German aid to Italy against Greece if needed.

Italian Bases' Fall Near, Greeks Say

total collapse of Italian resistance before Argyrocastro, which is some 30 miles from the seat at Porto Edda.

Pilots Tell of Rout

Pilots brought back stories of Italians fleeing in such haste that there was almost none in the immediate fore of the advancing Greeks.

At the other end of the front, the aerial observers said the Italian garrisons were evacuating Koritza, but that all roads were under the fire of Greek mountain guns and that the escape of the evacuees was problematical.

Nine Italian tanks tried to counterattack in the Koritza sector, but five of them were destroyed and two others captured.

Another report said a whole battery of heavy guns had been snatched from the Italians.

Southern Front Cracks

From the sea to the Aoos River, north of the Greek town of Koritza, the Italian southern front collapsed as the result of a number of breaks in the line, the Greek account said. This demoralized the enemy forces, it was stated, and permitted the rapid advance on Argyrocastro.

One important drive was made on a road along the Aoos River, which parallels the Argyrocastro road.

The Greek air force was providing important aid to these advances. These planes were reported bombing the retreating Italian columns along the entire front and attacking the airdromes at Argyrocastro and Valona, on the sea farther northwest.

ful times how widely shared are the ideals of ordered freedom, justice and security."

Churchill doubtless had a similar thought in mind when he said that until now a half or a quarter of the armed British Empire had been fighting a fully armed Germany and not doing so badly, either. He looked forward with "confidence and hope," he said, to the time when Britain would be "as well armed as our antagonists, and beyond that, if need be, to the time when the arsenals, training grounds and science of the new world and the British Empire will give us material superiority, which, added to the loyalty of constant hearts, will surely bring victory and deliverance to mankind."

The House of Commons rang with cheers when the Prime Minister entered. Frequently his speech was interrupted by shouts of "Hear! Hear!," especially when he described Premier Mussolini's attack on Greece as an act of "unmitigated brigandage." Members sat grim and grave, however, when he reminded them of what all of this country is beginning to realize—that there is still "a long road to travel."

"Deeds, Not Words," He Says

In the Mediterranean, Churchill said, Britain had the greatest interest in both wars raging there. Not only must Britain defend Egypt and the Suez Canal against the enemy's numerical superiority, he reminded the House, but she was pledged to help Greece in her struggle against Italy. Churchill said he was confident Britain would be able to discharge her responsibilities in both sectors of the Mediterranean front, but, he declared, "deeds, not words," are what is expected.

The Prime Minister, who has repeatedly refused to give details of British war aims, once more rejected laborite pressure to have him do so. However, in inaugurating the new session he said:

"We proclaim the depth and sincerity of our resolve to keep vital and active, even in the midst of our struggle for life, even under fire of the enemy, those parliamentary institutions which have served us so well, which the wisdom and civic virtues of our forbears shaped and founded, which have proved themselves to be the most flexible instrument for securing ordered and unceasing change and progress and which, while they throw open the portholes of the future, carry forward also the traditions of the past."

Meanwhile, in the House of Lords, Halifax reviewed diplomatic matters. He, too, stressed the importance of friendly cooperation between Britain and the United States. Pointing out that construction of American naval and air bases on British soil was to start without awaiting the conclusion of formal leases, Lord Halifax said:

"All these things are indications of the complete confidence and understanding which exists between our two peoples and countries."

Italian Attack Denounced

The foreign minister did not report any progress toward rapprochement with Russia. Lord Halifax did say what everyone knew—that British proposals designed to improve political relations through economic concessions are still awaiting Russian acceptance or rejection.

Like Churchill, Halifax reiterated assurances of British help for Greece, but he was even more outspoken than the prime minister in his denunciation of Mussolini's attack. He said:

"If ever there were a naked plunder, it is this one. Never in the course of her long history has the name of Greece stood so high or the name of Italy so low."

Denying Mussolini's charge that the Greeks were preparing to join Britain in an attack on Italy, Halifax said the chief significance of the Fascist leader's speech was his admission that the war is likely to be long. Commenting on Mussolini's statement that Reichsfuehrer Hitler has permitted him to participate actively in the battle against Britain with planes and submarines, Halifax denounced the "wanton, gratuitous" bombing of women and children here.

The failure of the threat of the German invasion, the foreign minister said, might account for Hitler's efforts to obtain a diplomatic success to tide his people over with. Seen through the eyes of small neighbors, Lord Halifax said, the ruthlessness and strength of Germany must be terrifying. Seen from these islands, supported by the empire and the "friendly aid of the United States," Germany falls into a more correct perspective.

Members generally expressed complete confidence in the government headed by Churchill and promised continued nonpartisan support. William Gallagher, Communist, raising the familiar cry of an "imperialist" war, was the exception. Sir Francis Acland, Liberal, said he was sure some members of the House felt the war was going to be "nastier" and that at present it was merely passing through the "elementary introduction to hell on earth." He questioned whether the people were being properly prepared.

should get to Malta shortly after sunrise yesterday.

The weather, according to reports received in Rome, was very bad both in the western and central Mediterranean on the night of the 19th and 20th. This, it is pointed out, must have deprived Air Marshal Boyd of celestial navigation, owing to the thick clouds which prevented taking sights of the stars. If such was the case, it is explained, he had to fall back on dead reckoning and by by instruments.

In all likelihood, then, the plane was forced og its course by the wind so that it missed Malta, which is a very small spot in the Mediterranean. The bomber obviously kept bying for hours trying to locate the island, and when its supply of gasoline ran low decided to make a landing on Sicily, since the only alternative was sure death in the sea.

This seems to be the most plausible reconstruction of the incident, according to experts. Motor trouble, of course, is mentioned as another alternative which, if it proves true, would stand out as an example of real bad luck, for it would mean that the engines gave way right over Sicily—only two score miles from Malta.

The fact that all those on board were taken prisoners is proof, it is explained, that te landing was not caused by te Italian air force. If the British plane had been sighted by an Italian chaser, it is pointed out, it can be taken for granted it would have been shot down and not forced to land.

The official communique itself advances no such claim, merely stating "a British airplane of the Wellington type has been forced to land in Sicily."

"The crew," it continues, "composed of seven people—including Deputy Air Marshal Owen T. Boyd, a major and three low-ranking officers—have been taken prisoner."

As soon as he landed, Italian sources said, Air Marshal Boyd attempted to destroy the plane, but was prevented from doing so by the Italians, who surrounded the field as the British bomber was preparing to land.

News of the capture created a sensation in high political Italian circles, it was learned. The Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, did not conceal his satisfaction over what the Italians described as the "prize catch" of the war, when he heard the news on his arrival by plane from Vienna shortly after noon.

The satisfaction is all the greater, it is stressed, since Air Marshal Boyd's appointment to the Middle East command was to mark the intensification of the aerial warfare against Italy.

Principal Nazi R. A. F. Blasts River Port

All-Night Bombing Leaves Big Fires In Ruhr Town

London, Nov. 21.—Medium and heavy British bombers last night carried out one of their most intense raids on a single objective, when from 11 p. m. until dawn began to pale the sky they rained bombs on Duisburg-Ruhrport, a Rhine port.

This port is one of the most important in Germany and is the biggest river port in the world. It forms a link between the Rhine and the Ruhr both by railroad and by water. Ruhr coal is assembled there every day and hundreds of barges unload iron, oil and grain. The port has four railway stations, fed by many first-class roads.

"A serious raid on the port—and Wednesday night's raids were certainly serious—must have inevitably disorganized essential traffic and destroyed indispensable raw materials," the air ministry said.

(The Royal Air Force's bomber striking force, soon to be strengthened by the release of 46 of the United States Army's big four-motored bombers, prepared for border and harder strokes against the Germans, the Associated Press reported from London.

(R. A. F. officers left little doubt the long-range bombers now to come to Britain will be in the van of the attacks which they intend to extend to eastern Germany and more completely into Italy.

(R. A. F. officers said the large fuel capacity, bomb load and altitude keeping abilities made them "ideal for sustained attacks over important targets."

Italy May Feel Blows

(Other officers, who said every sign points to an early opening of a widespread air war on Italy, declared the American-made planes "are the babies to do it with."]

The attack on Duisburg-Ruhrport was begun by medium bombers in excellent weather conditions with only a slight ground haze. These conditions lasted through the night. There was heavy antiaircraft fire and one bomber made its run over the target full in the searchlights' beams. A shell flung the crew of one bomber about but did not damage the plane.

Count Many Hits

The bombers reported fires and loud explosions. About midnight heavy bombers came in, dropping some especially big loads and a large number of lighter high-explosive bombs. Attacks were delivered from all levels, some planes pressing home through the "flak" at 2,000 feet.

From 12 o'clock onwards, according to the air ministry, planes arrived with clockwork regularity. A second wave of British bombers—heavy ones—counted 34 bursts on the target. The weather favored observation of results. Pilots in succeeding machines arrived by the light of at least three big fires. One crew apparently cruised in the area for some time before making the final run, because it described a big explosion at least a half-hour after the first attack.

As the last aircraft left about 5 in the morning after dropping its sticks, the crew saw the fires still had a good hold.

Meanwhile, coastal command planes were over the invasion ports again in bad weather with heavy antiaircraft opposition. Hudson bombers attacked Lorient, Cherbourg, Dunkerque and Ostend. One Blenheim bomber coming into the airport at Amiens sighted a twin-engined German bomber with its lights off, apparently heading for England.

Sent Down Afire

The Blenheim attacked head on, its front guns spitting. As the two planes crossed the British rear gunner took up the attack at close range. His tracer bullets were seen plinking the German's fuselage. A few seconds later the enemy plane dived and was seen on fire close to the air fields. The flames made the attack on the air field easier for the Blenheim and the planes behind it.

Sticks of bombs were also dropped on Vannes and Arras. The coastal command bombed an oil plant at Vlaardingen, Holland.

There was another cross-channel shelling today. Apparently the British attacks have not succeeded in silencing the German guns on the other side of the Dover Straits, because they opened up this morning at 9 o'clock and shelled heavily for an hour.

Nazis Repelled In Attempting Raid on London

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

London (Friday), Nov. 22.—German bombers spared London the full brunt of their fury again early today, following a day of sporadic raids yesterday, when enemy fliers dropped explosives on south England, east Anglia, the west Midlands and west England.

During yesterday's raids one German bomber, manned by a crew of four, and one Spitfire fighter flown by a lone pilot were destroyed when the British machine rammed the German over Kent, and both planes crashed in flames. The four Nazi fliers and the Spitfire pilot were killed.

London had two short daylight alarms yesterday when German planes, flying singly, made an unsuccessful attempt to reach the metropolis. In every case they were forced to turn back before they came within 15 miles of the capital. It was the first time since Monday that Londoners had heard air raid sirens during the daytime.

Long after darkness fell here last evening sirens sounded the approach of more raiders. Shortly afterwards intermittent antiaircraft fire was heard, mingling with the occasional explosion of bombs. As night were on comparative quiet continued to prevail.

Although the authorities here had not received information late last night indicating whether German planes appeared over other parts of the country, unofficial reports said raids embraced Liverpool, the Midlands district and southwest and northwest England. Whether these raids were heavy or light was not determined immediately.

Single Out Villages

During yesterday's raids on Britain the German flyers singled out villages for attack.

While flying inland over Kent the pilot of a Heinkel bomber, discovering three Spitfires pursuing him, turned about and climbed toward the clouds. All three Spitfire pilots fired short bursts at the enemy with machine guns but the Heinkel kept racing away.

The sergeant pilot in one Spitfire succeeded in overtaking the Heinkel. Excited eyewitnesses on the ground saw the British plane crash into the German astern. Immediately both machines burst into flames and hurtled to the earth. It was believed the Royal Air Force sergeant pilot might have been killed or wounded by return fire from the Heikel before he could pull away.

Both machines hit the ground at Buckland, midway between Sittingbourne and Faversham. As firemen ran toward the scene of the burning German wreckage, a bomb exploded killing one of them.

Houses and other buildings were destroyed in various parts of the country during yesterday's raids, but, according to a joint communique by the air ministry and the ministry of home security, casualties were not numerous, although they included a small number of persons killed.

Once during the day a German raider dived on an East Anglian village and released a half dozen bombs, which injured only one person—an elderly bedridden woman. At another village in the same area a 25-year-old woman was killed and four persons were injured.

Early yesterday morning hundreds of incendiary bombs fell on a southeast England town, but all the fires were extinguished within an hour.

Torpedo Boats Sunk 223,300 Tons, Nazis Declare

By the Associated Press

The German high command today credited its little torpedo speedboats with sinking 223,300 tons of British merchant and naval ships since the war began.

That record was announced by the high command in acknowledging that "now for the first time, one German speedboat was lost in a fight with several English destroyers during an operation against the English coast."

(The British reported sinking such a boat in the North Sea Tuesday.)

'S O S-Orinoco,' A Nazi Ship, Proves Puzzle

Craft of That Name Is Still at Tampico; British Freighter Hit

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 21.—Mackay Radio and the Coast Guard heard an unexplained SOS late today, supposedly from the German liner Orinoco, which was reported later to be safely at anchor in the harbor at Tampico, Mexico.

The distress signal was the first of three flashed within less than an hour by at least two different ships. It was picked up at 4:37 p. m. (E. S. T.) on the 24-meter short wave band.

At 5:28, the British freighter Cree, 4,791 tons, messaged that she had been torpedoed and was "sinking fast" about 550 milse west of Ireland.

A few minutes later, Atlantic Coast stations heard a report from the Coast Guard patrol boat Frederick Lee, stationed about 1,000 miles east of Boston, that she had intercepted an SOS from an unidentified belligerent ship which was "torpedoed and sinking."

Message Very Weak

Whether the third call was a duplication of either of the two previous messages could not be ascertained by the Coast Guard. No further details were sent by any of the vessels.

The Coast Guard said the message "SOS—Orinoco" was very weak, leading to the belief that it had come from a great distance. They said the 24-meter band on which it was sent was not the usual wavelength for international shipping but that it was sometimes used by European ships.

Before sending the distress signal, Mackay said, the German ship called the Nazi station at Norddeich, but was unanswered.

A 9,060-ton passenger liner, the Orinoco was one of four German ships which left Tampico before dawn November 16. Sighting flares, which it was reported later might have been sent up by United States destroyers on neutrality patrol, she and two other ships, the 6,031-ton Rhein and the 5,033-ton Idarwald turned back to port.

A fourth ship, the Phrygia, of 4,137 tons, was scuttled by her German crew, which was under the impression the ship was being halted by British warships.

Although all ships had clearance papers for the Canary Islands, the Orinoco was the only one loaded with cargo. Neutral observers believed that she was en route to meet a German raider with fresh supplies and that the other ships were merely acting as decoys.

All four ships had been anchored at Tampico for several months.

Mrs. J. W. White, Arlington Resident For 13 Year, Dies

Mrs. Clara Theresa White, wife of John W. White, cashier of the Arlington branch, Old Dominion Bank of Cherrydale, died yesterday at the Georgetown Hospital, following a serious operation.

Mrs. White was born in Amelia County, Va., and had resided in Arlington County for the past 13 years.

During her residence in the county she was an active worker in Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross. She took an active part in public library work and was president of the Arlington Branch Public Library and an active worker in the Arlington Methodist Church.

Besides her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Dorothy Scott White. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

C. I. O. Takes Stand Against All Isms

Murray May Call For Purge if He Accepts Presidency

By George B. Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 21.—The C. I. O., in a Thanksgiving Day session, today gave Philip Murray the drumstick he insists on before he will take the C. I. O. presidency, a resolution condemning the philosophies of Naziism, Communism and Fascism.

But even so leaders were not positive that Murray would consent at elections tomorrow to take the job which he has said he does "not want."

The carefully worded resolution, which could be used by the successor to John L. Lewis as a mandate to purge alleged Communists from C. I. O. ranks, was gaveled through the third annual C. I. O. convention without debate and with only one voice raised against it, that of Gustave A. Strebel, of New York, a follower of Sidney Hillman, who said he thought the resolution "did not go far enough."

Succeeded for Four Reasons

The declaration that Naziism, Communism and Fascism "have no place in this great modern labor movement" succeeded, it was learned, for four reasons:

1. John L. Lewis, whose appointees controlled the key resolutions committee, was not against it.

2. Leaders of left-wing unions, though they battled the blast of foreign isms behind closed committee doors, did not oppose it on convention floor.

3. Murray, who told the convention Tuesday he has "no aspirations," had privately made passage of the resolution a condition for changing his mind.

4. The resolution did not go as far as the Hillman-sponsored amendment to the C. I. O. constitution which would have barred Nazis, Communists and Fascists from paid C. I. O. offices, but it still represented a concession to the opponents of foreign doctrines.

"Room for All of Us"

Careful drafting made it possible for delegates to interpret the resolution either as an unqualified indictment of subversive doctrines or as a hint that there might be no postconvention purge.

One paragraph said:

"The Congress of Industrial Organizations condemns the dictatorships of Naziism, Communism and Fascism as inimical to the welfare of labor and destructive of our form of government."

Then after calling on the C. I. O. to continue to build unionism which "must not be diverted by strange, foreign doctrines" the next paragraph said:

"There is room for all of us in this great movement to work for those noble ideals and sound objectives."

The resolution stated:

"We neither accept or desire, and we firmly reject consideration of any policies emanating from totalitarianism, dictatorships and foreign ideologies such as nazism, communism and fascism. They have no place in this great modern labor movement."

Challenge to Roosevelt

It was understood that Murray, if he should become the heir to the Lewis crown, would construe the statement as permission to make a number of changes in the C. I. O. hierarchy.

During the halfday session the C. I. O. heard Lewis fling at President Roosevelt a challenge to make manufacturers handling defense orders comply with the National Labor Relations Act.

"I call upon this champion of human rights who sits in the White House," said Lewis, "to be guided by his oath to uphold the Constitution and laws of the United States and give to labor this relief for which it prays."

In the midst of a torrent of oratory aimed at labor law violators, R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, associated Henry Ford with "Fifth Columnists."

Said Thomas:

"When Fifth Columnists are talked about, Mr. Henry Ford is the man we should be most afraid of. Mr. Ford has not sent back his medal to Hitler."

After the outburst, the convention unanimously passed a resolution insisting that President Roosevelt issue an executive order denying Government contracts, loans or purchases of gold and silver from manufacturers cited by an administrative agency for violating labor laws. The resolution said the order should be retroactive.

Avoid Open Battle

The details of how, in less than two minutes, the convention decided its stand on communism were an example of how John L. Lewis, who still dominates the C. I. O., operates in a crisis.

It has been recognized that something had to be done on the communism issue both to appease Murray and Hillman and also to satisfy public opinion.

But all responsible C. I. O. officials wanted to avert an open floor fight that might elevate the "Red issue" above what they viewed as its importance and might create the impression of a split within the C. I. O.

Late last night the final compromise wording was worked out.

Without prior warning the resolution was read to the assembly this morning by Lee Pressman, secretary of the resolutions committee.

Immediately Murray, chairman pro tem of the convention, recognized the chairman of the resolutions committee, Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

In remarks lasting about one minute, Kennedy said:

"This substitute resolution is a plain, simple reaffirmation of the policies of the C. I. O. and John L. Lewis. It is not conceived in Red baiting, hysteria or witch hunting."

Then, before anyone else could ask for recognition, Kennedy moved the previous question, which automatically shut off debate.

The previous question was voted with only a handful of delegates in opposition. Most of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers delegation remained in their seats.

Murray then asked for a vote on the resolution and only Strebel opposed it, but he was too far back in the hall to be heard from the platform. Again the Amalgamated, favoring a stronger stand, did not vote.

"The motion is adopted," said Murray, "by what the chair believes to be the unanimous vote of this convention."

And the fight on communism, expected by some to be crucial, was over without the firing of even one shot.

Veterans Defend Draft

Earlier the convention was plunged into brief controversy when Ben Probe, a Detroit cement worker, demanded that the selective service law be repealed.

Several other union members, saying they were war veterans, took the rostrum to assert their patriotism and state that the selective service law is necessary.

Earlier the convention went on record unanimously against "any foreign entanglements which may in any way drag us down the path of entering or becoming involved in foreign wars."

The C. I. O. also asked, in resolutions, for safeguards for civil rights, improvement of the selective service law to protect selects and labor, and prevention of profiteering.

The convention was expected to wind up a five-day session late tomorrow.

Aluminum Mill Closed by Walkout

350 Strikers Claim Others in Shop Won't Pay Union Dues

By the Associated Press

New Kensington, Pa., Nov. 21.—A walkout of approximately 350 C. I. O. unionists today halted operations at the Aluminum Co. of America sheet mill, which a company spokesman said was working on "lots" of aviation and other defense orders.

John Haser, local business agent of the International Union of Aluminum Workers, said the men were called out in protest against the failure of other workers in the sheet mill to pay union dues. He reported the union men are "extremely irritated over the few members in that department who allegedly defied the members in good standing."

The mill, the company reported, employs about 700. Operations of other divisions of the plant, which employs a total of 7,500, were not affected.

Vultee Compromise Reached

Downey, Calif., Nov. 21 (U.P.).—The Vultee Aircraft Co. and the United Automobile Workers Union, C. I. O. affiliate, today agreed on a compromise settlement of their wage dispute, major issues of the strike which has closed the factory since Friday.

There remained but one point to be ironed out—a one-year agreement against further strikes, demanded by the company—before the walkout could end and the plant resume production of $80,000,000 worth of planes for the United States, Britain and South America.

The union was reported to have agreed to the company's proposal of a minimum wage of 62½ cents an hour. The original U. A. W. demand was for 75 cents an hour, a 25-cent increase over the present minimum. During early negotiations the union demand dropped to 65 cents but was restored to 75 when the strike was called.

The proposed wage increase would boost the Vultee pay roll $1,262,606 a year, it was said.

Only Beginners to Get Less

Only beginners would be paid less than 62½ cents, drawing 55 cents an hour the first 30 days of employment, 57½ cents the next 60 days and then go on the basic minimum.

Other clauses in the agreement included vacation and holiday pay and sick leave of five days a year.

The no-strike clause desired by the company and reportedly requested by Maj. Sidney Simpson, of the War Department, still blocked complete agreement and reopening of the plant, which has been shut six days, representing a loss in production of 18 basic training planes of a type needed by the Army Air Corps' pilot program, as well as additional war planes being constructed for other countries.

Indians' Turkeys Feared This Stone Ax

HIS ANCESTORS USED THIS—While Washington partook of Thanksgiving feasts yesterday, Philip S. Proctor displayed the primitive instrument with which his Indian ancestors obtained their tribal feasts in Southern Maryland. Out of brown paper wrappings, Proctor drew the rounded stone ax which he believes to be several hundred years old and was used to kill animals. Sometimes it had a grimmer use—in battle—he added. Proctor, who as a typewriter repair helper in the Bureau of Internal Revenue Building wields much more delicate tools, swung the ax by the oak handle which he himself atached to it

Spanish Hope U. S. Won't Get Bases

Youth Cheers Alleged Uruguayan Pledge Not to Cede Any

Madrid, Nov. 21 (A').—Carrying placards reading "No Bases for North America" and "South America for South Americans," hundreds of students demonstrated in central Madrid today, halting to cheer in front of the Uruguayan Embassy and finally disbanding at the United States Embassy.

Qualified observers said the demonstrators, most of them medical students and some wearing the uniform of Spain's only political party, the Falangists, were expressing happiness over Uruguay's attitude on the question of air bases for the United States.

Spanish sources said the Madrid government had received assurances from Uruguay that she would not cede bases to the United States.

(The Uruguayan cabinet has approved negotiations for United States aid in developing bases which would be available for the use of any American nation in the defense of the Americas but which would remain under Uruguay's sovereignty.)

However, a Uruguayan note, these sources said, denied there were discrepancies in the attitude of the various Latin-American countries regarding collective defense, and said there was "solidarity of purpose" among all in accord with the resolutions of the Pan-American conferences.

It added that the matters which Uruguay was negotiating were matters of its own "competence."

The student march was followed by a moment's lull in the daily press campaign against cession of bases to the United States.

The Gallup Poll

Business Stands Higher in Public's Favor Now Than Labor Unions Do

By Dr. George Gallup.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 21.—Leaders of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. whose conventions are being held this week, may well ponder the state of public opinion in the Nation regarding labor.

A public opinion survey by the Institute indicates that labor unions face a much more serious public relations problem than business. In fact, the study shows that business, which was for many years the target of New Deal reform, stands far higher in public favor today than do the labor unions.

In conducting the study, the Institute was not concerned with the merits or demerits of either business or labor, or their respective rights. As a fact-finding agency, it simply sought to measure the Nation's attitude toward further regulation of business and of labor in the months ahead.

* * * *

The study put two questions to a cross-section of voters the Nation over. The first was:

"During the next four years do you think there should be more or less regulation of business by the Federal Government than at present?"

More Business Regulation	27%
Less	51
Same	22

One voter in five (20 per cent) was undecided or without an opinion.

The second question dealt with regulation of labor unions: "During the next four years do you think there should be more or less regulation of labor unions by the Federal Government than at present?"

The returns show that more than twice as many people favor more regulation of labor unions as favor more regulation of business.

More Labor Union Regulation	60%
Less	21
Same	19

Approximately one voter in five (27 per cent) expressed no opinion.

One discovery made by the poll is that desire for greater labor union regulation is not confined to the upper and middle income groups. These groups are for such regulation by over 60 per cent, but even in the low income group among people earning $20 a week or less, a substantial majority—57 per cent—is for union regulation.

The low income group is, however, much more in favor of business regulation than the middle and upper group.

"It is true that the chief pressure for less regulation of business by the Federal Government comes from the Republican side. Whereas only about one-fourth of the Democrats in the poll favor less regulation of business, 80 per cent of the Republicans favor easing up on business restrictions. Most observers would not find this surprising.

But they may find it surprising to know that it is not merely the Republicans who favor greater regulation of labor unions. Even among Democrats there is a sizable majority for such regulation; in fact, the Democrats are actually more for it than the Republicans.

Among those expressing an opinion the vote by parties is as follows:

	Democrats	Republicans
More Labor Union Regulation	61%	89%
Less	13	28

Fists Fly Over A.F.L. Racket Issue of the Congress of Industrial Organizations who deserted that group to return to the A. F. of L., disclosed he had received inquiry about his "condition" during the day from Phillip Murray, mentioned as next C. I. O. president. Dubinsky said he appreciated this attention by Murray "very much."

The fight followed by only a few hours a statement by an A. F. of L. official—member of the executive council and the resolutions committee—that Dubinsky's measure seemed assured of approval in "some form."

"I believe that (the fight) is the answer to John L. Lewis (C. I. O. president) who said I picked the easiest way. This demonstrates how easy it was," Dubinsky said.

Lewis told the C. I. O. convention Tuesday night that those who had left his group "had taken the easiest way out" and charged that Dubinsky is "crying aloud now for the A. F. of L. to abandon the crooks and racketeers of organization."

Dubinsky refused to give a detailed account of the fight because "I don't want to involve myself with a statement and counter statements," but added:

"Fay said insulting remarks and my daughter (Jeanne, 21 years old) was with me. He was sore about the solution against racketeering.

"I Gave It Back"

"I must have been hit because I gave it back."

After the scuffles Fay telephoned him in his room, Dubinsky said and added "I don't know whether it was to have a drink with him or more war."

The Dubinsky resolution charged that "instances of racketeering in a few organizations by individuals in high places who have exploited the labor movement for personal gain and aggrandizement have cast a reflection on the good name of the entire labor movement."

Family Dinner Follows Services At St. James'

By Douglas B. Cornell
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 21.—A prayer for a new peace in the Old World and a continued peace in America guided President Roosevelt and his family today in a typical observance of Thanksgiving.

The prayer was offered at a special midmorning communion service in the chapel of St. James Episcopal Church.

After that solemn beginning for a day of Thanksgiving, the Chief Executive went on a long motor ride in the afternoon that whetted an appetite for a turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

The church services followed the regular Episcopal procedure.

"This great country enjoys so much," the Rev. Frank R. Wilson observed in a brief sermon. "The grandest thing of all it enjoys is peace, and a great amount of security.

"But we cannot just sit back and gloat. We have an opportunity, a work to do. We must pass these blessings on to others."

Quoting the famous Biblical passage that "a little child shall lead them," Mr. Wilson said a schoolboy among his parishioners had said he was thankful on this Thanksgiving Day that he was an American. "We find that practically no place, nowhere else in the world today, can children be as thankful as here in America," the rector said.

"What is home to a child anywhere else?"

The turkey dinner at Hyde Park house was a family affair. Never since he had been president had the President spent a Thanksgiving Day at his boyhood home above the Hudson. Always before, except when he went to South America in 1936, Mr. Roosevelt had spent the holiday with the patients of the foundation for infantile paralysis victims at Warm Springs, Ga.

He had wanted to go back there this year, but said that with world affairs in a critical state he felt it was too far from Washington.

Gathered around him at his home were Mrs. Roosevelt, his 86-year-old mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt; his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and their son, Franklin 3d; Betsy Cushing Roosevelt, divorced wife of his eldest son, James, and her daughter, 9-year-old Sarah, and the widow of his half-brother, Mrs. James Roosevelt Roosevelt.

English Girl Eats Her First Turkey Dinner

"JOHN ALDEN AND PRISCILLA"—Valarie Beer, 6-year-old English girl who, a few days ago, wept when she heard her mother's voice broadcast from Liverpool, was initiated yesterday into that great American custom—the Thanksgiving dinner. Dressed as Priscilla, she and 11-year-old Lee Risk, costumed as John Alden, saw a turkey dinner prepared at the Ambassador Hotel. Valarie, who tasted turkey for the first time, and her foster mother, Mrs. Ada Smith, were guests of Russell Conn, manager of the hotel vestments, had potificated at solemn high mass before a white altar.

In the chancel were the red-garbed visiting monsignori, assisting priests, altar boys, Sulpician Seminary students and others who earlier had joined in a colorful procession from the rectory to the church at Tenth and G Streets Northwest. With two small boys holding the ends of his long cape, the apostolic delegate and the others walked down the aisle under an arch of upraised swords of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

Before the services, a steady stream of automobiles pulled up to the striped marquee in front of the church discharging formally attired diplomats, State Department and other Government officials, and their families. A special police detail, under Lieut. B. C. Keuhling, of the No. 1 Precinct, handled the crowds.

The Pan-American diplomats sat in a special section, the ends of the pews bearing small-framed insignia of their countries, and small native and American flags. The Knights were ushers.

Peace and tolerance were bespoken from most pulpits as the Thanksgiving Day theme. And, meanwhile, thousands who might have spent the day in hunger were fed.

While downtown Washington streets were practically deserted—stores, banks and Government buildings closed and thousands of residents out of town for the holiday—long lines of hungry, ill-clothed men stood before the missions, waiting a turn at hot food.

The Central Union Mission, 613 C Street Northwest, fed 560 persons a meal of meat loaf, stewed tomatoes, mashed potatoes, pumpkin pie and coffee between 11:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. and in the late afternoon was confronted with another line.

The Volunteers of America, 433 Third Street Northwest, had prior to yesterday distributed 1,800 meal tickets to local destitute persons. Their tables were heavy with turkey, meat loaf and seasonable dishes.

Bishop Freeman, at the Cathedral, enumerated seven reasons for thankfulness as follows:

Despite the war, a peaceful America is resolved to remain at peace.

In comparison with other countries America is a prosperous Nation.

With all its defects we still maintain a democracy.

Christian ideals and principles hold an unchallenged place in our national life.

The spirit of amity and good will is growing among all religious bodies and especially in Washington, where 26 different faiths are affiliated in one body.

The spirit of bigotry and intolerance is less manifest here than in the rest of the world.

We are still capable of holding a national election to permit us to exercise our rights as citizens.

"America must set herself against racial rancor and religious bigotry," Bishop Adna W. Leonard, of the Washington area of the Methodist Church, told a radio audience on the first Thanksgiving Day broadcast of the District Committee on Religious Life.

Selects Told To Forget Top Hat; White Tie

When "Mrs. Astor's son" is inducted into the Army of the United States for a year's selective service training he can leave his nine trunks and dinner jacket at home.

This was the unofficial interpretation of Army men of a service axiom selectives are to be required to follow:

"New men are to be discouraged from taking an overabundance of personal equipment to camp."

The principle was noticebale in induction notices sent out to Washington trainees, all but 12 of whom in the first increment of 51 have been selected.

Bring only civilian clothing for three days, a clause in the instructions dictated.

But this was all right with a cross-section of Capital selectives interviewed on the subject yesterday.

"Civilian clothes for three days? Well, that's okay," declared Stuart Whipple, 22, of 2929 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

"We certaintly won't have much use for civilian togs, including dress suits, once we get to camp," remarked Whipple, now jobless but who has been studying personnel administration with a view to starting a career in private industry once out of the Army.

Another prospective trainee who asked his name be withheld expressed a like determination with like stoicism:

"What's the use of taking along a lot of glad rags? This isn't going to be a tea party . . . Besides if we're going to work for the Army for 12 months, let Uncle Sam pay for the clothes."

While Army regulations appeared liberal in matter of toilet articles, electric razors remained an undecided issue last night.

There is nothing in the military rules book, forbidding electric razors but in actual practice recruits will have difficulty in attaching them, it was pointed out.

"They don't have many floor plugs in an Army barracks," a veteran sergeant explained with a smile.

Meanwhile, officials of the recruiting station, 631 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, described the induction process tentatively arrived decided on for induction of Washington selectives.

Trainees are to report at 10 a. m. Wednesday and Thursday, according to the day of their quota call, at the induction center, Fifth Marine Reserve headquarters, 458 Indiana avenue northwest, which will be staffed by officers and enlisted men of the above-mentioned recruting station.

From a waiting room they will be called by numbers into adjoining rooms where they will be given physical examinations.

They will then be sworn in to Army service. With upraised hands they will vow to the following, to be read them by an administrative officer: ". . . that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America, that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all their enemies whomsoever and that I will obey the orders of the President of the United States and the orders of the officers appointed over me, according to the rules and articles of war".

'17 Doughboy Finds Only Reveille Is the Same

barracks where a couple of old-timers threw two blankets apiece at us and told us to find places in a square of tents standing ghostly on the snowy parade.

After being thrown out of a half dozen overflowing tents in turn, we finally found empty canvas cots and rolled, fully clothed, in our blankets. There was no stove in the tent I found. I did not sleep.

Everyone Polite

Last Monday at Fort Meade, I was taken in hand, with a score of other recruits, by a noncommissioned officer who led us, with unseemly politeness, through a brief medical checkup. We were then taken to a large room and put through an intelligence test, followed at once by an interview to determine our qualifications for special work in the Army. Everyone was very polite.

This interview was a revelation. There was none of the hard handed directness typical of the 1917 noncom. They were very patient with us and I know the young man who interviewed me made every effort to see that I would be placed in work which would keep me happy and satisfied as well as make me most useful to the Army. I will not go into the rating they finally gave me.

Back in 1917, after that sleepless night, I got up at reveille, had a breakfast of cold fried eggs, white bread and coffee and was taken in hand by a sergeant to be outfitted in uniform. They gave me (though it was midwinter) a cotton uniform, because Fort Oglethorpe is in Georgia. There were no overcoats and the unbending military mind would not concede us the benefit of our civilian overcoats once we were more or less uniformed. There were no shoes and no hats to be issued, so they were forced to permit us to continue wearing the needle-pointed civilian shoes of those days.

Radical Alterations

Once uniformed and once involved in the oath of allegiance, life in recriut camp was a miserable existence. We were nobody's babies until we were shipped out to tactical organizations; the Regulars on the post used us to do their dirty work.

If you lingered a bit over breakfast, the cooks snatched you up for kitchen police. If you hurried and gulped down your food to escape that, corporals and sergeants lay in wait for you at the barracks door and enlisted you in labor details which cleaned up their quarters, polished their goboons, dug ditches, tended incinerators or stood uninstructed and not too formidable guard with tent pegs for weapons.

After a time you developed considerable ingenuity in escaping both classes of forced labor, and thus your education as a soldier progresed.

In this, almost as much as in the changed attitude of the noncommissioned officer toward the recruit, has the Army most radically altered. At Fort Meade I was marched into a long wooden building and issued a complete uniform of excellent wool, and including four olive drab handkerchiefs, appurtenances which would have brought nothing but derision from the men who outfitted us at Oglethorpe.

What's More, Clothes Fit

In this uniform was an overcoat, a blouse, two wool shirts, two pairs of trousers, elegently described as "elastique," a raincoat, underwear, socks, shoes, leggings, an outfit of denim work clothing, gloves and (of all things) a necktie. There was a barracks bag to hold what wasn't put on then and there.

We stripped to the buff and redressed entirely in our issued clothing. Before they let us go, an officer checked every item to make sure it fit, an unheard of procedure in the Army of 1917. Then they turned us over to temporary companies.

These companies, commanded by commissioned officers, are under the wings of carefully selected noncommissioned officers, from first sergeant down, whose function is not to scare the recruit out of his wits but to make him understand something of the new life he is entering.

In 1917 we expected nothing from the Regulars, privates and noncoms alike, but "Git goin' youse scissorbills," and that was what we got. In two days at Fort Meade, I did not see one heavy-handed or hard-voiced noncom.

In contrast to our unheated tents on the parad eat Fort Oglethorpe, where we lived while the Regulars stayed in their barracks, they are going to kick the Regulars out of barracks at Fort Meade to make room for the first selected men when they arrive next Monday. The recruits will live in these barracks, centrally heated and with all modern facilities, until the wooden reception center is completed.

The recruits I went through with, though, were assigned to tents, floored and walled in wood, and comfortable enough.

The only thing I found that hasn't changed in 23 years is reveille. Standing in ranks in the chill dawn, half asleep and out of sorts, is no more fun in 1940 than it was in 1917. But you get used to that, too, as I discovered long ago.

There is no kitchen police for recruits at Fort Meade. All of that is done by students in the cooks' school and recruits sit up to a table and stuff themselves with no worry about who's going to do the dishes. Even the KP's life is not what it used to be, with mechanical dishwashers and electric potato peelers and automatic food choppers and such engines of this enlightened age.

What will the boys from Washington and its neighboring States have for meals? Supper night before last included soup, liver and onions, fried potatoes, boiled kale, lettuce and tomatoes, apple butter, cake and coffee. For breakfast there was prunes (an old Army custom), oatmeal, a half-pint of fresh milk per man, omelets, toast (unheard of in 1917), fried potatoes, butter and coffee.

First Steps Are Slow

Yesterday they had turkey and thinking of it reminded me of Christmas Day, 1917, when we went into the messhall for breakfast and found an orange at each plate as a special concession to the holiday. We had roast pork for dinner, too, and that was an incomparable delicacy.

Aside from the necessary business of eating and sleeping and being clothed, the 1940 recruit receives far different treatment as a soldier than the 1917 model. As I have said, the noncoms temporarily placed over him are considerate of his newness and his ineptitude. They may think "scissorbill" but they don't say it. They adhere to a rigid schedule of training, taking each man slowly through his first steps as a soldier, concentrating on the military phases of his new life, so that when he goes to the organization that will be his for the next year, some of the rough edges will have been knocked off and he will fit into its life and routine with the least possible friction.

After reveille yesterday morning, your recruit was put through a brisk half hour of calisthenics, then heard a lecture on personal hygiene, with particular attention to morals. One officer then read the Articles of War which, now as in 1917, appears to be an endless repetition "death or such other punishment as a court martial may direct."

Then follows instruction in the School of the Soldier, an infinitely patient sergeant who leads his recruits through facings and marchings. A lecture on military discipline and courtesy, in which the recruit is given to understand the necessity for them and how his own safety may some day depend on how thoroughly they are inculcated in him. More drill, vastly different from the complicated squad movements of the old Army, follows. Slowly and gently, the recruit is led through his first gropings in the unfamiliar mazes of military existence.

Step by step, his life at Fort Meade is outlined for six weeks. It is not expected any will remain at the reception center that long, but the way is paved for them if they do. In fact, a tentative schedule now provides for assignment of all the first contingent of selectives within 11 days.

What will happen to the recruit after he reaches the tactical organization, the company and regiment, with which he will spend his year's training, depends on many things. Not least of all, it depends on the recruit himself, how he accepts his new life, how thoroughly he enters into the spirit of things, how he gets along with the men with whom his lot is cast. He will find good officers and bad, good noncoms and bad, good cooks and bad. His next year will be happy or miserable as he adapts himself to them.

At Fort Meade, in the first unfamiliar stages, he will not be thrust into uniform.

He will be invited in.

Britain Called No. 1 Enemy of Bulgaria

Text of King's Talk Opening Parliament

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 21.—Following is the text of a speech delivered by King George VI today at the opening of Parliament:

My lords and members of the House of Commons:

My peoples and my Allies are united in their resolve to continue the fight against the aggressor nations until freedom is made secure. Then only can nations, released from oppression and violence, again work together on a basis of ordered liberty and social justice.

I am confident that victory is assured, not only by the prowess of the armed forces of my empire and those of my Allies, but also by the devotion of the civil defense forces and the tenacity and industry of my peoples. These are now enduring, where they live and labor, the perils as well as the hardships of war.

The stanchness of the men of the merchant and fishing fleets has added luster to the ancient traditions of the sea.

The resistance of my people has won admiration of other friendly powers. The relations of my government with that of the United States of America could not be more cordial, and I learn, with utmost satisfaction, of an ever-increasing volume of munitions of war which is arriving from that country.

It is good to know in these fateful times how widely shared are the ideals of ordered freedom, of justice and security.

Members of the House of Commons:

You will be asked to make further financial provision for the conduct of the war.

My lords and members of the House of Commons:

Measures will be submitted to you for compensating those whose home or business property has, at any time since the outbreak of hostilities, been destroyed or damaged by enemy attack, and for extending insurance against the risk of such damage to all forms of movable property which are not at present protected.

Further proposals for legislation will also be made to improve the conditions of those who may now or in the future require assistance from public funds.

Apart from these and such other measures as may be required for the effective prosecution of the war, my government will take every possible step to sustain the health and well-being of my people in their ordeal.

I pray that the Almighty may give his blessing to your counsels.

Leaders Confer With Von Papen in Sofia Blackout

By Daniel DeLuce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 21—Sofia went under partial blackout tonight while its political leaders conferred with one of the highest of German diplomats and the Bulgarian public began frankly to ask whether this country had promised to cooperate with the German army against Greece.

In Parliament, Deputy Peter Doumanoff denounced England bitterly as "Bulgaria's greatest enemy;" the press spoke of Bulgaria's "trust in Germany's friendship" and recalled Bulgaria's territorial claims against Greece.

The conference between Premier Bogdan Philoff, Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff and Franz von Papen, the German Ambassador to Turkey, was made possible by the fact that Von Papen ostensibly missed the train which was to take him back to his Turkish post from Berlin, where he had talked with Adolf Hitler.

News of Italian reverses against the Greeks was construed here as meaning an increase in Axis pressure for active Bulgarian participation in that campaign.

Von Papen's overnight stay here assumed great political—and perhaps military—importance.

(In Berlin foreign observers expressed the opinion that Bulgaria would follow Hungary soon in joining outright the German-Italian-Japanese alliance).

The blackout enforced partially here tonight will become total Saturday.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Fisher Set for Tomorrow

A heart ailment from which she had long suffered caused the death in Rockville, Md., Wednesday night of Mrs. Agnes E. Fisher, 64, wife of William T. Fisher.

The funeral will take place at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Rockville, with burial in St. Mary's Cemetery. The Rev. Father John J. Coady, pastor, will officiate.

Mrs. Fisher was a daughter of the late Charles H. Thrift and was a lifelong resident of Montgomery County. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Thomas E. Bailey, Rockville, and two brothers, Charles M. Thrift, Travilah, Md., and Sylvester Thrift, Phoenix, Ariz.

Colonel's Son Shot in Playing Realistic War

Arthur Rounds Hurt As Boys Simulate Infantry Advance

A warlike rehearsal of infantry skirmish fire ended in the wounding seriously of the 18-year-old son of a United States Army colonel in a field at Connecticut avenue and the Jones Bridge Road, in North Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday afternoon.

Arthur Rounds, Woodrow Wilson High School senior and the son of Col. William A. Rounds, on duty at the War Department in the judge advocate general's office, was accidentally shot in the right arm and chest with a 22-caliber rifle bullet. The Rounds live at 3416 Rodman street northwest.

The rifle that shot the youth was accidentally discharged in the hands of William Frothingham, 18, of 4217 Forty-sixth Street Northwest, son of Alfred Charles Frothingham, American manager of the British Purchasing Commission in Washington.

Frothingham and Rounds with Frothingham's brother, Edward Charles, 15, and Charles Luke, 16, of 4707 Connecticut Avenue, and William Anderson, 17, of 3431 Ordway Street Northwest, went to the field together to spend Thanksgiving afternoon at target practice.

The five had spent some time firing at a target and were preparing to leave when the older Frothingham, Rounds and Anderson decided to practice an infantry firing maneuver of advancing and then shooting while lying prone on the ground. They formed themselves into an inverted "V" formation with Frothingham in the apex. Rounds on his left and Anderson on his right. The exercise was one familiar to the boys as Frothingham had attended Oakland Military Academy and both he and Rounds had gone to Citizens Military Training camps.

In some manner he was unable to explain, Frothingham's rifle discharged, the bullet striking Rounds in the arm and penetrating his chest. Frothingham said he believed the safety device on the gun failed to function. The other two youths were sitting in a car 25 yards away at the time of the accident.

The wounded boy was driven one mile to the Chevy Chase Firehouse. Firemen brought him to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition was reported as "very serious."

Guard's Actions In Disloyalty Case Waits Probe's End

Action in the case of a District National Guard officer suspected of subversive acts and of making disloyal statements must await completion of an investigation now under way, Guard officials said yesterday.

The investigation, undertaken by the military intelligence section of the War Department, is probing charges brought originally by enlisted men in the officer's unit. These charges include the allegations that the captain said Army equipment under his command would never be used against Germany.

Guard officials reiterated the statement printed in yesterday's Post that no formal charges have been filed against the officer and that the investigation is to determine if charges should be filed. It could not be learned if a report of the investigating board's findings would be made public.

Suspect Talks With Attorney, Dictograph Catches Sniper Clew

TELL-TALE TREE—Where bullets, said to have been fired by the sniper suspect, were removed from tree

Police Led to Pistol Practice Range by Conversation; Bullets Found There Resemble Fatal Slugs

The private pistol range of a 25-year-old sniper suspect was unintentionally revealed by the prisoner himself as he conversed with an attorney unaware of a hidden police dictograph, it was learned yesterday.

It was while listening to the "confidential" interview between lawyer and client that detectives learned the whereabouts of a tree at which the suspect allegedly practiced his marksmanship, a Post informant stated.

Police found the tree in a lot just over the Highway Bridge. From it they pried two pistol bullets said to match slugs taken from the bodies of three colored men murdered by the mysterious gunman.

Lieut. John H. Fowler, police ballistics expert, said the slugs were of the same size and weight as those fired by the after-dark slayer. The Post also learned that police have a statement from a man who said he purchased .38 caliber bullets for the suspect.

Investigators tried the dictograph ruse again yesterday but obtained no additional information. They hoped the prisoner would reveal the whereabouts of the murder weapon.

The former convict suspect was arrested last Saturday by Lieut. Robert J. Barrett, former ace Detective Bureau investigator, now attached to the Third Precinct, and Capt. Walter Storm, commander of No. 3. Barrett was taken away from his regular duties and assigned exclusively to the sniper investigation.

The suspect has refused to answer any police question, maintaining absolute silence.

An engineer at a Baltimore airplane factory, the suspect served time for burglary in Indiana. He lived with his mother here.

Police are attempting to link him with the murders of Theodore Goffney, colored, 45, of 823½ Twenty-sixth Street Northwest; Samuel Banks, colored, 62, 2600 I Street Northwest, and Hylan McClaine, colored, 17, of 1021 Thirtieth Street Northwest.

Goffney and Banks were both slain while they sat on a bench in front of the latter's home, October 6. McClaine was shot October 15 while walking across the K Street Bridge with his girl friend.

Mildred Washington, colored, 17, McClaine's friend, identified the suspect as the murderer.

A fourth mysterious shooting, that of Moe Steele, colored, 23, 12 P Street Northeast, who was shot to death at North Capitol and P Streets Northwest, August 30, is similar to the three sniper shootings, but police have been unable to obtain any bullets to compare them with those taken from the later victims.

Three Faiths Will Confer On Democracy

Clergy to Explain System's Relation To Religion

Washington clergymen of three faiths will meet for an all-day clerical conference on "Religion and Democracy" on Tuesday at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest, it was announced yesterday.

It will be held under the auspices of the Washington Round Table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, in cooperation with the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital.

In a statement outlining the purpose of the meeting, Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, chairman of the Round Table stated:

"Washington clergymen of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths are convening this meeting with the hope that out of their deliberations will emerge a concrete program wherein the churches through their clergy, laity and existing organizations, in conjunction with the Washington Round Table, may clearly relate religion and democracy in the minds of our own people. Such an achievement might well furnish a pattern to other communities and thus provide a means whereby the clear voice of religion may sound its peculiar message to our United States in this special hour of peril to its democratic values."

The day's program will open with a philosophical presentation of the contribution of religion to democracy from the viewpoint of the three great faiths. Presiding at this session will be Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor, Covenant-First Presbyterian Church and chairman of the Committee on Religious Life. Speakers will be the Rev. Wilfrid Parsons, S. J., professor of political science, Catholic University; Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, Adas Israel Congregation, and Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, professor of political science, American University.

The luncheon speaker will be Dr. Frank Kingdon, educational director, Citizenship Educational Service, New York City and former president of the University of New York.

searched the apartment. Then she heard a muffled cry "like a kitten."

She grabbed her husband, rolled him over and there was Judith, under his 170 pounds. The baby appeared lifeless. The parents tried everything to revive the infant, slapping her cheeks, bouncing her up and down. But Judith failed to respond, her tiny body lay limp in her father's arms.

A call for medical aid was relayed to Sixth Precinct police. Officer Collins responded. Immediately, he applied artificial respiration. After several minutes, Judith showed signs of life. When a physician arrived, the baby was breathing normally.

Lucas explained he was awakened by the infant's crying and took her into bed with him. He fell asleep and apparently rolled over, smothering Judith beneath him.

"It was a miracle," said Mrs. Lucas yesterday. "I am certain my baby was brought back from the dead. We truly have something to be thankful for—and we'll never forget Officer Collins."

Thanksgiving Spirit Hoped To Swell Chest

Volunteers Work Through Holiday To Bring in Receipts

Thanksgiving spirit, translated into tangible terms, is expected to show up in results at today's noon report meeting for Community Chest campaign workers.

Most of the volunteer workers worked through the holiday yesterday in an attempt to push up the campaign total which is lagging behind last year's percentage, at this stage.

Pledges amounted to $1,161,133 or 58.56 per cent of the total at the last report meeting Wednesday a the Willard Hotel.

Support was urged yesterday by Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, who said:

"We must not allow the uncertainty of conditions in our Nation and the world at this critical time to lessen our interest in our fellowmen close at hand or decrease our contributions toward the assistance required by so many right here in our own city."

Hazen Gives Reasons

Commissioner Hazen issued the following statement on "Why we should be glad to make the Community Chest successful this year of all years":

"The citizens of the District of Columbia should be particularly glad to contribute to the Community Chest this year because of a feeling of gratitude. Be thankful that this Nation of ours is free of the terrors of war. Be grateful that we have no thousands upon thousands of youngsters made orphans by bombs and rifle bullets. Be glad that our parents, our children, our brothers and sisters are here, living with us instead of lying dead as penalty pledges to the god of Mars."

Robert E. Bondy, director of public welfare, said:

"The national unity that all desire will come by making our American democracy work. Alongside our democratic system of government with public welfare services is the service of private agencies supported by the Community Chest. Each Community Chest contributor is, therefore, a participant in making democracy work."

Woman Says Death Will Be Her Guest For Thanksgiving

Mrs. Horace Champney enjoyed yesterday's holiday, spending the afternoon with friends with whom she shared a turkey dinner, but her conviction was unshaken that next Thursday — the year's second Thanksgiving—she will die.

Returning last night to her room in the Washington Home for Incurables, where she has been a resident patient for several years, Mrs. Champney expressed confidence that the astrological forecast of her own death which she made some months ago will be fulfilled.

PARTIES A-ROAMING. Large groups of debbies and their squires who attend the big balls always seem to begin or wind up the evening in the night spots. A party of 150 buds and beaus dined in the Lounge Riviera before setting sail for the Black and White Ball at the Mayflower. Later in the evening they flitted back and forth between the Mayflower ballroom and cocktail lounge. Tonight the British Relief Ball takes place at Hotel 2400 Sixteenth Street with Pete Macias' band, augmented, playing for dancing. And you can be sure that many of the young folks attending will be perched in the Lounge Riviera before the evening's over . . . And beautiful nurses are very plentiful in the Metronome Room these evenings after their special parties in the Wardman Park ballroom. Tonight the doctors of the U. S. Naval Hospital and their pretty assistants are holding their annual fall dance at Wardman. Last night the nurses of St. Elizabeths Hospital chose the same spot for their Thanksgiving soiree. And nurses look even more fetching in pastel dance frocks than in their starchy white uniforms.

Gene Archer's new "Variety Hour" will give added gayety to the Neptune Room's continuous evening entertainment (9 to 1 a. m.) beginning next Monday. The "Variety Hour" will concentrate the talents of Gene, Pianist Evalyn Tyner and the Four Men of Note in vaudeville specialties, will be presented at 10:30 to 11, later between midnight and 12:30.

"OUR COUSIN FROM LONDON," Van Kirk, will head next week's revue at the Shoreham. Kirk, one of the most popular singing comedians of the English music halls, played at London's Hotel Grosvenor just before coming to the United States. He'll bring us a high-hearted message from our British cousins. St. Clair and Day will go into their next-to-last week. George Downey will continue "Tramping Along"—on wheels.

KING COLE GROWS UP. A combination Thanksgiving and fourth anniversary party was staged with great jollification in the King Cole Room last evening. Owner Vincent Gallagher was the genial host both to his patrons and the members of his organization.

SKATERS DANCE IN COSMOS ROOM. Stars of the "Ice Follies" have been polishing up their dancing in the Carlton Cosmos Room at both the afternoon and evening cocktail hours. The dancing grace of the professional skaters inspired a flock of Cosmos customers to learn skating. So-o-o they called up the Ice Palace and chartered it for an after-hours session. Not one of the Cosmos crew had ever been on skates and they didn't want the general public looking at their first attempts. We hear it was as good as the "Ice Follies"—but verra different.

Jim Fitzpatrick, ace saxophonist of Paul Kain's band, will join the Rainbow Room Orchestra on December 2. He's one of the best "ride men" anywhere around; should team up excellently with Rainbow's saxist, Parley Eaton.

RAE MARSH,
new singing star at Paul Young's Romany Room

SUNDAY NIGHT SUGGESTIONS. Paul Young's Romany Room is going to be open regularly on Sunday nights hereafter. The zippy show is headed by those lovely newcomers, Rae Marsh, Jerry Brandow and Ralph Lewis. Al Spieldock's full orchestra will play for dancing . . . The Madrillon is Sunday night headquarters for loads of folks who know that the dance music of Carr and Don. June Sothern's songs are hard to tie, impossible to beat . . . Del Rio is another bright and popular spot on Sunday nights. That star comic, Steve Evans, now heads the floor show. Songs by Penny Pepper, a really brilliant trouper, and dance rhythms by Ray Bradford's band . . . Sunday nights are especially charming in Troika. Between champagne cocktails and the bubbling revue with Regine Covo of the cinema, you'll have an effervescent evening.

NIGHTINGALE MUSKETEERS. "All for one and one for all" is the motto of Rodd Raffell's Nightingale band. Four or five of the boys have had flattering bids to join other bands. But like the Three Musketeers, the 13 Nightingalers are sticking together—strictly.

FACES 'ROUND PLACES. Hi Hat. The Ambassador Hotel's Manager Russell A. Conn waiting for Mrs. Conn, who came along presently looking no end chic in a beaver cap and a feather hat with two birdies taking flight from the crown. Mr. Conn opined that the chapeau made him nervous but Mrs. Conn said "I like it" . . . Burt's Trans-Lux. Vice President Frank (Scoop) Russell of N. B. C. and his bride. The new Mrs. Russell is dark, willowy, lovely indeed. Mrs. Mary Ellen Sprague of the FCC with a couple of Army and Navy officers.

George Macdonald, of Cafe Caprice, and his former maestro, Eddy Brandt, have written a beautiful number called "We're Lovers Out of Love." You'll probably be hearing it on the air waves soon.

RECOMMENDED STOPS. When driving out past Silver Spring you see a place with wagon wheels in the fence—stop! It's Peter Fritz's Log Cabin and you'll miss a good time if you don't go in . . . Ditto at Wisconsin and Western Avenues when you see the sign of the Silver Fox. It's a completely handsome new spot. Music by a novachord-piano-violin trio and splendid food . . . Try to find a place to park when you go by Mrs. Irving's Uptown on Connecticut Avenue. Smart entertainment and delicious food and drinks . . . If you're around Eleventh and E Streets, better step into the Harrington Tavern and refresh yourself. The hospitality is authentically Southern.

YOU SHOULD KNOW that Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room, played for the recent "Bundles for Britain Party" at the Jewish Community Center . . . That Louis Keyser, who used to sing at Mayfair, is now at the Club Charles in Baltimore . . . That part of the reason the New Bavarian lunches are so good is that Chef Andy Miller gets up at 6 a. m. to start work on them. (Or maybe he stays up.)

FLOOR SHOW FLASHES. The Earle Lindsay Girls are stepping out to college songs at Casino Royal. But it's Laverne Lupton who breaks up the show when she prances out to "Hail to the Redskins" . . . The nightly horse races at the Pall Mall Room are more fun than a rodeo . . . Jean Cathon, now in his second season at La Salle Versailles, is the perfect example of the right singer in the right spot . . . Buddy Shaner's back in the middle of the Lotus revue and everybody is that glad to see him!

Police Put Chill On Dapper Nudist Full of Antifreeze

Shorn of his clothes and his modesty, a 29-year-old white man who paraded up and down a midtown street yesterday in the nude, also was shorn of $10 when he was bundled into the First Precinct station on a charge of disorderly conduct.

It was 4:30 a. m. when an astounded passerby beheld the sight of a man prancing along Thirteenth Street Northwest between G and H Streets clad only in nature's raiments.

An emergency call sent Policemen O. T. Disharoon and Robert E. Lee to the scene where they found the man, despite the chilliness of the morning yelling: "I'm not cold. I'm not cold."

His clothes were nowhere to be found. He elected to forfeit the $10 after sobering up enough to call friends who brought him clothes.

Rabbi Silver to Speak

Rabbi Samuel Silver, director of the Hillel Foundation at the University of Maryland, will be guest speaker at religious services tonight at 8:10 at Adas Israel Synagogue. The Washington Hadassah Chapter will participate. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz will discuss "The Woman's Status in Judaism."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Va. Educators Hear Blast at 'Sugar Coating'

Teach Truths Not Sweetened Facts, Dr. Craig Urges

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21.—Dr. Gerald S. Craig, of Teachers College, Columbia University, appealed to Virginia public school teachers today to teach "truths, not sugar-coated facts."

Addressing the science section of the Virginia Education Association's annual convention, Dr. Craig declared "We are living in an age of gadgets and not of real science," and urged the teaching of science as "a part of life."

"We have, heretofore, been thinking of the science of the laboratory and not of physical environment," he said.

The several sectional meetings of the morning session were adjourned at 11 o'clock to permit members of the association to participate in a Thanksgiving and memorial service in the John Marshall High School Auditorium.

Thanksgiving Sermon

Thomas E. O'Connell, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church, in the Thanksgiving sermon described the ultimate aim of all education as a more abundant and happy life in eternal companionship with God—the first and greatest of teachers."

He told his audience that "America without God can no longer be America" and that "America and God are a majority."

President Joseph E. Healy of the V. E. A. presided at the services. Tribute to deceased teachers was paid by Miss Lucy Mason Holt.

John J. Fray, of Rustburg, was elected president of the V. E. A. last night to succeed Healy.

Dr. Belle Boone Beard, of Sweet Briar College, was named president of the Virginia Council of Administrative Women in Education.

Robert Porterfield, recently appointed drama adviser for the State department of education, speaking at a panel discussion and forum at the John Marshall Hotel as a part of the program on speech education, described the Southern accent as "the most beautiful in America."

Suggestions for improving speech courses ranged from an increased use of Shakespeare's plays to an attempt to "give every student a chance to say something out loud every day."

The latter idea was advanced by Miss Anne Stiff, of the William Byrd High School at Vinton, who asserted "some children don't know they have a voice except when they screech at football games."

Mrs. Mary Peacock Douglas, school library adviser of the North Carolina State Board of Education, told the librarians' section that large print, wide margins and colored illustrations formed one way of winning potential young readers to good books.

The modern language section conducted a Thanksgiving session that featured a talk by Jose Padin on the economics and culture of Chile.

Taft Partner May Replace Martin

plans to devote his full time to his advertising business.

Willkie, who carried Hollister with him on his Nation-wide campaign swing for practical political advice, is said to think the Ohio lawyer is best fitted to fill Martin's shoes.

Naturally, Hollister is acceptable to Senator Taft, whose law associate he is. Friends of Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, said the former Ohio Congressman is equally agreeable to Vandenberg.

Dewey Friends May Dissent

But supporters of New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, certain to be a prominent contender for the 1944 nomination, may have other ideas, as may several who have come up from the dark horse class, such as Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio.

As Willkie and other G. O. P. leaders are making every effort to preserve party unity on all possible points of difference, it was believed unlikely any chairmanship controversy would be allowed to develop. To avert just such a contingency, talk of Martin keeping the job was being revived.

Willkie personally selected Martin for National Chairman after his own nomination, but should the chairman step down the national committee would be free to name its own man.

The new chairman would reflect Willkie's wishes only so far as the National Committee reflected them, and the committee is now a free agent.

The Republican nominee recently made clear to confidantes that he has no desire to "dictate" the party course, although he will express himself from time to time on major issues in speeches and published articles. He probably will return, following his Florida vacation, to New York for private practice of law.

Hollister, who served in the Seventy-second, Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth Congresses, was the only "professional" politician regularly aboard the Willkie train, and constantly had Willkie's ear.

Friends here thought Hollister would be unwilling to relinquish his law practice, and would accept the post only if the job of executive director or some other position of authority were created for a capable assistant.

Some high in party circles believe a Republican with organizing genius must be placed in the executive directorship vacated by John Hamilton if the party is to hold and weld into the Republican framework various elements supporting Willkie.

Democrats meanwhile were searching for a similar organization wizard to install in Washington as second in command to Democratic Chairman Edward T. Flynn. Several mentioned for the Democratic post have made plain their unwillingness to serve, including Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina; Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt and Senator Sherman Minton, of Indiana.

Va. Chamber Heads Open Parley Nov. 29

Defense to Be Theme At Charlottesville Conference

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 21.—Secretaries, presidents and directors of Virginia's more than 100 chambers of commerce will assemble here November 29 and 30 for the fall conference of commercial organization executives, Frank Martin, of Petersburg, conference chairman, announced today.

The conference will hear addresses by more than a dozen State and national figures and consider as its theme the chamber of commerce in relation to national defense.

The conference will start with a luncheon November 29, featured by an address by Frank Bane, of the Council for National Defense. Others on the luncheon program will be W. D. Haden, mayor of Charlottesville, and Earl L. Valentine, of Lexington, president of Shenandoah Valley, Inc. Andrew Bell, of Winchester, will preside. A woman's entertainment program will start at the same time at Farmington Country Club.

Ben Lawshe, commercial organization secretary of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will preside at the afternoon session, which will feature an address by E. Leigh Stevens, director of the Virginia office of Government reports, and national defense addresses by John G. Cox, of Danville; Don T. Seiwell, of Virginia Beach; Martin E. Greene, of Alexandria; Jesse Overton, of Portsmouth, and S. N. Vaughn, of Newport News.

The conference will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Winston Johns at Ash Lawn, Charlottesville, during the later afternoon. A banquet session that night will feature an address on the national defense by James S. Easley, of Halifax, president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the State Defense Council.

Saturday's sessions will begin with a testimonial breakfast to Ralph Bradford, secretary of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The final session, including committee reports, will be held at a luncheon, at which Hugh R. Pomeroy, director of the Virginia State Planning Board, will speak.

Gen. Riggs, 79, Dies; Ex-Head Of Md. Guard

Commanded Troops When Fire in 1904 Ravaged Baltimore

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 21.—Gen. Lawrason Riggs, 79, president of the board of trustees of Peabody Institute until a year ago and former brigadier general in command of the Maryland National Guard, died today at Union Memorial Hospital. He entered the hospital a week ago for treatment.

Gen. Riggs was born in New York City, but lived most of his life in Baltimore.

He commanded the National Guard when the great fire of 1904 destroyed most of Baltimore's downtown district and troops were called out to preserve order and prevent pillage.

He was a director of the First National Bank, the Mercantile Trust Co. and the Safe Deposit & Trust Co. He served as head of Peabody Institute for a number of years and continued on the board after resigning the presidency.

He was an attorney, but his law business was devoted chiefly to management of family investments and he seldom appeared in court. He was a bachelor. Three brothers survive.

New County Board Finishes 25 Miles Of Road in Year

Frederick, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—The first annual report of the Frederick County Roads Board, which started from scratch a year ago without tools, personnel or equipment, showed today the agency had completed 25 miles of new highways.

County Engineer Roger H. Willard told the board funds available during the year ended October 1, totaled $205,945, and expenditures amounted to $195,623, leaving a credit balance of $10,321 to start the new year.

General maintenance of the county roads system cost $70,247 under the new setup, Willard said, and $52,349 was allocated to WPA projects. Special projects cost $15,284, and $54,279 represented capital outlay.

Willard said 16.6 miles of the roadway completed was constructed with WPA assistance, 5 miles were built with roads board funds as special projects, and 3.4 miles represented use of construction funds.

Newmyer Honored

James Morton Newmyer has been elected to Tau Beta Pi, the honorary society of the engineering school at Yale, it was learned here yesterday. He is on the dean's list at the engineering school. Newmyer is a graduate of the Sidwell Friends School here.

A. H. Crismond Burial Today; County Clerk

Served Spotsylvania For Half Century, 28 Years as Clerk

By the Associated Press

Spotsylvania Courthouse, Va., Nov. 21.—Arthur H. Crismond, for 28 years clerk of Spotsylvania County, died last night at his home here after a brief illness. He was 72.

Crismond, in the county's employ for 50 years, served as a deputy under his father and succeeded him on February 1, 1912. Subsequently he was elected three times to eight-year terms and had served four years of the term to which he was elected in 1936.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at Zion Methodist Church, Spotsylvania, of which he was a steward.

Surviving are his widow, a son, Deputy Clerk W. Cary Crismond, and two daughters, Mrs. Richard Johnson of West Point, Va., and Mrs. William K. Howard, of Fredericksburg.

Rev. Francis R. Lee

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Very Rev. Francis R. Lee, 60-year-old native of Lee Hall, Va., and retired dean of St. Marks Cathedral, Hastings, Nebr., died at a local nursing home last night. He had been ill since February.

Surving are one son, Samuel L. Lee, of Charlottesville; three sisters, Mrs. F. R. Woodworth, of Tallahassee, Fla.; Mrs. Lucy Bagley, of Phoebus, Va., and Miss Benedicta Lee, of Syracuse, N. Y., and one brother, Maury Lee, of Roanoke, Va.

Ralph C. Duffy

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—Ralph C. Duffy, 56, United States marshal here for the last seven years and sheriff of Wicomico County from 1926 to 1930, died today. Duffy, a blacksmith before he became a peace officer, was widely known on the Delmarva Peninsula and only last month was named to his third term as marshal. Funeral services will be held from the home Sunday afternoon.

Pershing Slated As Envoy to Vichy

expected to work toward a bettering of French-American relations—relations which have not been free of irritations and some concern since France accepted German armistice terms.

Few Americans, it was pointed out here, know France and the French people as does Gen. Pershing. His close relationship with the French throughout the World War has been expanded since by his frequent visits to France, both as chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission and in a private capacity.

Gen. Pershing would succeed William C. Bullitt, whose resignation as ambassador has been submitted to the President but not yet accepted.

While there was no official confirmation of the reliably sourced word of the general's selection, there was considerable corroborative evidence.

A Hint from Henry-Haye

Late Wednesday Gaston Henry-Haye, French ambassador, called on Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles for a talk on what he later said was "a pleasant subject." He forecast an important announcement on the "pleasant subject" within a few days, a forecast generally taken to mean an ambassador was about to be named.

And yesterday word was received here that the newspaper published by Vice Premier Pierre Laval in France had printed an article saying Gen. Pershing would be the new envoy.

Mother Bettina's Burial Tomorrow

Burial rites for Mother Bettina, 81, former Eastern provincial of Sisters of the Holy Cross, will be held in Holy Cross, Ind., tomorrow, it was learned here yesterday. Mother Bettina died at Mount Carmel Hospital Wednesday.

She was born in Ireland, and came to this country 60 years ago. At one time she was superior of St. Mary's Academy, Salt Lake City, Utah. Later Mother Bettina was a member of the general council of St. Mary's Convent, Notre Dame, Ind., before going to the Eastern province.

President Asks Tax Leaders To Parley

Harrison, George, Coop Doughton Called to Consider Revisions

By the Associated Press

Four top Congressional tax leaders, it was learned yesterday, have been invited to an informal White House supper with President Roosevelt for the first of a series of conferences expected to result in a general revision of the Nation's tax laws to meet national defense expenditures.

The invitations—for the evening of November 29—went to Chairman

Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, and Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, of the Senate Finance Committee, and Chairman Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, and Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee, of the House Ways and Means Committee.

In addition to taxes, the discussions are expected to include the question of increasing the present $49,000,000,000 Federal debt limit, which Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau already has suggested should be raised to about $65,000,000,000.

Preliminary to the supper meeting, Doughton, whose committee originates all tax legislation, had what he called "a general discussion" of taxes with the President Wednesday.

Doughton predicted that there would be a general new tax bill when the next Congress convenes on January 3 and said that it might cover a broad field.

Two major tax bills have been enacted during the current session of Congress. One levied a temporary five-year 10 per cent "supertax" for defense purposes.

The big feature of the second tax measure was an excess profits tax designed to curb profits accruing from national defense contracts.

The contemplated new tax legislation, it was reported, may affect corporation and individual income taxes and other levies as well.

A letter from George Sylvester Viereck, writer and friend of the ex-Kaiser, suggested to Zapp that "the value of your service might be increased if you give it even more distinctly a pro-German slant."

In a letter which Eric T. Winberg, correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter, sent the committee two months ago, he quoted Tonn as stating:

"We (Transocean) send news to South America, Germany and some of our stuff goes to the Far East and for us it is a mater of policy to damage the prestige of the United States as best we can. To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

The City And The Auto

Gordon Whitnall, planning consultant who spoke to a District audience recently, declined to discuss the specific problems of this city. However, his remarks about building cities to suit the needs of the automobile are very much to the point—for, obviously, that is not the way Washington was built.

The division of authority and interests in the Capital City has discouraged proper planning in the past. The Federal Government, for its own reasons, has concentrated large office buildings in the triangle between Pennsylvania and Constitution Avenues without providing space for any considerable portion of the employes' automobiles. Most of these now help to clog the principal business area, which, unfortunately, lies adjacent. The rental of buildings for Federal offices brought another group of commuters and lengthened even farther the lines of parked machines which inconvenience shoppers, sightseers and every one else.

The result has been the setting in, to a certain extent, of that "disintegration" mentioned by Mr. Whitnall as the fate of cities not built around the automobile. Some business centers—perhaps fewer than in other cities of comparable size—have developed in outlying areas. At the same time some parts of the downtown district have retrogressed. Yet the bulk of the Northwest retail center still is as smart as ever, and many civic leaders, including officials of the American Planning and Civic Association, are confident that with the proper treatment of the parking problem it will remain so.

No one solution has been found, though several have been suggested and discarded. Private parking lots and garages cannot take care of the ever-increasing cavalcade. It has been urged that stores provide space for customers' machines, and some have, but obviously not all can find suitable land. Many planners hold that it is as much a public function to provide parking space as to maintain streets. Yet a scheme for District-operated lots and garages was abandoned, after investigation, on the ground that patrons would have to be charged prohibitive prices.

Perhaps the cure will never be achieved by any single means, but by close cooperation of all interested groups and agencies. Owners of stores in the congested area must be impressed with the long-term importance of solving the traffic problem. Federal departments must continue to work with the Park and Planning Commission, as they have done in several recent instances, in an effort to find suitable building sites away from the main business streets. If a solution is to be found, moreover, District officials must keep the matter constantly in mind despite all setbacks, and Congressional committees must lend sympathetic ears. The public, finally, must be prepared to support constructive plans which may emerge from the present survey of parking habits.

Cutting WPA Outlays

The budget for the fiscal year 1942 is now being prepared for submission to the incoming Congress. The considerable lapse of time between completion of the estimates and the beginning of the fiscal year to which they apply makes estimates of receipts and outgo highly tentative even in normal years. This year the task of figuring out expenditures is particularly difficult because of the complexities of the defense program, though we may be sure that the expenditures will be astronomical.

Along with his budget President Roosevelt, it is expected, will transmit to Congress a request for a deficiency appropriation for the WPA. Since Congress authorized the spending of the WPA appropriation within the first eight months of the fiscal year, the WPA can hardly be criticized for taking advantage of such leniency. But Congress ought by this time to realize how imperative it is, fiscally and psychologically, to reduce expenditures for work relief and like purposes as a partial offset to defense outlays.

The WPA is now—quite properly—concentrating its efforts upon projects such as airports and strategic roads that strengthen the Nation's defenses. WPA officials, in conjunction with the Defense Commission, also are training workers for employment in defense industries. These activities are highly commendable, but to the extent that they succeed in creating defense jobs for WPA labor, the need for funds to maintain men on work-relief jobs becomes less. In other words, the WPA itself is preparing the way for its own extinction.

To be sure, many millions of men are still unemployed. But the Federal Government has never attempted to provide jobs for all the idle. It has simply tried through the WPA to relieve the pressure of unemployment, and to lighten the relief burden resting upon the States and local governments. The time has come to shift that assumed burden, or a good part of it, back to the local governments. There are several reasons why this should be done: First, the heavily unbalanced Federal budget makes reduction of non-defense outlays a safeguard against inflation; secondly, the localities are now in a stronger financial position and better able, therefore, to care for the destitute in their midst; and, thirdly, expanding business is making new jobs and bringing more income to workers, thus reducing the need for public assistance.

It is too late to prevent the WPA from exhausting its appropriation long before the end of the current fiscal year; but there is ample time to plan for curtailment of its spending program for the coming fiscal year, and members of Congress should insist that this be done.

Mr. Dies' Special Task

Representative Dies' new efforts to expose subversive activities in the United States are now encountering less than usual opposition. Treason, sabotage and other so-called Fifth Column activities have produced such disastrous consequences in other countries that the great majority of Americans are now eager to see the spotlight of publicity turned on the agents of foreign governments operating, overtly and covertly, in the United States. Effective means of combating these agents is an essential part of our national defense.

At present the House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities, of which Mr. Dies is chairman, is concentrating its attention upon certain Nazi, Fascist and Communist organizations. Its agents are reported to have gathered an abundance of evidence of a damaging character. As that evidence is checked and verified, it is to be released, and a forerunner of what we may expect is the 500-page "white paper" giving details of Nazi plans to organize a close union between American industry and a victorious Germany. Such revelations will serve a useful purpose. The people ought to know what the paid agents of foreign governments are up to in this country. Indeed, the exposure of sabotage, espionage and subversive propaganda has become a work of the greatest importance.

It is well to remember, however, that the functions of the Dies Committee are limited. That agency has no responsibility for enforcement of the law against traitorous and disloyal elements. It is a legislative committee, not a second Federal Bureau of Investigation. Actual enforcement of the law remains the special task of the Department of Justice. Mr. Dies' obligation is to keep Congress and the public informed as to activities that are inimical to the American system of government and to sponsor any new legislation that may be needed in this field.

At various times in the past the Dies Committee has appeared to lose this perspective. It has been so interested in tracking down propagandists and spies that it has occasionally forgotten its primary function—to advise Congress as to ways and means of protecting our democratic system from enemies within who are trying to destroy it. There is danger that the committee may once more be diverted from its essentially legislative task by pursuit of sensational testimony.

Moreover, there should be a greater selectivity in the issue of documents. Some letters in the 500-page collection talk of efforts to "influence" writers and commentators in behalf of the Nazi cause. This is likely to injure the reputation of honest men in the eyes of the unthinking just by the mere mention of names. Naturally, the Nazis are out to influence the influential. And the more highly placed the publicist the more the Nazis are going to try to "crank him up," in the words of one of these precious letters. Nazi agents, it is likewise well to remember, are bound to write big about their exploits, in order to show they are earning their keep; as, for instance, Dr. Manfried Zapp, head of the Transocean News Service, who in a letter compliments himself on his high contacts, though, on inquiry, we hear they were made at a semipublic Press Club dinner!

Yet the time has come to deal with so-called Fifth Column activities in a more comprehensive way. In his book, "The Trojan Horse In America," published last month, Mr. Dies advocates that all organizations in this country shown by his committee to be linked to the totalitarian regimes should be outlawed. "It is indefensible," he writes, "to permit the representatives of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin to operate in this country under the cloak of legality."

Nowadays Mr. Dies' conclusion goes without saying. The time may have come when some of the gentry within Mr. Dies' purview should be handed their walking papers. This could be done within the law. But far too little thought has been given to the legislative aspects of putting Mr. Dies' conclusion into effect in respect of agents holding American citizenship. Some definite recommendations from the Dies Committee should soon be forthcoming, though, in framing legislation to control the activities of hostile agents, the committee will encounter a problem which is less easy than in exposing the work of repentant spies and propagandists. Nevertheless, this is the central problem to which both the Dies Committee and Congress should now be giving attention.

Double-Purpose Housing

The first World War taught the United States that housing must be an integral part of any comprehensive armament program. The inadequacy of living quarters at such centers of activity as Sparrows Point, Md., and Bridgeport, Conn., resulted in an acute shortage of labor and consequent delays in the filling of war orders. To avoid a similar experience in connection with the present defense program, housing facilities must be expanded at strategic points along with industrial plants.

Fortunately, a good deal of thought has already been given to this problem. A defense housing coordinator is at work in the Defense Commission. All the Government's housing agencies are lending their cooperation, and experts employed by the Twentieth Century Fund have recently completed a report analyzing "the basic elements of a national housing policy to meet the needs created by America's armament program."

Most of the emergency housing provided during the World War, these experts found, was built by private industry. More effective than the construction of new dwellings, however, were the improvement of transportation facilities between available quarters and munitions plants and the placement of workers in existing quarters through a registration of vacant houses and rooms. The committee believes that the Government should once more encourage private industry to supply this demand wherever it is able to do so.

Two other important guide lines are laid down by the committee. "Defense housing," it says, "should be of permanent, not temporary, construction; and it should be concentrated in the low-cost field." Such dwellings must necessarily afford protection from wind, rain, cold, heat and snow and must be suitable for normal family life. And if these requirements are met, there can be little saving in either time or money by erecting temporary houses that might soon turn into slums.

The arguments advanced for concentration of efforts on the construction of low-cost dwellings are particularly impressive. The most serious shortages exist in this field. A large percentage of defense workers earn wages which make it practicable for them to live in houses within the cost range of $2,500 to $4,000. Since the greatest demand for new housing during normal times is in this category, moreover, the risks of building low-cost homes to meet emergency demands are at a minimum.

Some good advice is also offered as to the location of defense plants in communities where workers and housing are already available if strategic considerations can be served at the same time. With the most careful planning, however, new residential quarters will be needed in many cities and towns where defense industries are rapidly expanding. If these can be constructed for permanent as well as emergency use, at least one segment of our enormous defense program will retain its value in peacetime.

Ralph W. Barnes

With a sizable segment of the world groping in the darkness of rigidly censored news—meaning, for the most part, either tendentious communiques or outright fiction—handed down by governments, it has become increasingly difficult, as it has become increasingly important, for nations at peace to obtain accurate and unbiased information. To this difficult task Ralph Waldo Barnes, of the foreign staff of the New York Herald Tribune, who is the first newspaper correspondent to be killed in this war, devoted himself with notable success, as we need not remind the readers of this newspaper, where his byline appeared frequently over dispatches from Europe.

Barnes was no movie version of a foreign correspondent, but a hard working practitioner of an exacting craft—a craft, by the way, which calls for far more industry, if not ability, than it did in the romantic era of Richard Harding Davis. Just as many thrilling adventures came to Barnes as to any of the famed journalists of past wars, yet he regarded them as routine, and the lengths to which he went to get his stories was attested by the fact that he met death in a British bomber over the Montenegrin town of Danilovgrad. His conscientiousness was only one of the characteristics that endeared him to the men and women with whom he covered assignments all over Europe.

The way Barnes has been praised by his fellow craftsmen would be the accolade he would most cherish, and we would add our own tribute, as well as condolences to our New York neighbor in the loss of such an excellent reporter.

Il Duce's Speech

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Saving "my honor with your blood" is a patented totalitarian process which reaps spontaneous cheers from massed multitudes when favored with the inside facts of how the top man'll talk 'em to victory. So say I that our tough-veneered chin-up old pal, Il Duce, talked a good counterattack in his first speech since June. Why the first since June, and that indoors? Well, ask the Greek war.

A fightin' speech, notable for its lack of specific insult against the United States and as subtle as a kick in the face, was this address by the champeen breast-beater of 'em all. His words will vibrate through zones of war and—where found—peace.

Duce's confident prediction of victory recalls a recent event in this land, illustrative of the moral that one side always overspeaks its piece and looks bad if its loud noise is too loud and falls flat. Speaking of the Greek debacle, it was careless of Duce not to "plan it that way."

"Nothing New"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many times in this war Hitler has threatened to annihilate his foes with a secret weapon and bring the conflict to a speedy end. Thus far his threats have remained empty rhetoric.

But there is nothing new in these Hitlerian menacing warnings. The Germans uttered similar threats in World War I. In his report of August 8, 1916, to Secretary of State Lansing, Mr. J. W. Gerard, the American Ambassador in Germany, wrote:

"The Germans say they have new and horrible inventions which will end the war soon." (The Lansing papers, I, p. 693.)

Two years later the imperial German armies were beaten and the Second Reich went down in defeat.

On Capitalism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I thoroughly agree with W. P. Hargitt's letter on capitalism. It was well written and shows mature and logical conclusions. Those on the other side of the fence try to convince us that the profit system has failed, but never yet have they devised a suitable substitute therefor.

"Man shall live by the sweat of his brow," and that is just as true today as it was 4,000 years ago. Those who are not willing to work, either mentally or physically, deserve nothing, and the fact there are a comparatively few idle rich does not prove anything for the other side of the argument.

The wild-eyed radicals in this country would have us imitate the Communists, i. e. eliminate the rich and make everyone poor. But since reputable travelers tell us that Russia today is the most poverty-stricken nation on earth—well, draw your own conclusions.

Election Issues

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The reelection of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Presidency indicates, in my opinion, a triumph of the idealistic over the materialistic in our national life.

Mr. Willkie, as the representative of "big business," promised the people many things. His brand of "prosperity" to follow his victory, appeared in a new dress. He was not going to make "prosperity," he would simply release it!

A Republican administration was guaranteed to put all the unemployed to work and gradually abolish relief entirely. He was going to make a new American order, and he would "turn the Nation back to the people." But the American people, apparently, were somewhat allergic to "new order" enterprises.

The average voter doubtless argued that inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt and his Democratic Administration had long since partially broken the strangling grasp of a moneyed minority and turned the Nation measurably back to the majority of the American people, that Mr. Willkie's "people," or the big shots of big business whom he undoubtedly represented, were none other than the same aggregation from whom it had been painfully wrested. This was a restoration not relished by the grand mass of the electorate. They preferred Roosevelt and a little relief, to Republican restoration of special privilege to prey and plunder.

Then again it became obvious, as the matter was probed, that if Republican big busines could turn loose the vast mass of the energy and capital to put everybody to work, that this same concentrated aggregation had been holding it in check for ulterior and sinister motives. Based upon Mr. Willkie's representations and conclusions, it also logically followed that the big boys who chose Mr. Willkie for their leader, were the ones responsible for whatever lack of public enterprise and the unemployment occasioned thereby, which has retarded and embarrassed the Roosevelt Administration.

In his post-election broadcast calling upon his erstwhile followers to rally for loyalty, unity and support of the Government, Mr. Willkie could give no greater evidence of his sincerity than to put into effect those certain prosperity promises he made during the campaign. These are not at all contingent upon his elevation to power.

Mr. Willkie has said all must stand by the President. He should, like a zealous apostle preaching a holy cause, call upon the brethren of the boards of directors to release the frozen capital and the potential powers under their control, put all of us to work and fill our pockets with those delectable passports that go far to the making of a material paradise.

The spiritual, the idealistic and the humanistic may safely be left to the care and solicitude of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, viewed in each tried term, has proven himself the first friend of the masses and fair to the classes.

Way To Counteract Propaganda

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In comment on Mr. Charles Hooper's letter published in The Post of November 19, I should like to point out a few of the more obvious consequences of the plan he suggests: namely, the abolition of the foreign-language press in this country.

The suppression of the foreign-language papers would intensify the feelings of hostility and inferiority fostered in our foreign-born groups by the astute and highly coordinated propaganda agents of such countries as Italy. It would be a gesture of inestimable service to the Fascist representatives as it would give tangible proof to the poor and ignorant that their rights are not only not protected, in this despised land of democracy, but are, at the first opportunity, entirely suppressed.

Mr. Hooper's suggestion that such abolition of the foreign press and the substitution of compulsion to learn the written language of the country of adoption would result in "a common language," is, unfortunately, wishful thinking of an especially high order.

Instead, an effective and informed news service should be set up to counteract the steady insidious effect of the Fascist press which now functions unhampered in this country. Subsidized by the Fascist governments, dailies are published in the larger cities, weeklies form a network of uniform comment from the Fascist point of view which spans the country from East to West and North to South. The opposition is hampered by lack of funds and by lack of any adequate cooperation to date from our Government, which has refused to admit that the foreign-language press actually constitutes the menace of misinformation that it does.

Why, instead of further dissociating ourselves from our foreign-speaking minorities, do we not offer them an honestly reported news, written competently and presented simply and attractively, designed to offer a positive, and not a negative, opposition to the well-established train of propagnada sheets paid for in part by the Axis coffers?

Are our governmental agencies from which such action would be appropriate (education, justice, etc.) so concerned with negative measures of repression that they cannot be interested in some such positive plan of informative, sympathetic American propaganda, aimed at acquainting the foreign-language groups with the advantages to them of the democratic as opposed to the Fascist way of life?

Among the intellectuals of whatever country of origin and among a large percentage of second-generation Americans, the English-speaking press serves uniformly as the main source of news. But for those groups which still go to make up the larger share of our foreign-speaking population, the foreign-language papers are the only news source available and, unless suppressed, are likely to remain so. Why must we further alienate these groups when, by intelligent and constructive handling of the problem we could attract them?

The Post Impressionist

A Problem In Tactics

IT'S RAINING and a perfect morning to lie in bed. A knock on the door interrupts Mrs. Captain's dreams. She covers her head with the sheet and pretends that she is still asleep. The strategy is useless. The knock is repeated and a determined voice announces: "The Packers are here"

In they come, seven strong and powerful men. Mrs. Captain feels like Snow White when the Seven Dwarfs disturbed her slumbers. She longs for some magic potion that would make her fall asleep and not awaken until the furniture is settled in its new home. Then her face whitens as Packer Number One says:

"I'll start with the beds." He repeats the sentence. This is a time for action, not for thought.

An earthquake strikes the house. Peace and quiet vanish as drawers are emptied and chairs dragged out of rooms. Mrs. Captain begins to apologize for having so much furniture, then she invents excuses for having so little. It depends upon the facial expressions of Packers Two and Three. The as yet unread morning paper is wrapped around a lamp. Grim-faced Packer Four contemplates a potted begonia. Everything is supposed to go, but the journey will be hard on the begonia. Flower lovers are never daunted by circumstances. Packer Four begins a lecture on the care and treatment of house plants.

Mrs. Captain feels superfluous. Clothes might help. House coats are too feminine. Where, though, are clothes? Her closet looks like Mother Hubbard's cupboard. Packer Five has been before her and a yawning box is already filled with clothes. She makes a frantic dive and emerges with an evening gown. It isn't exactly a suitable costume for a day of conflict. Packer Five is an understanding man. He finds an apron.

The hurricane continues to rage. The dog hides in a closet as the Packers begin to hammer and saw. Junior carefully selects the broken toys that had been destined for the garbage can and gives them to Packer Six. He has already hidden his favorites. Junior stands and watches a top board being nailed on a box. He wants to be more helpful. He gives all the library books in the house to his friend, Packer Six. The groceries are delivered and find a waiting niche. Of course, potatoes will be useful when Mrs. Captain unpacks. She's not so sure about a wilted head of lettuce or the coffee that is left in the percolator.

The man of the family comes home to change his uniform for an unexpected parade. There's no uniform. He sits on the steps, there's no place else to sit, and studies the blue book of Army Rules and Regulations. There's no mention of an officer leading a battery without a saber. And what will the visiting Congressional committee say about an officer without a Sam Browne belt?

A newly arrived major's wife rings the doorbell. She wants to see the house where she is soon to live. Mrs. Captain attempts to make Packers sound like a dust storm, but Mrs. Major studies the fingerprints on the wall and the cigarette butts in the fireplace. She coughs as if she has ideas about Mrs. Captain's housekeeping ability. The quartermaster comes to count the Government property. A light bulb is missing. Barrels must be unpacked. It's like looking for a needle in a haystack. Mrs. Captain begins to worry. Governments are powerful. She, too, begins to search. Yes, here are the fragments of shattered glass. She confesses. Junior broke it and she forgot and threw the pieces in the wastepaper basket.

The entire military garrison seems to be interested. The telephone rings. Mrs. Lieutenant Colonel gives advice about removing tubes from radios and also adds that she'd be glad to give her cook a good home with nice people. The first captain stops to advise against the crating of furniture. Wood is heavy. Captain Two speaks in favor. Wood makes good kindling. Mrs. Colonel leans out her window to count the barrels. Why, she had twice as many on her last move! Would—politely—Mrs. Captain mind if she moved a few rose bushes before she left? The next occupant probably won't care for roses!

There's a ghastly scream from the kitchen. Mrs. Captain rushes to rescue the cook. She is glaring at Packer Seven and turns to her mistress for assistance.

"That man is no gentleman! He grabbed the skillet right out of my hands! Does he think I can cook in tin cans?"

Mrs. Captain sighs and the telephone rings again before the thundercloud can be told that even Boy Scouts know how to fry potatoes in tin cans. Mrs. Lieutenant announces that she's heard rumors of moths at the prospective station. She'll be glad to protect the Chinese rug. The blue is exactly the color of her new draperies, so it will be no bother.

Junior and a friend have found a new game. Mrs. Captain stares in horror as they drive nails into a spinet desk. Perhaps she can pretend it's an antique. At least the scars will furnish a subject for cocktail party conversation. A salesman comes to the door. A crash is his response. Dishes. But Packers One and Two have merely had a collision, while Packer Seven calls in a do-a-kind-deed tone:

"You don't want to take a fishing rod. They always get broken. Odd, this is my favorite type."

Darkness falls. The house is quiet and deserted. It's ceased to be a home. It's merely a dusty, dirty place. It's best to lock the doors. Nice people couldn't live in such a terrible spot. Mrs. Captain sighs. She doesn't understand. She'd always prided herself on her attractive home. The man of the family interrupts her reflections. There's a mimeographed paper in his hand. "My orders have been changed. We don't go. We stay."

Stay! It's a problem in tactics for the General Staff to solve. How will they eat, sleep and dress, when pans, beds and clothes are traveling, somewhere in the United States?

The "New Order"

IT WOULD ADD to clarity of thought if we would cease speaking of the "European war." The "New Order" which Axis arms are busy forging is a new world order, or it is nothing. The Germans themselves do not speak of "Europe." They speak of Eurasia Eurafrica.

I often think we are deluded by the sort of maps we usually see. Europe is not a continent; it is a peninsula of Asia. Africa is far more intimately joined to this peninsula than South America is to North America. The Mediterranean, the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf no more separate Africa and Asia from Europe than the Great Lakes separate us from Canada. The whole of Africa is in the hands of European powers; a defeat of Britain would put it wholly in the hands of Germany and Italy.

However unwillingly, Russia is part of the Axis and her gains in the Baltic have been quite futile. True, she has acquired 25,000,000 additional population and a considerable amount of acreage by her absorption of the small Baltic countries and her partial conquest of Finland, but the German absorption of Scandinavia—Denmark and Norway by occupation, and Sweden by domination—render these gains useless. Russia is now locked up in the Baltic and Hitler has the key.

SO, TOO, the acquisition of Bessarabia and the Bukovina from Rumania by Russia has only been paralleled by the arrival of the Germans on the Black Sea. Hungary's joining the Axis—a decision forced upon her—only indicates that Germany and Italy are going to push forward very soon into the Near East.

In the Eastern Hemisphere, the most important oceanic points are held by Britain—South Africa, India, Australia, the British Isles themselves. A navy defending and provisioning the beleaguered British Isles must now try to defend these, too, against the Italian and Japanese navies—if once Japan can come to terms with China.

This arrangement will be pushed by Hitler. Japan will move then against Dutch, French, British and American possessions; Russia can be temporarily compensated by being offered some portion of the dismembered British Empire—Iran, where Britain has had a sphere of influence; perhaps India. There is a lot of the British Empire to be thrown as prizes to those who will play the German game.

Thus, all the world except the Western Hemisphere is already included in the "New Order" that Hitler and his henchmen are mapping out and mapping up—the whole population of the world is involved except the relatively small number of people who inhabit the Western Hemisphere: About 331,000,000 live in North and South America, as contrasted with 1,795,520,000 inhabitants of the Eastern Hemisphere. The population of the Eastern Hemisphere outnumbers that of the Western by more than 5 to 1.

A CONTEMPLATION of the map, of population factors, of the relative resources of the two major areas, of the actual number of trained fighting men, reveals how pitifully weak and isolated the Western Hemisphere would be in a "New Order" of planned and integrated economies and armies and navies—immense land and sea power.

Such a "New Order" will certainly not leave the Western Hemisphere undisturbed. For one thing, population pressure will be in this direction. The Axis powers have no hesitation in moving around populations by the tens and hundreds of thousands. Hitler has already dumped 150,000 Germans—political or racial "undesirables"—upon the rest of the world; he has moved uncounted thousands of Europeans from their homes—Austrians to Poland, and Poles to concentrated Polish areas, or as serf labor to Germany, Lorraine inhabitants to other parts of France. Baltic Germans to Poland, Germans to France.

The Eastern Hemisphere is a teeming hemisphere, and Axis policy is to unsettle and resettle populations according to racial, economic or administrative theories. Spain will be assisted to reestablish herself, with Axis intervention, in South America.

And the cry of the "have-not nations will turn into a cry of have-not hemispheres. Just as Nazi claims rest on the thesis that 80,000,000 Germans have not enough "lebensraum" and Japanese claims on the same cry that 70,000,000 people cannot be so confined, just so logically will the question be raised by what right 1,375,000,000 of human beings on the Eastern Hemisphere should be so crowded, while the Western lands remain relatively empty and relatively unexploited.

IF ALL THIS seems apocalyptic, one can only insist that the new Nazi order is apocalyptic. And it only requires the defeat of Britain to make the vision very real.

The United States has only begun to stir in its sleep. The average American is still quite unable to imagine a totally different world order from the one in which he has lived since the birth of this Nation.

He is quite unable to imagine that the right of this people to live, as it has, right here on this soil, will certainly be challenged if Britain falls, and that the dream of holding the Western Hemisphere, in toto, in such a reorganized world is pure myth.

To protect ourselves we, like the Germans, would have to turn this country into a new Sparta—a race of soldiers and administrators, totally abandon, and abandon for an unforeseeable long future, the comfort-loving world and pleasure-economy standards in which we have been reared; prepare to lose liberalism forever; make ourselves over from start to finish. We would be watching ramparts and doing very little else.

IN THE FACE of what is happening in the world, our aid to Britain, our preparation for our own defense, and our whole psychological conditioning are totally inadequate. Germany is getting more from France in a single day—in the matter of food and materials and war equipment—than Britain is getting from this country in a month. Our timidity leads us to such utterly unrealistic phrases as "measures short of war." In this world no nation will, in the long run, be able to survive by measures short of anything except the most complete effort. That effort must be an integrated effort, and not, as it at present is, a largely haphazard one. If we do not intend to live in the world on the Axis terms, we must decide for ourselves on what terms we do intend to live, and then prepare to secure those terms for ourselves, and as many allies as we can find, by any and all measures that we, as a people, can command.

We shall not survive the twentieth century as a free people with any of our habits, ideals, or ways of life intact, except by an effort beyond our means, as we conceive our means at present, an effort that will cost sweat, and pain, and sacrifice, and probably blood.

For the world is not as we still imagine it to be. We do not want to arrive at the moment when we shall say, as Paul Reynaud said, "Only a miracle can save France."

There was no miracle, and there will be none, except as we make the miracle, by superhuman effort.

Cook Book

MARTHA WASHINGTON probably never heard of "Thanksgiving Day" as such, but a modern Thanksgiving dinner would have been a routine affair in Martha Washington's kitchen. "The Martha Washington Cook Book," edited by Marie Kimball (Coward-McCann, $3), was written for dinners on a grand pattern. Its recipe for bread began with a gallon of flour!

The cookbook, as Marie Kimball gives it to us is, fortunately for any modern cook who may try to use it, not precisely that which was used at Mount Vernon more than a century and a half ago. Miss Kimball has revised the recipes to adapt them for tiny modern families of six members or so. Nor was the small, leather-bound manuscript book, now in the library of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, really of Martha Washington's own making. It was composed by Martha's mother-in-law by her first marriage, Frances Parkes Custis, and though Martha used it, the cookbook was of an older vintage. Frances Parkes was married in 1706, and her original recipes are essentially seventeenth century in character. Also, they are English, as was most of the early cooking in tidewater Virginia. There are no Indian corn recipes in it, and the fish prescribed for are English fish. There is here no recipe for planked shad.

MARTHA Washington presided over a handsome table, as Miss Kimball makes clear in her colorful introduction, but it is doubtful whether she herself had much to do with the cooking. She brought George Washington 150 slaves as part of her marriage portion, and there were plenty of dark-skinned hands to kneel by the open fire in the Mount Vernon kitchen. And when the general moved, with "Lady" Washington, to New York City, as first President of the new Nation, the evidence seems to indicate that George watched the kitchen more closely than Martha. He complained that Samuel Frances (of Fraunces's Tavern), who was for a time his steward, set too good a second table. He objected to Fraunces's expensive assistants, and wanted him to utilize more the services of black Hercules, though Hercules had to be sent back to Mount Vernon one every six months, because six months' continuous residence in the North then made a slave free. Indeed, Hercules did run away in 1797, just before the general retired to Mount Vernon.

AT ONE POINT—Fraunces was an intermittent steward, for the President deemed him too expensive—the Washingtons advertised in the papers for help. "A Cook is wanted," the copy read, "for the family of the President of the United States. No one need apply who is not perfect in the business, and can bring indubitable testimonials of sobriety, honesty and attention to the duties of the station."

The Washingtons gave regular Thursday dinner parties. Thanksgiving or no Thanksgiving, and they were elaborate enough. A Massachusetts visitor left a contented record of the fare. "There was an elegant variety," he wrote, "of roast beef, veal, turkey, ducks, fowls, hams, etc.; puddings, jellies, oranges, apples, nuts, almonds, figs, raisins and a variety of wines and punch." The dinner lasted from 4 to 6; Martha Washington was the only lady present, and five men in livery attended to the serving.

Martha Washington's mother-in-law could not spell—nor did she need to in those happy days before dictionaries were invented, when spelling was merely a means of communication. She wrote, with a cockney accent, "hartychoakes," and she had other curious versions—frykasie, orringes, musrumps, sparragus and mutoon. Miss Kimball, however, has mended her orthography in most cases, and even, where she felt the eighteenth century lady's cuisine deficient, added a few modern recipes. She provides, for instance, a modern tomato sauce; Frances Parkes Custis certainly never heard of such a concoction, and probably Martha Washington was equally ignorant.

If this cookbook is adequate evidence, the Washingtons used few vegetables. The Mount Vernon cookbook did, indeed, provide a curious recipe for lettuce tarts and another for "a tart of parsnips," in which the addition of white wine, lemon juice and rosewater may have contrived to eliminate the unfortunate flavor of the parsnip. It called for plenty of Oriental spices—mace and ginger, nutmeg, cinnamon, peppercorns and allspice, and it was liberal with home-grown potherbs. If Martha Washington faithfully followed her mother-in-law's recipes, she used winter savory with her roast beef, thyme and marjoram with roast lamb, tarragon with her "frykasie" of chicken, "a bunch of sweet herbs" with eels, spearmint in her pea soup, rosemary with trout and rosewater in a variety of unlikely dishes. She made a strange bread pudding which she called "a tansy," coloring it green with bruised spinach and sorrel, decorating it with sliced oranges and flavoring it with a handful of bitter tansy leaves.

"As tansy is almost unobtainable now, it may perforce be omitted," comments the editor, Marie Kimball. Probably it grows beside the roadside, a few yards from Miss Kimball's summer home. There is usually a clump of it close to any abandoned cellar anywhere in New England or Pennsylvania.

The Spending Test

By Ernest K. Lindley

Rearmament And Prosperity

THE IRONY of this rearmament boom is that it is the first real application of the thesis that prosperity can be produced by Government spending. It is the first time since Roosevelt became President that the Federal Government has gone in for spending on a large enough scale to put us within striking distance of full production.

The present boom is due to spending by two governments: The British and our own. The rate of expenditure by both will rise next year unless the war comes to an end. If the British lose, our expenditures probably will be increased, at least enough to offset the loss of their purchasing power. We will need every weapon that we can turn out, from rifle ammunition to battleships.

This is the first time since World War I that our Federal Government has spent money in really large amounts relative to our total productive capacity. Then our spending came on top of a boom which already had inflated the price level. Our fiscal program was extremely badly managed. We did not tax heavily enough. We borrowed too much money.

THIS TIME the rearmament boom comes when we are far short of full operation of our economic system and when prices have been inflated. We have the capacity, in general, to take care of British orders and our own rearmament on top of regular production for civilian use. In fact, we have the capacity even to enlarge production for civilian use and so to increase the average standard of living.

An erroneous impression exists that the Roosevelt Administration, prior to the present rearmament program, had tested the theory that prosperity could be produced by Government spending of borrowed money. The truth is that the President was never convinced of the validity of this theory—or, if he was convinced of it, never had the boldness or the strength to apply it. If he had adopted this theory we would have spent $8,000,000,000 or $10,000,000,000 of borrowed money in 1934 or 1936 or 1938, instead of much smaller amounts.

The President has resorted to spending only to stop disastrous deflation and to meet imperative social needs. In 1933 and again in 1938 he was persuaded that a moderate spending program would stop deflation and start us upgrade again. It worked in both cases. But all his aides know that he has been far more responsive to appeals for spending based on humanitarian grounds than to those based on economic arguments. It was relief which was chiefly responsible for unbalancing the budget. Even the $4,000,000,000 works-relief program of 1935 was sold to the President mainly by the argument that it was essential for the morale of the unemployed to do some work instead of to live in idleness. Harry Hopkins, who made this plea incessantly, persuaded the President to recommend appropriations, while Harold Ickes, custodian of the more expensive public works program, was repeatedly cold-shouldered and had to fall back on support in Congress.

LIKEWISE the President advocated old-age pensions and other social security expenditures, not chiefly for economic reasons, but as sound social policy.

As a result, no New Deal budget up to now has been anywhere near big enough to meet the specifications of the advocates of spending as the road to prosperity. It is only a coincidence that the rearmament budgets now laid out bring the totals approximately to the height they consider necessary to lift our economic production to somewhere near capacity. For these special rearmament appropriations were worked out to meet our needs for defense, without regard to the calculations of economists.

The prosperity that is being produced now by spending Government money for implements of war could have been produced several years ago by spending money in comparable amounts for housing and public improvements.

The question that causes anxiety to most people is how much higher we can safely run up the Federal debt. There is no definite answer to this question, because psychological as well as more tangible factors are involved. Theoretically, the debt could safely be run up to almost any amount, so long as it is owned within the United States. We pass on to future years a heavier burden of interest, but we also pass on the securities which draw the interest. If our children will have to pay interest on $50,000,000,000 or $60,000,000,000 or $70,000,000,000 of Federal debt, they will also receive interest on $50,000,000,000 or $60,000,000,000 or $70,000,000,000 in Government securities. So long as the Government bonds are owned in the United States we, as a people, get back every cent we pay in interest on the Government debt.

BUT PUTTING aside theory, two assertions can be made safely. The first is that the Federal debt is still light in relation to our productive capacity. The second is that we can keep it from rising much higher if we are willing to pay more taxes.

We are now getting up toward the level of prosperity where we should be able to raise at least $10,000,000,000 a year from taxes which are not unduly burdensome. This would not be enough to meet the peak of our rearmament expenditures, but it should be enough to allay worry about the Federal debt.

Business And Defense

THE CONFLICT of ideas involved is the truly curious feature of the struggle now being joined behind the scenes over the future of the national defense set-up. For despite the dark aspect of affairs abroad, and the desperate need for haste at home, the chief topic of controversy at the White House seems to be the rather time-worn New Deal favorite, how to treat the businessmen.

The need for a decision on the part to be played by businessmen in the Government is inherent in the problem confronting the President. nI the existing defense set-up, authority and responsibility are complexly dispersed between the Defense Commission, the War and Navy Departments and other branches of the Government. With such a cumbersome mechanism, the best that anyone hopes for is a continuance of the present tempo of rearmament. A tremendous speed-up is highly unlikely. Yet the fates of Coventry and Birmingham suggest all too clearly, that there must be a speed-up if we are to be sure of meeting the grim war crisis ahead.

As the long-term defense plans are generally excellent, no speed-up can be hoped for unless American industry is put on a footing of total emergency. The defense authority and responsibility now so widely dispersed must be concentrated in a single agency. Men must be found to work from the existing plans, yet to drive industry to turn out defense material twice as fast and in twice as large quantities as the plans call for.

A REAL sense of emergency has not yet seized the country. Industry cannot be driven by executive fiat. Thus the men who are to drive industry successfully must command industry's confidence and obtain industry's consent. They must, in the present state of politics, be businessmen themselves.

This is the practical situation. Many New Dealers argue that Government men are better able to drive industry than businessmen, since "Businessmen won't get tough." Even among the most fiery New Dealers, however, only a small minority maintains that the needed powers can be got from Congress, or the required support found in the country, if the task masters of industry are chosen among Government men. For example, when Lord Beaverbrook put the English air industry on an emergency footing, he threw out bodily the managements of the Bolton-Paul and two other air plants. They were inefficient, and they had to go. Similar soft spots exist in our industry, yet they can hardly be dealt with satisfactorily if a great cry of dictatorship and state socialism is to be raised in consequence.

The President is, of course, thoroughly aware of the practical aspects of the current situation. If he were not, he would undoubtedly have yielded long ago to one of the abortive movements to give this Government man or that a big place in the defense setup.

ON THE other hand, all the signs suggest that the President is also extremely reluctant to confor on the businessmen more power in the Government that they now enjoy. The present defense set-up was carefully planned, chiefly by the President himself with the aid of Harry L. Hopkins and Robert H. Jackson, without granting them real predominance. The order for its establishment was only issued under strong public pressure for something of the sort. Undoubtedly, the President would have preferred to prepare national defense "through the regular Government channels."

THUS THE conflict of ideas involved in the struggle over reorganizing the defense set-up is seen to be a conflict over how far the businessmen can be trusted. There can be little doubt as to the President's confidence in and respect for such individual recruits from the ranks of business as William S. Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius and James Forrestal. The trouble is that many of the men aroud the President, and probably the President himself, are inclined to feel that even the best of businessmen inevitably treats his fellows too softly.

AMONG BUSINESSMEN there is a tendency to suppose that every member of the Administration has the same Robespierre-ish instincts as the most sea-green incorruptible in the purlieus of the Labor Relations Board. And among Government men, unhappily, there is an equivalent failing by which it is often assumed that every businessman is as bad as Insull. Thus substantial business profits are eyed with suspicion. It is felt that stringent tax laws must be enacted to prevent general pillage. The constant impulse is to treat business rough.

Such are the controlling factors in the current struggle. Those who hope for a really drastic change in the defense setup argue practical necessity, and point to the danger abroad. Those who oppose claim that if the business class is handled too tenderly the support of the mass of the people will be lost. As has already been stated in this space, the two sides are so evenly balanced that matters are likely to be let slide for a while. As for the eventual victory, none can predict whose it will be.

Seeking Allies

By Barnet Nover

Germany's Diplomatic Offensive

TWO MONTHS of intense diplomatic activity by the Axis have produced results which, in the long run, may prove to be far from negligible but which are not yet impressive.

In that period a very earnest effort has been made by Germany and Italy to create the widest possible coalition against Great Britain. Berlin and other German centers have seen the comings and goings of such men as Ramon Serrano Suner, Count Ciano, Vichasleff Molotoff, Count Czaky, King Boris of Bulgaria, Gen. Antonescu. In addition Hitler conferred with Gen. Franco on the Spanish-French border, with Laval and Marshal Petain in Paris, with Mussolini at the Brenner and later in Florence.

THE NET RESULT of this far-flung diplomatic offensive thus far has been a treaty of alliance between the Axis and Japan, though neither side is in a position to help the other in any material way, and the adherence of Hungary to this Berlin-Rome-Tokyo combination. Since Hungary has for a long time been a satellite of the Axis her action has relatively little meaning. Should Rumania follow Hungary's example, which is very likely, that, too, would merely underline the obvious. Rumania is a conquered country, not less so because it was turned over to Hitler by the Bucharest government without a struggle. An agreement by Bulgaria to cooperate militarily with the Axis would have more pertinence. But that is still in the future.

In the meantime Hitler appears to have had only indifferent success in winning over Russia, Spain and Vichy to a program of active collaboration in the construction of the "new order" in Europe. His partner, Mussolini, has had no success at all either in intimidating Greece into compliance with the Axis program by diplomatic means or, when that failed, by military measures.

WHEN THE WAR broke out 14 months ago Germany had several diplomatic, but no military, allies. Italy, Spain, Russia, Hungary, Slovakia, were in the German camp. But the Germans did all the fighting there was to be done. The Russian attack on Finland was a sideshow and Italy's entry into the war last June had no visible bearing on the course of events.

It speaks volumes for the change that has taken place in the European situation since last June that Germany has been spending so much time and energy in the effort to secure allies, even those who like Hungary are not likely to help the Axis more than they have aleady been doing. But it is easy to understand the motives behind this diplomatic activity.

With the British holding firm, despite the ravages produced by the German air force, the only possibility of an early Axis success lies in the severance of the British lifeline in the Mediterranean.

THE NATIONS that lie in the path of the contemplated German drive to the Near East are not large; none is powerful. But should any of them resist Germany would be faced by something which Hitler has desperately sought to avoid—a war on two fronts. That is why Hitler, who can be a very impatient individual, has taken his time in the Balkans.

Every step has been carefully considered before being acted on. First Rumania was allowed to be partioned and in the chaos that followed a government came into power in Bucharest which was willing and eager to do the Fuehrer's bidding. Then Hungary was compelled to make her gesture of obeisance to the "new order" by joining the Triple Alliance. This was needed to impress Hungary's neighbors. The signature of Rumania and possibly of Bulgaria to the Berlin agreement of last September may be only a matter of hours or days. In the meantime an effort has been made to insure Russia's continued neutrality if not her active cooperation.

That effort may have met with some success, although the fact that Premier Molotoff signed no formal agreement in Berlin suggests that whatever German-Russian understanding was reached was only tacit and temporary.

HITLER'S maneuvers do not appear to have impressed the Turks. The Ankara government and the Turkish press show no signs of weakening under the onslaught of Hitler's diplomacy. This may have its effect on Bulgaria, which has to consider the possibility, which Hungary could ignore, that if she joins the Axis she will become a battlefield. On the other hand, Hitler cannot afford to dally in the Balkans too long. Italy's sorry plight has become a danger to Germany as well as to her partner. And the path from German military concentration points in Rumania to Salonika is across Bulgaria. Bulgaria may have little choice but to submit to the Axis.

Despite the indifferent success which Hitler has had in the diplomatic sphere during these past two months, therefore, he is undoubtedly in a better position now then he was earlier to make his long-anticipated drive to the East. And that holds endless possibilities of trouble for Great Britain, whose forces are now divided between the home sector, Egypt and Greece.

Britain Increases War Risk Rates

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—The monthly premium on commodities under the government's war risk insurance program was raised yeterday from 5 shillings per £100 valuation to 7 shillings and 6 pence (an increase from 25 cents on each $100 valuation to 37.5 cents on each $100 for each month's insurance.)

The rate still is not as high as at the outbreak of war when, in anticipation of heavy bombings, the monthly charge was 10 shillings per £100 (50 cents for each $100 of insurance).

The rate, which is reviewed every three months, was reduced to 5 shillings last December and had not been changed until today.

Va. Power Merger Hearing Ordered

The Securities and Exchange Commission Wednesday ordered a public hearing on November 27, at its Washington offices, on the application and declaration under the holding company act regarding the proposed merger of Virginia Public Service Generating Co., the Hampton Towing Corp., the Harpers Ferry Paper Co., and Middle Virginia Power Co. into Virginia Public Service Co. The companies are all wholly owned subsidiaries of Virginia Public Service Co.

Virginia Public Service also proposes to redeem all its outstanding indebtedness and that of Virginia Public Service Generating, which will require $36,917,123.95, through the issuance and private sale of $28,000,000 of 3¾ per cent first mortgage bonds, series due 1970, and $8,500,000 of serial debentures. The company further plans to acquire $1,200,000 principal amount of its 5 per cent first mortgage and refunding 20-year gold bonds, series B, from Southeastern Electric & Gas Co.

Cudahy Defends Belgian Surrender

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—The surrender of King Leopold of Belgium, was defended last night by John Cudahy, United States Ambassador to Belgium, who contended the King had no alternative and had so advised the Allies.

Cudahy, in a Nation-wide broadcast said that for five days before the capitulation "the general staffs, both British and French, had been kept fully informed and had known that the Belgian army had no other course."

Fascist Hero Missing After Bombing Raid

Rome, Nov. 21 (U.P.).—Anxiety was expressed here over the fate of Ettore Muti, 38, former secretary of the Fascist Party and one of Italy's greatest war heroes, who is reported not to have returned to his air base after a bombing raid on Greece Monday.

Senators Delay Confirmation Of Millis, Madden

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt's two latest nominations—Dr. Harry A. Millis for the Labor Board and J. Warren Madden for the Court of Claims—faced at least a temporary delay Wednesday.

Chairman Thomas (Democrat) Utah, notified members of the Senate Labor Committee that Millis, Chicago economist and educator, would be called before that group before it gives expected approval and sends his name on to the Senate for action.

Senator Thomas polled members of the Labor Committee and reported that at least "one Senator was anxious to talk with Millis in person."

Senator Taft (Republican) Ohio, one of the minority members of the committee, said he favored immediate Senate confirmation for Millis.

Some informed Senators predicted that action on the Millis appointment might be held up until the Senate Judiciary Committee had acted upon the judicial appointment for Madden, former chairman of the Labor Board, whom Millis would succeed.

Draft 'Objector' Jailed in New York

New York, Nov. 21 (AP).—For refusing to register for selective service, Angelo Mongiore, 23-year-old janitor, was sentenced yesterday to 18 months in prison after being roundly scored by Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell.

Five times during a lengthy hearing Mongiore was offered a chance to reconsider and each time he held to his decision, which his attorney said was based on religious and conscientious grounds.

"This is my club. I'd rather play here than anywhere else."

Since they know they have grand times at the Boys Club of Washington, the 5,000 dues-paying members make full use of it.

At its Eastern, Central and Georgetown branches, the Washington Boys Club has places for boys to play and work. From its activities have emerged artists, doctors, dentists, special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and men in all the walks of life.

The Community Chest contribution of $64,000 a year supplements income from dues and endowments. Dues for boys range from $1 to $3 a year, but no boy is ever turned away because he hasn't the money.

Hearth Becomes Center of Interest in Decoration; Home Cheer Is Emphasized in Turbulent World

This usable fireplace arrangement is the heart of the living room. Two comfortable chairs can be pulled closer, while cobbler's table is convenient for snack that will be sure to appear. Lamps on tables flanking fireplace insure good light for reading, needlework and other pasttimes. On mantel is a pair of delightful ginger jars whose dominating color carries out theme in wild-life scene over mantel. Such arrangement will leave no Little Jack Horner alone by the fireside

Mary Haworth's Mail

Devoted Husband, Whose Wife Objects to His Breezy Attentions to Other Women, Asks: 'What Is Ideal Social Manner in This Day of Informality?'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have been happily married for six years and my wife is "all the world" to me. We have only one problem: A difference of opinion over what my wife calls my "overly enthusiastic social behavior," especially toward her women friends. She objects to this behavior—and she says it is not because of jealousy, nor because she wants to "cramp my style," but because she wonders if such demonstrations of affection are always understood by the other persons concerned.

Now, I like people and I want them to like me. But I don't want to lose my wife's respect. So I would like to know just what is considered the ideal social manner in this day of informality and free behavior. Your opinions will be much appreciated. Sincerely yours,

B. E. N.

DEAR B. E. N.: Innate reserve, emotional control or repose, and surface amiability are the chief ingredients of well bred behavior in company. It has always been so in civilized circles, and still is today. While I hear some talk of "free behavior" in adult society, I have never seen it generally practised—although now and again one does run across some man or woman at a social gathering who seems to think the way to win friends and influence people is to be cheerfully (AND obnoxiously) "extroverted."

I can well imagine that your wife's self-respect and pride in you would be somewhat disturbed by your "overly enthusiastic" demonstration of interest, admiration or affection for odd and sundry ladies met at parties. Her self-respect would be wounded for the reason that you make it appear, by your behavior, that she hasn't captured much of a prize in you—who can, to all appearances, be swept off your feet by almost any agreeable woman.

One of the subtle ways in which an intelligent man honors the woman he loves is by proclaiming, indirectly, through his actions, that no other woman compares with her, in his estimation. The man who goes about doling out affection (or its synthetic substitute) to many women, is properly suspect, in the eyes of the world, of being in love with none. Your wife senses this and is disappointed in your behavior. She isn't jealous; she knows you love her; but she wishes the world could be as sure as she is.

Every wife wants to be proud of her husband, and proud for reasons that the world can see and understand. She doesn't enjoy the position of having to defend him or his behavior from amused or skeptical eyes. A mature-minded wife wants her husband to have "social presence"—i. e., an air of reposeful assurance, of "power on leash," of fascinating and inviolable reserve. She is proud to see her husband, if he is such a man, "turning the heads" of other women with a gallant phrase, a courtly attention, or simply by his indefinable charm—so long as he has the grace and loyalty to keep HER spotlighted as his favorite. All really successful husbands do this, by instinct. So do the bachelors who "have a way with women."

I should guess that your behavior—as hinted at—is both inconsiderate (of your wife) and unbecomingly sophomoric. My advice to you is to act your age, letting your actions toward other women imply your profound devotion to your wife. In other words, be agreeable, attentive, responsive and appreciative in your surface manner toward them—but always with an undertone of complete impersonality. Reserve your "enth'siasm" for your wife—if you want her full approbation and the world's respectful good will.

How Divide Expenses Of College Week-End?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When a college student invites a girl to attend Homecoming Week at his school—to take in a football game, fraternity dances, etc.—in another State, who bears the expenses? The college I have in mind is in the Middle West, involving an overnight train journey, if I go. Would the young man pay my train fare and pullman? If so, shouldn't he send me the train and pullman tickets by mail before I start—rather than pay for them after I arrive?

This boy is partially working his way through college, and so am I. My father and mother also work, so that none of us have much money to spare for travel and entertainment. I am assuming the boy should—and will—pay my fare. But I want to be sure of what is correct. Please advise.

CAROL K.

Girl Pays Train Fare And Hotel Bill

DEAR CAROL K.: It is customary procedure, as well as "the correct thing," for a girl to pay her own traveling expenses, both ways, when accepting a college man's invitation for a campus week-end. Also, if she chooses to stay at a downtown hotel (or if this is the only available accommodation), she should be prepared to foot that bill, as well.

The young man's obligations include paying for her week-end's social entertainment, and providing her with free dormitory accommodations on or adjoining the campus—if such can be arranged, under proper chaperonage, with the school's cooperation. The fact that your own and your parents' funds are limited doesn't shift the financial burden to the boy's shoulders, in this instance. Most particularly not, since he, too, is working his way through school.

Scarf Needed With Fur Coat

Fur neckpieces and fur collars attached to winter coats are popular not only because they give warmth but because they are universally flattering. However, they often leave a darkish tinge on the neck after a few hours of wearing. A washable scarf worn next to the skin will prevent direct contact, and eliminate the danger of neck-smudging.

The triangular scarf, while still worn, has given way to the long, narrow scarf which can be looped nattily at the throat. Both types are to be found in many varieties of materials, and all the colors of the rainbow. It is very fashionable to have a number of them to match dresses, or hats, or accessories.

Today's Social Notes

(From The Truthtown Torch)

Simple Thanksgiving festivities were the order of the day yesterday among Truthtown socialities.

The Montague Stirrups entertained at breakfast at the Pink Hunting Jacket Club for their New York house guests, later driving into town for the luncheon given by Mrs. Bloomsbury Dasherwitt at the Hotel Rococco and for the cocktail party given by Mrs. Absinthe-Brown—Flitterjig in honor of visiting movie stars Beaufort Bliss and Maisie Meander and the eminent paleontologist, Dr. Erasmus Pincnez.

Mrs. Thornberry Flitt who dashed back by plane from Miami to spend the Thanksgiving holidays at home gave a dinner last night at the Hotel Swank and later took her guests to the Spanish Loft night club. "I consider it part of the American tradition to observe Thanksgiving at home," said Mrs. Flitt.

Mrs. Beetle's Thanksgiving

Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric dowager, solved the Thanksgiving dinner problem by mailing each of the relatives and friends she had been in the habit of entertaining at Thanksgiving, a $5 bill. "Go to a good restaurant and choose your own menu and eat in peace," she wrote on a card accompanying each bill.

"I wish I had had the sense to do such a thing 40 years ago," said Mrs. Beetle last night when asked about her unusual procedure.

The Clymer-Popinjay Feud

Mrs. Parvenu Popinjay scored sensationally over her social rival, Mrs. Roswell Clymer, Tuesday by changing her costume between courses at the dinner party she gave at the Hotel Swank prior to the Upper Crusters' Orange and Magenta ball. Appearing in an ensemble of green sequins with an ermine stole at the start of the dinner party, Mrs. Popinjay excused herself just before the salad was served to reappear in a gold lame gown with a mink muff.

Mrs. Clymer, who was also entertaining guests at dinner, was apparently unprepared for this coup and had to remain in her blue satin and silver lace, with accompanying diamond dog collar, throughout the evening.

Jottings

Mrs. Atterbury Artichoke has closed her Swiss chalet in nearby Virginia and is settling down in her town house for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Dachshund will come from their Irish castle in western Maryland to spend the winter at the Hotel Swank.

Mrs. Coxcomb Chisler has closed her French chateau near Philadelphia and will visit the Doolittle Dithertons at their Spanish hacienda near Harper's Ferry.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallingford Walrus and their daughter Mrs. Walrus Flounder, will leave soon for Palm Beach to open their Italian villa for the winter.

Fireplaces Now May Be Bought Ready for Use

By Martha Ellyn

Household Editor

The coming of the holiday season centers attention on the traditional hearth of the home. This year the fireplace seems more important than ever before, because the uncertainty of the world about us makes the security of our home dear to us. That is why interior decorators are striving especially to bring more cheer into the home and are emphasizing the fireplace as a focal point of interest.

Martha Ellyn

The fireplace has always been a cherished feature and traditional in the American home. It contributes more to the atmosphere of the home congeniality and comfort than any other decorative feature. Today the main purpose of the fireplace is for its added beauty and decorative value, since the modern home is equipped with a central heating system and cooking facilities.

Ready-Made Fireplaces

Many a person thinks that a home is not really complete without a fireplace. So great is the interest in fireplaces in homes today that if a house has not been constructed with one, they can be supplied by manufacturers who make ready-made ones.

A fireplace does convert a mere house into a real home, inviting home atmosphere. These ready-made fireplaces are furnished complete for use with gas or electric logs and heaters. All that is necessary is to strike a match or snap a switch, for they are built for adaptation to wood or coal-burning, gas or electricity.

Burning logs in a fireplace and gleaming andirons somehow draw us irresistibly to the cozy fireside. And fireside group arrangements of furniture always make a pretty picture. Furniture arrangement takes its cue from the tempo of the times, but it also goes along pretty much in the way of our social doings, too. Right now the home is meaning more to us. We are back to a visiting era, so we should decorate our homes to look inviting and hospitable at all times.

Drab Tones Ruled Out

As if to enter the spirit of the times, decorators have approved the soft tones of beautiful colors and ruled out the drab tones. Slip covers, too, have become an important part of decoration, because they can supply color and heighten the dramatic interest of the room. But slip covers, too, should be cut in the latest style, and not constructed according to an ancient vintage.

Fireside tables, too, can help to bring hospitality to the fireside, and it is a grand way to show off one's heirloom china and silver. Then, too, one's culinary accomplishments, like a luscious cake and coffee, or a cup of tea and sandwiches, or some other cup of cheer may be served at the fireside.

It will repay many times in cheer the dollars spent to build a fireplace in a new home or buy one of the attractive ready-built ones, to create the fireside scenes in the home. This is one way to bring color into the home as well as by using bright drapes, soft colored upholstery and other colorful notes.

A Woman's WASHINGTON

Council of Mothers Sees Movies Of 13-Inch Baby Weighing 1 Pound 6 Ounces

A YOUNG LADY clad only in an abdominal band proved the belle of the recent Council of Mothers and Babies' meeting at the Washington Hotel. She was Minnie, star of a motion picture presented by Dr. Stewart H. Clifford to illustrate his discussion of premature children. Born three months ahead of schedule, Minnie measured 13 inches and weighed 1 pound 6 ounces. As she curled comfortably in the hollow of a grown-up's hand, one woman in the audience murmured, "She isn't the type you yearn to cuddle." Nonetheless, everyone admitted that Minnie cried as lustily and stretched as thoroughly as any other baby. Her behavior, according to Dr. Clifford, refutes the theory that premature children lack pep.

As one of the smallest babies that ever lived, Minnie, of course, attracted considerable attention at the Boston Lying-in Hospital. Dr. Clifford said. So many visitors came to peek through the window of her incubator that the nurses put up a collection box, and Minnie, now 18 months old and the picture of health, is well on her way toward funds for a college education.

Theresa Bonney, famed woman photographer who recently returned from some breath-taking experiences in Europe, tells of how she got a striking picture of a Swedish cavalry drill. Concealing herself in a hedge, she waited until the galloping horses were almost upon her. Then she darted out in their path and snapped her shutter. The next instant the riders pulled up in panic, and she strolled on her way. . . . She secured her superb Russo-Finish War pictures, now on exhibit at the National Museum here, by displaying a similar amount of sheer nerve. She failed only once; officials at a field hospital refused to let her photograph the death throes of Finish soldiers.

Anne Custis Peter Makes Debut At Historic Tudor Place Mansion

One of Season's Most Brilliant Affairs, It Draws Several Hundred Members of Capital Area's Topflight Society to Famed Home

By Hope Ridings Miller

HISTORIC TUDOR PLACE, the magnificent dwelling to which Martha Parke Custis, granddaughter of Martha Washington, came in 1805, shortly after her marriage to Thomas Peter, yesterday was the scene of one of the outstanding debuts of the season.

The mansion that has remained in the Peter family for more than a century and a quarter and is now the home of Armistead Peter, jr., drew several hundred topflight Washingtonians to the fete at which Anne Custis Peter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Peter 3d, made her bow in society.

A setting for scores of brilliant parties, Tudor Place has a thrilling chapter all its own in the social history of Washington. It was there that Lafayette was entertained, in 1824, on his last visit to America; and it was there that the defeated Gen. Robert E. Lee was a guest in 1869. In decades since then virtually all the established families in town have been entertained there, and also many famous visitors.

The debut yesterday was the second that has gone on the calendar at Tudor Place. A number of guests in the gathering recalled that Miss Agnes Peter made her first bow there some years ago and that a company equally as distinguished as the one yesterday attended the party. Then, as at yesterday's tea, guests were drawn largely from the residential contingent.

Designed by Dr. William Thornton, Tudor Place, has long been considered one of the finest early Federal structures in Washington. Its interior presents a vista of spacious room, doors of curly maple, plater friezes and mantelpieces of marble that would do honor to a palace.

Flowers of every shade and description—sent to yesterday's debutante—lined the walls, brimmed from low bowls and sprouted in huge bouquets all over the first floor.

Wears Bouffant White Tulle

Standing with her mother to receive the long line of guests, Miss Peter was a fetching picture in a frock of white tulle, fashioned with puffed sleeves and a billowing skirt gathered in to a fitted bodice. Accents of silver on the taffeta slip glinted through the overfolds of the skirt and a bouquet of Camellias and forget-me-nots complete dthe costume.

"She looks exactly like a debutante ought to look," somebody in the throng whispered.

And she did. Furthermore, after shaking hands with severla hundred guests for almost two hours, she was still as animated, still as gracious as when the party began. Certainly no one glimpsing her pretty fact at any time during the fete would have guessed that a few hours earlier she had been in the throes of a college history quizz, which she barely finished in time to get to Washington for her party.

Four Friends Assist Debutante

Assisting the debutante were Mildred Dunn, daughter of Mr. four of her close friends—Miss and Mrs. William McKee Dunn, who will make her bow at a tea this afternoon; Miss Jessie Keuffmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kauffman, whose debut is scheduled for December 30; Miss Lorna Morley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Morley, formerly of Washington but now of Haverford, Pa., and Miss Ann Grant, of Chester Hill, Pa.

The tea table, centering the dining room, was lighted with tall tapers and decorated with a bouquet of roses. Among those who took turns at pouring were Mrs. Walter Peter, Mrs. G. Freeland Peter, Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Brooke Lee, Mrs. Wilder Baker, Mrs. Alan Kirk, Mrs. Selden Chapin, Mrs. William Flather and Mrs. Herbert Howard, formerly of Washington, but now of Philadelphia.

Still others assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr., Mrs. Bertram Long, Mrs. Richard Wilmer, Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall, Mrs. Noyes Lewis and Mrs. Russell Sard.

Miss Peter will be feted during the Christmas holidays at a dance at Grasslands, given by her parents. At home this time for only a brief stay, she will return to Bryn Mawr on Sunday.

Frelinghuysens Honor Guests At Dicks' Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Frelinghuysen, of New York, who are visiting the latter's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey, were guests of honor at a dinner given last night by Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick.

The Frelinghuysens had Thanksgiving turkey earlier in the day with Mrs. Arthur Woods. They have been friends for many years, and it was just a gathering of the two families at Mrs. Wood's home on N Street in Georgetown.

Hosts informally at a Thanksgiving luncheon yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken. They entertained 14, among their guests being Prof. and Mrs. Wesley Sturges, of New Haven, and Charles Murchison, of Jacksonville, Fla. Prof. and Mrs. Sturges returned yesterday afternoon to New Haven and will entertain a houseparty this weekend and see the Harvard-Yale game. Mr. and Mrs. MacCracken will be among their guests.

Brookes Fete Sen., Mrs. Austin

Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Brooke at the Brooke home in Georgetown. The hosts gave a dinner earlier in the week for the Austins.

The Vermont Senator and his popular wife have taken an apartment at the Shoreham for the season. Mrs. Austin will return Sunday evening to her home in Burlington, but after about two weeks there will be back in Washington for the winter.

MRS. ARTHUR WOODS asked friends in for tea at her house in Georgetown the other afternoon. The guest of honor was Mrs. Ronald McCrindle, better known as Susan Ertz, the author. Mrs. McCrindle looked most attractive in black, worn with a wide turquoise and gold necklace, while Mrs. Woods chose an afternoon frock of rose-red, lovely with her dark hair and eyes.

One couldn't find finer examples of that well-known "English complexion" than the alabaster and rose of several of Mrs. Woods' guests that day. There was Mrs. Nevile Butler, wife of the British Counselor of Embassy, whose hair is golden brown and whose eyes are real aquamarine; little Mrs. Pirie, wife of the British Air Attache, with white hair, pink cheeks and blue eyes, and golden-blonde Mrs. Pott, wife of Britain's Naval Attache, Admiral Herbert Pott. And last, but far from least, was Mrs. Coleridge Ertz, sister-in-law of the guest of honor, also English, of the gardenia-skin and light brown hair type.

MRS. ARTHUR KROCK, smart in plad tweeds, was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Alfred Hoyt Granger. Mrs. Granger has numerous friends in Washington who all delighted when she leaves her place in Connecticut for a visit in the Capital. Also dropping in during the afternoon for a chat with Mrs. McCrindle and her hostess were Mrs. McCrindle's brother, Coleridge Ertz, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Admiral Pott, Frank Vanderlip and Walter Prendergast.

WHAT WOULD you do if some friends promised to give you a whole pig from their farm and then promptly kept their word and there you were, alone with a pig ready for cooking? This is just what happened to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Culbertson the other day when David Williamson brought them a porker from the Williamson farm on the Eastern Shore.

The Culbertsons found the perfect solution. They gave a barbecue, and with only one day to prepare for it and invite the guests. Perhaps it is because Mr. Culbertson is in the State Department that he knew just what to do, and perhaps it is because Mr. Williamson is also a diplomat that the product of his farm behaved according to protocol and turned into a beautiful barbecue. But I'm more inclined to believe that the success of the occasion was due to soft-voiced Mrs. Culberton who pored over the Congressional Cook Book—appropriately enough, gotten up by the wives of Senators and government officials—and to members of the family, including Mrs. Culbertson's father, who dug a pit in the children's hedged-in play enclosure and turned the pig for hours over a charcoal fire. The weather also did its part and when the guests gathered round the feast on a perfect late afternoon they pronounced it more than delicious.

AMONG THOSE enjoying this unique party were the Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi, the former Ambassador to Chile, and Mrs. Culberton, brother and sister-in-law of the host, Mr. and Mrs. Loy Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Pell, Col. and Mrs. Betts, Mr. and Mrs. Francis de Wolf, Mrs. Leigh Hunt, the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Summerscale, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Merriam.

Helen Dolores Cofer to Become Bride of Paul James on Dec. 20

Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Cofer, of Shreveport, La., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Dolores Cofer, to Paul James, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. A. James, of Shawnee, Okla. Announcement of the betrothal was made known yesterday at a tea given by Miss Elizabeth McNeil, of 1948 Kalorama Road.

The wedding will take place December 20 at 8 p. m. in the National Baptist Memorial Church, with the Rev. Gove Johnson officiating. Miss Muriel Gerstenberger will be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will include the Misses Mary James, Margaret MacFarlane, Jane Sheets, Anne Murany, Elizabeth McNeil and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

James Crocker will be best man for Mr. James and the ushers will be Howard Rees, Ermes Knight, Homer Smith, Gordon Findley, Robert Thomas and Lloyd Lunch.

The prospective bride was graduated from Dodd College for Girls and attended Centenary College and George Washington University. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha national sorority. Mr. James was graduated from Oklahoma A. and M. College and is a member of the Farmhouse fraternity and of Alpha Zeta Agricultural fraternity. He is an associate agricultural economist for the Farm Credit Administration in Washington.

At her tea yesterday, Miss McNeil was assisted by members of the wedding party. The drawing room was decorated with bright-colored autumn flowers. Mrs. Gove Johnson, wife of the minister who will officiate at the ceremony, presided over the tea table, which was centered with bronze chrysantehmums flanked by bronze tapers.

Mrs. McLean Gives Holiday Luncheon

More Than 100 Attend Annual Thanksgiving Party at Friendship

As much a party of Washington Thanksgiving as turkeys are Mrs. Edward Beale McLean's annual luncheons on this holiday. Yesterday she entertained at a big affair for more than 100. Tables were set in the sun porch as well as in the dining room of Friendship.

Such well known figures as Ethel Barrymore and Lucius Beebe mingled with the distinguished members of official and diplomatic Washington at the party. Miss Barrymore was quietly dressed in a dark color. Hal Phyfe, famous photographer, was another out-of-towner present.

Miss McLean Helps Receive

Both the hostess and her daughter, Miss Evalyn Washington McLean, chose black for the party. Miss McLean's ensemble was set off with a handsome string of pearls, and her mother wore a large-brimmed hat throughout.

The sunlight streamed through the windows of Friendship as guests found their way to their places after having cocktails in the drawing room. The tables were centered with tall standards from which spilled masses of chrysanthemums in shades of yellow and orange. The cloths were of lace over yellow satin.

Ranking guests at the affair were were the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Espil, Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed and the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope. The Espils had with them Mme. Espil's debutante daughter, Miss Louise Stillwell. Both mother and daughter topped off their black frocks with silver fox jacnets. Mme. Procope was also in black.

Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, in town for the luncheon, was renewing old Washington friendships. Mrs. Doherty who spends most of her time in Florida nowadays, wore a sable jacket with her ensemble.

Loyal Democrats (like Senator Alben Barkley) mingled happily with such staunch Republicans as Mrs. Edward ("Dolly") Gann. Miss Anne Randolph, who was Mrs. Herbert Hoover's social secretary, was also in the throng. J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, whose social appearances are rare, chatted gaily with fellow guests.

Joseph Davies, recently named to head the plans for the first third-term inauguration in history, was accompanied by his handsome wife. She wore black with touches of sapphire blue to match her tocque.

Several There From the House

From the House of Representatives came Representative Sol Bloom, accompanied by his wife and Miss Vera Bloom. The latter was in a black and sand-colored outfit with a big black profile hat, and Mrs. Bloom had chosen a blueberry colored ensemble.

Also there from Capitol Hill were Representative Thomas C. Hennings, jr., Representative Patrick J. Boland and Representative Lawrence Lewis. The latter is from Denver, Colo., and describes Mrs. McLean as "one of his most distinguished constituents." He frequently attends parties at Friendship.

Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the Senator from Florida, wore black relieved with a sky-blue jacket. Senator Joseph Guffey was accompanied by two of his three sisters, the Misses Ida and Pauletta Guffey. Mrs. William Borah, beloved widow of the late Senator, was present, wearing an unusual gold necklace with her frock, and a black and gold toque.

Mrs. C. Mathews Dick chose black for both hat and gown, accented with a handsome topaz pin. Miss Stellita Stapleton was in beaver brown with furs to match.

Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis were present. From State Department circles came Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wilson and George T. Summerlin, Chief of Protocol. Mrs. Noyes Lewis, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, former Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham and Mrs. George Marye were there, as were Senator and Mrs. William King, Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Miss Mabel Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tumulty, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith are spending two weeks in New Orleans as the guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Neugass.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kulman, of Atlanta, Ga., are in Washington for a brief visit.

About the Town

DUDLEY HARMON

Though Congress seems to have gone into session for perpetuity—can you remember when members last had a holiday?—very few of the Congressional wives have been around since early last summer. Most took off for their homes at the first sign of hot weather, and there they've been ever since, some helping their husbands in the recent campaign.

Returning to Washington December 17 is tall, dark and handsome Mrs. Warren Barbour, one of the most attractive of Senatorial wives. She will open her home here in time for Christmas. Mrs. Barbour, whose husband defeated James Cromwell in New Jersey, was very active in the campaign. Their oldest daughter, Elysabeth, is one of the most popular debutantes of the season, and was presented at a dance last June in the Larz Anderson house. Mrs. Barbour looks far too young to have a grown-up daughter, but then she was married when only 18.

WITH THE Barbours for the duration of the war is a little Irish cousin. She has been at their New Jersey place and will accompany them to Washington. The child's mother, Mrs. Roland Byers, of Belfast, is also in this country. Mrs. Byers possesses all the wit and charm for which Irish women are famous. She will come to Washington to spend the last two weeks of December with Mrs. Barbour's sister, Mrs. Sidney Lee, of Georgetown. With Mrs. Casimir de Rahm, of New York, Mrs. Byers stopped here briefly early this week en route by motor to the South.

MRS. LEE went to New York yesterday and from there will board a train for Chicago. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Hayden Harris, formerly of that city, and now of Leesburg, Va. (The Harrises, incidentally, have a large menagerie, with everything from birds to monkeys, on their Virginia place).

Returning to Washington the first of next month, Mrs. Lee will be joined by her cousin, Architect Robert M. Carrere and Mrs. Carrere. Mr. Carriere was on duty here in the last war and the the couple have loads of friends in the Capital. Mrs. Lee's father, the late John Carrere, was also an architect, and a famous one. The New York Public Library is one of the famous buildings he left behind him.

THAT WELL-KNOWN editor from Emporia, Kans., William Allen White, was in town earlier this week. Another Kansan, J. C. Nichols, organized a large men's dinner in his honor. Mr. Nichols, a real estate magnate, is one of the dollar-a-year men serving under William S. Knudsen. Among those at the dinner were high ranking Army and Navy officials, headed by Chief of Staff Marshall, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, and several members of the Defense Commission.

Mr. White, who is traveling up and down the land in the interests of his Aid the Allies Committee, gave a brief talk after the dinner. He pointed out that while we build for war, we must also realize that peace will come afterward, and build for that, too.

Defense bigwigs will be guests of honor at a dinner to be given November 27 by Edward Stettinius.

THE MANY FRIENDS of Mrs. Jerauld Wright, of Annapolis, will be glad to hear she is coming to Washington shortly to spend two weeks.

SIDNEY KENT is happy because after several false starts, his cousin, Mrs. Van Keller, is finally arriving today from Europe on the Excalibur. With her husband, whom she married last April in Venice, the former Barbara Kent originally planned to come here several months ago. An attack of appendicitis obliged her to rush back to Zurich for an operation. They were then scheduled to sail in October, and the family here prepared a gala welcome in New York. But they were detained mysteriously at the Spanish border. Just the other day a cable came saying the couple had finally sailed.

Ellen Cochrane Wed to Branson

The wedding of Miss Ellen Dorothea Cochrane, daughter of Mrs. William Barnhardt Cochrane and the late Mr. Cochrane, to Albert Edward Branson, son of Capt. Taylor Branson, former leader of the United States Marine Band, and Mrs. Branson, took place yesterday morning at 10. The Holy Comforter Church was the scene of the wedding, at which the Rev. Edward J. A. Nestor officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Barnhardt Cochrane. She wore a gown of ivory satin with a train of French Alencon lace and a tulle veil which fell from a tiara of Venetian lace. She carried white orchids, gardenias and valley lilies.

Miss Margaret Himmelberg was maid of honor and Miss Ellen Branson, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. They were dressed in salmon pink and dusty blue and wore plumes in their hair. Their flowers were arranged in the form of old-fashioned nosegays. James Taylor Branson was best man for his brother, and the ushers were James Cochrane, the bride's brother; Andrew Mahoney, cousin of the bridegroom, and Leo M. Allman.

A reception at the Admiral Club followed the ceremony. After a honeymoon the couple will live in Arlington. As her going away costume, the bride chose a cerise ensemble trimmed with mink.

Helen Morley, W. A. Rafferty Are Wed Here

Shrine of Sacred Heart Scene of Ceremony; Honeymoon in Chicago

Chrysanthemums and palms were banked around the altar of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart for the wedding yesterday morning at 9 of Miss Helen Genevieve Morley to William A. Rafferty. The Rev. Ronald Fannon officiated.

The bride chose satin in an eggshell shade for her gown, which was fastened with a sweetheart neckline and a hoop skirt which fell into a long train. Her face veil was held by a tiara of orange blossoms and a gardenia cluster ornamented her white prayerbook, from which hung lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her cousin, Matthew F. Morley.

Mrs. Sheahan Matron of Honor

Mrs. Patrick F. Sheahan, of Wilmington, Del., was matron of honor. Her powder blue taffeta frock had a long flared skirt and a matching jacket trimmed with embroidery and sequins. Her blue veil fell from a tiara of velvet petals and she carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Phillip J. Carroll was best man and the ushers were James Francis McCarthy and Daniel F. Kelliher. A reception for relatives and close friends at the Continental Hotel followed the ceremony. Mrs. Nellie F. Morley, mother of the bride, wore plum crepe with a gardenia corsage. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Frank Rafferty, formerly of Rockford, Ill., now of Clarendon, Va., was gowned in black with a cluster of gardenias.

To Make Home On Monroe Street

When Mr. and Mrs. Rafferty left for a honeymoon in Chicago, the bride wearing a soldier blue costume with wine accessories. They will make their home at 170 Monroe Street here. Mr. Rafferty is a graduate of Beloit Universtiy, Beloit, Wis., and a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen and Miss Florence May Allen, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Mrs. John Gavin and Miss Nancy Gavin, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Catherine Witherell, of Baltimore; Harvey Witherell, of New York, and Patrick F. Sheahan, of Wilmington, Del.

Woman Maps Drive On Chilean Illiteracy

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

An attack on illiteracy and the problem of unemployment in Chile, inspired by the women's organizations of the country, was described by Senora Maria de Gonzalez-Vera, who is now in the United States on an exchange fellowship under the terms of the Convention for the Promotion of Cultural Relations, ratified by this country and eight Latin-American republics.

Senora de Gonzalez-Vera, who is studying at Columbia University in New York, has been in Washington to confer with officials at the United States Office of Education and expects to return here in February to spend several weeks in research. She has been commissioned by the Secretary of Education under the administration of the new Chilean President, Aguirre Cerdo, to set up a program of adult education on her return to Chile in June.

Survey Showed 30% Illiteracy

This constructive effort is the result, she said, of a survey initiated by 16 women's organizations cooperating under the name of the Movement for the Emancipation of Women in Chile. Senora de Gonzalez-Vera and another Chilean woman who had studied in the United States, directed the survey in which 100 women in all parts of the country assisted. At the end of it graphs were made revealing the need of revision of the nation's educational policy and showing 30 per cent illiteracy, she said.

After the election the graphs were presented to the new administration as a statement on the condition of the country when it came into power. Steps were promptly taken to do something about it.

The survey carried on by the women was a thorough one, she said. It showed that although Chile is an agricultural country, there were only 300 studying agriculture, as compared to 3,600 in mining, engineering and 48,000 in the liceo (comparable to our junior colleges) preparing to continue their education in medicine, law or engineering. The result was such overcrowding in the professions that men trained in them had to turn to other work for which they were untrained, she continued.

It also was found that many girls did not attend school at all; that of the 100,800 boys who entered the primary classes only 4,800 finished the sixth grade, and of the 19,000 girls enrolled only 5,600 remained up to the sixth grade.

Adult Education Program Planned

Although Chile has good social legislation, much of it is not enforced, said Senora de Gonzalez-Vera. The adult education program to be set up will provide vocational training in agriculture and in other fields in which there is need of workers. It also will include the "three R's" to reduce the percentage of illiteracy, she said. The girls will be taught cooking, sewing, child care and given other training which will equip them to be intelligent, useful citizens. It is in this phase of the program that Senora de Gonzalez-Vera is particularly interested.

She is now on leave of absence from a progressive school in Santiago where she is a teacher. There an effort is made to develop the conception of social service.

"It is a social duty to help the group in which we live" is the motto she has on the wall. At the Christmas season all the girls of her school go to the hospitals and sew for the children's ward.

Not only in her school but in each Liceo, the students contribute from 10 to 20 cents a week and the teachers 3 per cent of their salaries to a welfare fund. Each school also helps the primary grades connected with it, providing breakfast for the children from poor families. The pupils bring money or, once a month, stable foods.

This education is in harmony with emphasis on service as a responsibility of citizenship in Chile today, she said.

Heads Sigma Kappa Province

Mrs. Harlow C. McCord, 2927 Northampton Street, president of the local alumnae chapter of Sigma Kappa Sorority, who has recently been appointed president of this province. In addition to the alumnae groups the province includes the active chapters at George Washington University, Maryland University, where Beta Zeta Chapter, formed last April, is the newest in the national organization; Randolph-Macon Women's College and Duke University. Beta Zeta Chapter has 20 members and 13 pledges and Zeta Chapter, at G. W. U., has 25 members and also 13 pledges. There are about 300 in the local alumnae group

Delta Delta Delta Sorority to Mark 52d Anniversary

The Washington Alliance of Delta Delta Delta Sorority and the active chapter at Maryland University, will join Wednesday night in the celebration of the fifty-second anniversary of the society with a banquet at the Sulgrave Club at 7:30. Miss Katherine Lenroot, of the Children's Bureau, and Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, of the Civil Service Commission, will be guests of honor.

The founder's day message will be read by Mrs. James S. Hathcock, president of the alliance, and the Maryland chapter members and pledges will be introduced by Miss Edwina Hambleton, chapter president. Mrs. Joseph B. Grigsby, former national president, will act as master of ceremonies.

Takoma Singers Plan Concert For British Relief on Dec. 11

Choral Group of Women's Club to Give Program at Foundry Methodist Church Under Sponsorship of Women's Welsh Unit

A concert for the benefit of British War Relief will be presented at the Foundry Methodist Church on Sixteenth Street, December 11, by the Choral Group of the Takoma Park Women's Club under the sponsorship of the Women's Welsh Club of Washington.

Announcement of this program adds another to the list given each year by this organization as a voluntary contribution to philanthropic work of various kinds.

The chorus was formed nine years ago, and among the 20 who comprise it now, eight original members are still active. These include Mrs. Edmund L. Green, who has been director during that period; Mrs. Waldo Schmitt is the accompanist, Mrs. L. S. Conger, president, and Mrs. Arthur Oehm, secretary.

There are no dues and neither the director nor the accompanist receives remuneration for her services. The members rehearse each Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Green, 107 Tulip avenue, Takoma Park, and attend regularly just for the love of singing, says their director.

Preparation of programs for community benefits gives them a goal toward which to work. The group sang last Sunday at the Cleveland Park Community Congregational Church, giving a program to raise funds for the organization of a choir at the church which has formerly had only a quartet. It has given concerts at St. Elizabeths Hospital, the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church and filled many other engagements at the invitation of various groups.

In the membership are several singers who are professional soloists in churches, but the only requirement for joining is to enjoy singing, to be willing to study and to attend rehearsals regularly.

The choral group is now a separate section of the club. Members, in addition to the officers are: Mrs. Paul Burk, president of the club; Mrs. Erwin L. Clark, Mrs. T. David Gates, who is also director of the mother singers of the Parent-Teacher Congress; Mrs. Russell Ridgway, Mrs. Thomas Slowie, Mrs. Richard Sauer, Mrs. Ernest Crandall, Mrs. Alma Fisher, Mrs. Arthur Tabbutt, Mrs. Rose Wisner, Mrs. James Burch, Mrs. G. C. Walker, Mrs. Ralph Grant, Mrs. D. Stewart Patterson, Mrs. G. E. Stone and Mrs. W. W. Swett.

Mrs. Tyler, Editor of Blue Moon, Kept By Illness From Poetry Festival Here

A PERSON whose presence was missed during the sessions of the poetry festival at the Arts Club this week was Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, editor of "Blue Moon," poetry magazine.

Mrs. Tyler, past president of the District Branch of the League of American Pen Women and former chairman of the poetry group of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, has been a leading spirit in the plans for the poetry festival with Dr. Charles Edward Russell, of the Arts Club, for several years. Their work has not only encouraged poets and wider interest in poetry in the District but throughout the country. This was evidenced by the large number of entries received each year from distant States and the fact that one of the winners this season was a resident of Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Tyler has been confined to her home by illness since late summer and, although she is improving is still unable to be up and around. One of the hardest things she has to do is to be quiet, says Mattie Richards Tyler, associate editor of "Blue Moon," who has been doing double duty during her illness. Miss Tyler, although she bears the same name is not a relative of Mrs. Tyler.

PLAN HOSTELS—Next summer, all those from 4 years to 94 who enjoy the outdoors and like to travel by foot, bicycle, horseback or canoe, may plan such outings at low cost, members of the Zonta Club were told at their meeting Wednesday.

Charles Harris, executive secretary, of the Middle Atlantic Council of American Youth Hostels, Inc., showed a motion picture and explained to the Zontans the plan to open a chain of hotels from Washington to Cumberland, Md., following the Potomac River.

LATIN-AMERICAN MEMBER—Nu Chapter of Kappa Beta Pi at George Washington University added a distinguished Latin-American woman to its roster this week, when it made Senorita Magdalena Pena de Sallas, of Argentina, an associate member.

She is the second South American Woman to be initiated into the national organization of Kappa Beta Pi women's legal sorority, the other being Bertha Lutz, noted Brazillian attorney and member of parliament.

Senorita de Sallas is a graduate of the University of Buenos Aires and is a member of the staff of Senora de Martinez Guerrero, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women. She is no wstudying penal institutions in this country.

GIVE CANTEEN—The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution has recently contributed, through the American Red Cross, a mobile canteen unit for immediate use in bringing emergency food supplies to civilians in the areas devastated by air raids in Britain.

This gift was presented through the Maryland State Society and is in memory of Capt. Julius Dick, A. E. F.

REPORT STUDIES—The Montgomery County League of Women Voters will meet at Bethesda Women's Club, Old Georgetown and Seneca Roads, for its November program next Friday.

Chairmen of various study groups will report what the groups have been finding about national health, Maryland income tax and Montgomery County. Mrs. James Parker Nolan, leader of the National Health group, will make a special report on its findings.

BRIDGE LUNCHEON—The Junior Alliance will have a bridge luncheon at the Fairfax Hotel on Wednesday, at 12:30 p. m. The proceeds will be given to charity. The club has been contributing to a local school for underprivileged children.

Mrs. Wyrty Post Baker, chairman of ways and means, has charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. W. Jeffries Lank, and Mrs. Albert Wendell Davis.

Catholic Courts Plan Receptions

Receptions honoring new members are scheduled in the near future by several courts of the Catholic Daughters of America. They will be held at Court Caton, Catonville, and Court Archbishop Curley, Gaithersburg, on Sunday. Court Forest Glen, Silver Spring, and Court Annapolis and Court Bishop Carroll, at Annapolis, on December 8; and Court Carroll at Baltimore, December 10.

A reception of 20 new members was held by Court Our Lady of Lourdes, Bethesda, on Wednesday, at the Chevy Chase Women's Club. Four members were received for Court District of Columbia.

Mrs. Norbertine Overbolt, Grand Regent and her officers, exemplified the first degree of the initiation ceremony, and was assisted with the second degree by Miss Katherine Ruppert, Grand Regent of Court District of Columbia, and the officers of that court.

Guest speakers on the program were the Right Rev. Msgr. Joseph M. Nelligan, chancellor of the archdiocese of Baltimore and Washington, and Director of the Catholic Recreational Center in Baltimore; Miss Florence M. Winter, National Chairman of the Convert League; and Miss Margaret J. Buckley, Maryland State Regent.

First Lady Sponsor Benefit on Dec. 6

Mrs. Roosevelt heads the list of sponsors for a benefit being given for the Highlander School at Monteagle, Tenn., on December 6 at Pierce Hall.

The program will consist of a symphonic poem, "They Hanged Him on a Tree," by Katherine Garrison Chapin (Mrs. Francis Biddle). This poem was given at the Lewisohn Stadium in New York last summer.

Archibald MacLeish, the librarian of Congress, will give a reading of his poems, and there will also be a group of American folk songs sung by Allan Lomax and Zylphia Horton.

Other sponsors will be Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Harold Ickes, Mr. and Mrs. John Carmody, Mr. and Mrs. Corrin Strong, Mr. and Mrs. John Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Geyer, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Kathryn Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Benham Baldwin.

The local committee in charge is composed of Mrs. Malcolm Ross, Mrs. Clifford Durr, Mrs. Michael Straight, Miss Mary Price Charles Handy, Miss Elizabeth Webb and Mrs. Charles Collier.

Hood College Club To Hold Luncheon

Miss Helen D. Bragdon, dean of Hood College and Miss Mary Grace Helfenstein, alumnae secretary, will be guests of honor and speakers tomorrow at the annual Thnaksgiving luncheon of the Hood College Club of Washington.

The luncheon will be held at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women at 1:15 after the luncheon, members will play bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Downs have cards out for an "at home" on Monday, November 25 from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Relief Board Budget Cut 10 Per Cent

Prince Georges Program Allots Only $261,829 For Next Year

The budget of the Prince Georges County Public Welfare Board for 1941 has been cut by more than 10 per cent, it was learned yesterday. Only $261,829 has been allotted for next year as against the present year's $293,740.

The cut will be felt in the allotment for aid to dependent children, where a reduction from $92,070 to $78,675 will be made. Because of the reduction, a waiting list of families eligible for aid has been made necessary, officials said. As the approaching winter season always brings out more requests, the list is expected to increase materially.

It is expected that a request will be made to the State welfare department to attempt to obtain additional funds.

'Santa Claus Lane' Plans Abandoned

Because of the prohibitive cost, the Hyattsville Business Men's Association has abandoned its plans for a "Santa Claus Lane" through the business district of the town. Instead, a concerted egort will be made to have all merchants decorate the fronts of their establishments individually.

A report by Frank Hawkins, an electrician member of the association, showed that to arrange the kind of display which the group desired would involve a cost of more than $2,000.

By next year the organization feels that it will be in a better position to undertake the more pretentious program. Hawkins volunteered to inspect all Christmas decorations of the member businesses for fire hazards.

Announcement was also made that three new members were admitted at the last meeting, Lochner's Radio & Sound Service, Arcade Beauty Shop, and Dickey Bros.

Selective Service Quota Filled by Volunteers

Selective Service Board No. 3 of Prince Georges County, located in Marlboro, announced yesterday that its quota of three men was filled entirely with volunteers.

Karl Michael Korn, 26, of 30 Otway Avenue, Capitol Heights, volunteered before the order numbers had been made known, F. L. Augustine, chairman of the board, said. He is a hotel worker and was given order No. 182.

The other two volunteer selectees are Thomas Nelson Windsor, 26, of Croome, who held order No. 1856, and Lawrence Sylvester Jackson, 30, colored, of 811 Belmont Avenue, Farmount Heights, who is order No. 757. Windsor operates his father's farm and Jackson is a laborer.

There were several other volunteers who were not needed to meet the quota for this call, Augustine said, adding that he hoped to have enough volunteers to fill each call without having to draft anyone.

Only Board No. 1, in Hyattsville, has yet to make its selections, but an announcement is expected today.

Fire Volunteers Seek Blanket Draft Exemption

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 21 (AP).—An effort to secure a blanket draft exemption for Wicomico County's volunteer firemen will be made by the Firemen's Association, on grounds their services are indispensable.

A meeting of the volunteers' organization voted to appeal to local draft boards for deferred classification for all firemen; if the boards feel this would be impossible, the association decided, exemptions would be asked for all ranks from chief to drivers.

Eleven companies are members of the county association.

Building and Loan Supervision Is Advocated by Md. Council

State League Indorses Proposed Legislation To Eliminate Unsound Associations; Would Pave Way to Insurance of Shares

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21.—Adoption of a supervisory law governing Maryland building and loan associations was advocated today in a report compiled by the Legislative Council's research division.

"In Maryland," the report asserted, "building and loan associations have . . . played a very important part in . . . home financing, but the depression caused so many failures and such a great loss that public confidence was greatly impaired.

"It has yet to be regained for the business as a whole in Maryland," the report continued. "In order to save the State associations it would appear necessary to adopt a supervisory law.

"This would accomplish two purposes . . . It would restore public confidence by eliminating from the business unsound associations. In the second place it would make it possible for associations which desire to do so to insure their shares.

"Unless something is done to stop the present trend, it would appear that a few years hence only the associations which are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank will survive."

The report said ever since the late Gov. Ritchie's administration building and loan supervisory bills have been introduced in the Legislature, but none has ever passed.

"The Maryland League of Building Associations represents approximately 150 of the associations in Maryland," the report declared, "and its preparation and indorsement of legislation for supervision . . . gives an indication of the attitude of a substantial number of building and loan officials in Maryland."

The report said "It seems desirable" to establish a separate building and loan department under the control of a full-time supervisor, who has had previous building-loan experience. There also should be an advisory board with limited appellate jurisdiction, the report added.

The report said the "more modern tendency" is for a board composed of five members and a supervisor, all appointed by the Governor.

Police Station Flag at Half-Staff Today for F. L. Ach

Flags over all police station houses will be flown at half-staff today in honor of Policeman Frank L. Ach, Tenth Precinct, who died at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday. He was 39.

Doctors said the patrolman suffered a heart disorder. It is believed, however, the officer's condition was weakened by gunshot wounds suffered in a running battle with holdup men in 1926.

Ach was shot three times in the abdomen in the fight which took the life of his partner, Leo W. K. Busch. The shooting occurred at New Hampshire Avenue and Upshur Street Northwest, and the gunmen, Samuel Morino, Nichols Eagles and John Proctor were later electrocuted.

Ach was taken sick about a month ago and after two weeks at Doctors Hospital, was transferred to Walter Reed.

Funeral services will be held at Hines funeral home, Monday at 1:30 p. m. He will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery.

Methodist Laymen Will Hold Retreat At Frederick

Several hundred churchmen from the District, Maryland and four counties of West Virginia, will attend the Methodist laymen's retreat tomorrow at Calvary Methodist Church, Frederick, Md.

Bishop Edna Wright Leonard, local Methodist resident prelate; Mayor Howard Jackson, Baltimore, and Charles V. Adams, prominent Methodist of Montoursville, Pa., will headline the speakers' program. The underlying theme of the meeting will be "Stewardship," according to D. Stewart Patterson, lay leader of the Baltimore Conference.

Among the topics to be discussed will be church benevolences, sound financial systems, publicity and promotion, brotherhoods, Bible classes, official boards and evangelism. It is part of a conference-wide laymen's movement, which is linked to the church-wide program.

Methodist Group Meets Tomorrow In Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Nov. 21.—More than 200 Methodist laymen from Maryland, the District of Columbia and four counties of West Virginia will attend the Methodist Laymen's Retreat, to be held in Calvary Methodist Church Saturday.

Bishop Adna W. Leonard, resident bishop, Washington; Mayor Howard W. Jackson, Baltimore, and Charles V. Adams, banker, Montoursville, will be among the speakers.

"The underlying theme of our meeting," according to D. Stewart Patterson, conference lay leader of the Baltimore Methodist Conference, "is stewardship. Among the various topics to be discussed are church benevolences; sound financial systems; publicity and promotion; work of brotherhoods, Bible classes and official boards, and evangelism."

Mrs. Mary Young, Native of N. Y., Dies in Arlington

Mrs. Mary E. Young, 72, widow of Samuel Young, died yesterday at the home of Dr. Charles Kincheloe, 6030 Lee Highway, Arlington, after an illness of more than two years.

Born in Orange County, N. Y., Mrs. Young was formerly house mother at George Washington University and Garfield Hospitals in Washington.

She leaves four daughters, Mrs. Ellsworth Jones and Mrs. Irvin M. Quigg, both of Arlington; Mrs. Evelyn Sweeney, of Garfield Hospital, and Mrs. Morgan S. Gassman of Washington.

Barrier Cuts Off Conduit Road Village

Bon Air Heights Dispute Also Spoils Thanksgiving Day For Land's Owner

Residents of a portion of Bon Air Heights, a small community on Conduit road near the District Line in Maryland, were without an outlet to the road yesterday and the Walter J. Bonfields had to forego a Thanksgiving trip because of a boundary dispute.

Acting upon advice of his attorney, Donald Bowie, jr., Bonfield had erected a barrier Wednesday on Elm roadway, which Bonfield claims has been built on his property. Neighbors tore the barrier down Wednesday night after county police had been called.

Bonfield then erected a stronger barrier with posts sunk into the ground and bearing red lights and a sign advertising: "Private Property—No Trespassing." The Bonfields closed their gasoline station yesterday but had to remain at home to guard their barrier and sign.

Built 10 Years Ago

According to Bonfield, the county built the roadway entirely within the confines of his property some 10 years ago. At that time he was renting the property and took no action. Last April he bought the property, the rear of which extends several feet past the road in several places, and decided to clear up the matter. The change in the road probably was due to the hilly nature of the terrain, which would have caused a much more expensive fill if it had been located on the line of dedication, he said.

County engineers first told him he "was up against a stone wall," but later when his attorney was present, attempted to get him to sell the road site, Bonfield said. He refused to sell, however.

Later, by instruction of his attorney, Bonfield placed a barrier and sign across the road. Wednesday night persons who live further in on the road tore down his barrier and then when county police were called, again tore the barrier down, Bonfield said.

Police Fail to Act

The county policemen made no effort to halt the tearing down of the barrier, Bonfield said.

Surveys both by a private surveyor and the county surveyor clearly show that the road is on his land, Bonfield asserted.

"I asked the officers if they were going to permit private property to be destroyed and they said their sergeant had said it was all right to tear down the barrier if the road had been in use more than eight years," Bonfield declared. "Apparently they did not know the Maryland law requires 20 years' use by the public. I did not feel that the policemen are a lawmaking body so I have replaced the barrier upon advice of my attorney."

WPA Approves New Projects in Old Dominion

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—WPA expenditures have been authorized to continue the employment of 22,083 persons as of November 13, State WPA headquarters announced today.

The largest number of workers, 9,331, will be employed on highway, road and street projects.

The list of new authorizations included:

Rockingham County, $18,695, for maintenance and operation of sewing rooms.

Pulaski, Montgomery, Botetourt, Rockbridge and Augusta Counties, $11,752 for barberry eradication.

Galax, Grayson and Carroll Counties, $9,940 for street improvement and construction.

Mrs. J. B. Dennis, Admiral's Wife, Dies at Her Home

Mrs. John B. Dennis, wife of Rear Admiral J. B. Dennis, of the United States Navy Medical Corps (retired), died yesterday after a brief illness at her home at the Westchester Apartments.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Fort Myer Chapel followed by burial in Arlington National Cemetery. Chaplain R. D. Workmen, United States Navy, will conduct the services.

Mrs. Dennis was born at Old Point Comfort, Va. Surviving, besides her husband, is a sister, Mrs. Julia F. Cook, of Westbrook, Conn. Prior to his retirement in 1938, her husband was president of the Navy Medical Retirement Board.

Maryland Women Democrats In Hot Fight on Leadership

Rebels Would Oust Mrs. McFadden as State Chairman

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 21.—Maryland's lady Democrats were tangled tonight in a red hot political battle for leadership of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland, which opens its annual convention here a week from tomorrow.

At issue was a move to oust Mrs. Frances E. McFadden of Mt. Rainier, chairman of the clubs for the last two years. Insurgents announced a complete slate of officers would be offered in opposition to the administration ticket.

Normally, recommendations of the committee on nominations is approved almost automatically, club sources said.

Mrs. McFadden's opponents are backing Mrs. Harry H. Duvall of Baltimore, former chairman, and currently executive secretary of the State board of hairdressers and beauty culturists.

"My old friends want me to go back," Mrs. Duvall said today, announcing she was a candidate for Mrs. McFadden's post.

Interest in the campaign is evidenced, members said, by a rush of member organizations to pay up dues and qualify their delegates to vote at the annual election of officers.

With 91 clubs affiliated—an increase of 31 during Mrs. McFadden's two-year regime, the organization claims a membership of approximately 20,000 women throughout the State.

124 Children Born in Month In Arlington

BUREAU OF THE POST
Arlington, Va., Tel. OXford 0509.

Report of the Arlington County health department reveals that a total of 47 cases of communicable disease were discovered there in October.

During the month there were 124 births, of which 109 occurred in Washington hospitals, the remaining 15 in the county.

The semiannual program of Schick tests and toxoid treatments conducted in the county public schools was started during October. This work is under Dr. Robert B. Crichton, school physician.

The report shows that the school dentist, Dr. W. H. Pumphrey, examined 300 school children and made 296 dental corrections during the month.

Dr. Norbert Melnick, chief sanitary inspector, reported three dairies inspected during the month, 60 cows given the tuberculin test, and 217 food inspections made.

Maj. Brown to Talk On Boys' Club Value

As a boost to the movement for establishment of a boy's camp in Arlington County, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Washington police, will deliver an illustrated lecture on value and activities of the Washington Police Boys Club tonight at 8 o'clock in the Washington Golf and Country Club.

The meeting, sponsored by the Arlington Monarch Club, which is leading the movement for the camp, will be open to the public.

Dr. Fifer Renamed President of Lord Fairfax Club

Dr. Carson L. Fifer has been re-elected president of the Lord Fairfax Club for the second successive year. New officers are Harry C. Armstrong, first vice president; Dr. John A. Sims, secretary; Arthur C. Stickley, secretary, and M. H. Burchell, treasurer.

New members of the board of trustees are Richard M. Wright, F. Blair Swart, William C. Coakley and Arthur Clarendon Smith.

The new officers will be installed at the annual Founders' Day banquet, to be held tomorrow night at 6:30, in the clubhouse on the Mount Eagle estate, 1 mile south of Alexandria. More than 100 members are expected to attend the dinner, which will be followed by a dance and midnight supper.

J. Randall Caton, Alexandria attorney, will be the guest speaker at the dinner. Charles Henry Smith will be master of ceremonies.

Ohio State Alumni Fete

Dr. Howard Landis Davis, recently named president of Ohio State University, will be guest of honor December 3 of the Ohio State Alumni Association at a dinner meeting in the Kennedy-Warren. Carl R. Arnold, president of the local club, is completing arrangements.

Dance in Arlington

The Arlington County Young Democratic Club will sponsor a Thanksgiving dance at the Arlington Village ballroom, 2508 Columbia Pike, tomorrow night. Dancing at 10.

WPA Lists Conservation Work in Md.

Two Fish Hatcheries, Four Dams Included In 5-Year Record

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 21.—A variety of conservation projects, including two fish hatcheries with fingerling capacities of 1,275,000 annually, were listed by State WPA Administrator F. H. Dryden today in a five-year summary of WPA activities in the State.

The hatcheries were sponsored by the State Inland Game and Fish Commission, which is now operating them.

Other conservation work listed in the report, which covers the period from 1935 to June 30, 1940, included construction of four conservation, flood and erosion control dams, more than 100 miles of fire-breaks in timber areas, and a number of levees, retaining walls and bulkheads.

WPA workmen built more than 7,000 linear feet of levees and embankments under local sponsorship, Dryden reported, and completed some 4 miles of bulkheads and 20 miles of retaining walls and revetments in various sections of the State.

About 8 miles of river banks and shore line were improved, the report stated, plus some 22 miles of streamed.

Dryden said his figures did not include projects incomplete as of June 30. Some, including the Cushwa trout-rearing ponds in Washington County, have been completed since then and other conservation work started, he explained.

The State administrator emphasized that all of the work was initiated and sponsored by State or local governing units, which participated in the planning, direction and financing of the projects.

Placements Up in North Virginia

Jobs Are Obtained By State Agency For 720 in September And 800 in October

Employment in the northern Virginia area showed a substantial increase in October, when jobs were obtained for 800 applicants, according to the monthly report submitted by Carter W. Friend, district manager, at the Alexandria office of the Virginia State Employment Service. Operated as a free State service, the office serves workers and employers in Alexandria and Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William Counties.

The October report compared with 720 placements reported in September, and 556 placements in October of last year, Friend said.

Private industry was responsible for 652 jobs, Friend said, while 148 were placed on State and Federal projects. These figures compare with 452 private placements and 104 public jobs in the corresponding period a year ago.

October activities brought the total number of placements for the year to 2,274, in comparison to 2,222 for the first eight months of 1939, the report showed.

During the month the office received 436 new applications; renewed 708 and recorded 429 retentions, leaving 1,573 applications on file as of November 1.

In addition to its efforts to obtain jobs on private and public projects in northern Virginia, the office is assisting civil service applicants in obtaining Federal employment, and maintains a free information service for persons seeking Government appointments. A schedule of civil service examinations is maintained, and applicants will be notified of the dates of examinations on request, Friend said.

Low-Cost Housing Project Delayed

Construction work on Alexandria's low cost housing development will be delayed for another six weeks due to the fact that the site of the development for colored residents must be reinforced, Director R. S. Marshall said yesterday. Recent soil tests have disclosed the foundation in the colored area to be unsatisfactory, and the authority now plans to install a base of piling before proceeding with construction plans.

Specifications for the foundation project are being prepared, and the authority expects to advertise for bids within the next ten days, Marshall said. The contract will be awarded independent of the general contract, under which the white and colored sites are to be built.

Tests on the white site have shown the soil to be satisfactory, Marshall said, but work on that development will be deferred until the colored foundation is completed, since both sites are to be developed simultaneously.

Bette Davis Scores Again in "The Letter," Earle; MacDonald and Eddy in "Bitter Sweet," at Capitol

Grim Maugham Drama Admirably Played By Sterling Cast; Ken Murray a Hit

"THE LETTER." Warner Brothers picturization of the story and play by W. Somerset Maugham, adapted to the screen by Howard Koch, starring Bette Davis, with Herbert Marshall, James Stephenson, Frieda Inescort, Gale Sondergaard, Bruce Lester, Elizabeth Earle, Cecil Kellaway, Sen Yung, Doris Lloyd, Willie Fung and Tetsu Konai. Directed by William Wyler. At the Earle Theater.

Director William Wyler's perfect creation of the mystic atmosphere of the Orient, his deliberate and naturalistic pacing of the action and the admirably restrained performances of an exceptional cast bring to the Warner Brothers' new picturization of W. Somerset Maugham's psychopathic study of sin in the Far East a renewed vigor and dramatic effectiveness. Deeply tragic, sinister and touched with neuroticism as the darkly gripping tale is, there is no ranting, raving or tearing of hair in its present interpretation. It is played in the manner of intelligent and literate persons inextricably enmeshed in a web of Oriental intrigue and cunning and conveys its more flagrant transgressions by implication rather than exposition.

BELL

With almost the shocking daring of the late Clyde Fitch's play of "Green Stockings," which opened with the funeral of a late deceased, "The Letter" begins with the violently murderous scene in which Leslie Crosbie pistols a young man to death, leaving no doubt of her guilt but only of her motive. From this point on the developments concern themselves principally with the legal steps necessary to clear the accused in the courts. She has told a seemingly frank and plausible story of murder in defense of her honor—and her husband's. Her acquittal after the mere formality of being haled to the bar appears to be assured, when the young native assistant of her chief counsel discloses the existence of a letter written by Mrs. Crosbie to her victime, inviting him to visit her during her husband's absence. That letter is in the possession of the grimly impassive Eurasian widow of Jeoffrey Hammond and may be acquired by the defense only at a great price.

The crux of the drama is reached after Leslie is freed by the jury and in a moment of intense mental torture confesses to her husband the full measure of her unfaithfulness and undying love for the man she has killed in a fit of jealous rage. The penalty she pays to the ominously wordless Eurasian is in the stark tradition of an eye for an eye.

Here, then, is an unrelenting and familiar drama that might be torn to shreds by tawdry playing, but one which is wholly redeemed by the deftness with which it is interpreted on the screen at the Earle. Bette Davis, with her rich experience in the depiction of neurotic roles, makes Leslie Crosbie a believable and fascinating figure, who until the very last commands both admiration and sympathy. Miss Davis has even dared to play some of her most important scenes with her back to the camera—a sure test of an actress' power. As the cheated husband, Herbert Marshall offers a perfect foil for Miss Davis' skillful miming by the bewildered forcefulness of his self-contained portrayal. Chief honors among the males, however, fall to James Stephenson, as the attorney for the defense, who violates the highest ideals and ethics of his profession to save the life of a friend. Mr. Stephenson has been visible in films for a long time now, but has never turned in a performance comparable to his present. Gale Sondergaard, in a role that is all but mute, makes the Eurasian a vibrantly threatening figure in the action. As the inquisitive young barrister, Sen Yung is another who adds appreciably to the play's tenseness and occasional flashes of "comedy relief." Frieda Inescort, Doris Lloyd, Bruce Lester and Willie Fung are conspicuous in the able support.

The "Ken Murray Show" on the Earle stage this week, happy to relate, is hilariously and by predordination dominated by that comic king of jesters, Ken Murray. The likable and lusty Mr. Murray is all over the place, joining ridiculously in the superlative gymnastics of Park & Clifford, the last word in athletic prowess; embroidering Wynn Murray's interval of song with spicy wise-crackery; setting off the exceptional specialty of Betty Atkinson, world's champion dancing majorette and baton swinger, and finally sharing a period of rowdy and riotous comedy with Milton Charleston, a "stooge" of purest ray serene with a bag of tricks all his own.

In the meantime, the Roxyettes have opened the gay proceedings with the "Hi Hat Strut," with Eileen Ritter breaking out a song and a torso-tossing dance, and have followed it with a colorful "Sequin Arms" number to glittering effect.

The newsreel, bearing down on Selective Service and the most exciting of the recent football games; Walt Disney's "The Volunteer Worker," in which Donald Duck appeals for support of the Community Chest drive, and Jo Lombardi's onstage orchestra complete an A-1 holiday bill of goods.

"Don't Write and Fear Nothing!"

GALE SONDERGAARD AND BETTE DAVIS

inversely, the letter writer and her Nemesis, as they appear in the Warner Brothers' new picturization of W. Somerset Maugham's vivid Oriental tale of "The Letter," now being shown on the screen at the Earle Theater. Herbert Marshall and James Stephenson lead the supporting cast

Noel Coward Musical A Gem of Beauty In Technicolor; Stage Revue Added

"BITTER SWEET." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Technicolor picturization of the Noel Coward musical, adapted to the screen by Lesser Samuels, costarring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, with George Sanders, Ian Hunter, Felix Bressart, Edward Ashley, Lynne Carver, Diana Lewis, Curt Bois, Fay Holden, Sig Rumann, Janet Beecher, Charles Judels, Veda Ann Borg, Herman Bing and Greta Meyer. Directed by Woody S. Van Dyke II. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

Save that the romantic story is not told by the flashback method previously employed in both the stage and screen versions of this lilting subject, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Technicolor picturization of Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet" is a faithful reproduction of the original, embellished with the splendid voices of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy and a supberb use of smoothly blended natural tints.

As a matter of fact, Technicolor has seldom, if ever, been more effectively employed than in the glorification of this interesting and tuneful musical play.

It is, of course, pretty late in the day to recapitulate the fanciful tale of the high-born young Englishwoman, who deserted her betrothed on their wedding day to elope with an impecunious musician and make her attic home in Vienna, where life held for them both the bitter and the sweet. Forced at first to sing in the streets to attract attention to their talents, Sarah Millick and Carl Linden, finally reach Schlick's Cafe, the gayest spot in the capital, and are about to reap the rawards of recognition as singer and composer when Carl is run through in a duel with the arrogant officer who thinks Sarah really is one of the "ladies of the town" as she has just sung. The reward is a solitary triumph not without its tinge of pathos.

It is a handsome treatment that Coward gave this idyl of frustrated love on the stage and it is an amplified and beautified rendition of the work that Director Woody S. Van Dyke II has contrived for the screen. The melodious and sometimes pretentious score has been retained practically intact and the old, familiar numbers are sung with accustomed verve by the costars. Comedy is supplied by Felix Bressart and Curt Bois, as Carl's tried, true and starving friends, as well as by Herman Bing, Charles Judels and various others in the cast. Diana Lewis—Mrs. William Powell in private life—takes rank as something of a comedienne.

The stage bill at Loew's Capitol this week again is inaugurated by that lusty patriotic chant, "A Ballad for Americans," sung with no loss of power by the choral group that presented it on the same stage only a few weeks ago. The Arnolds, three of them, two men and a girl, perform some tricky gymnastic feats and Renna & Co. offer an eccentric continental act that is packed with surprises and grotesque humor. Carlton Emmy and his educated terriers fell something short of their usual appeal yesterday afternoon by reason of the unnecessary roughness toward his charges of the master of the act. It is not pleasant to hear dogs yelp from abuse. Two of the outstanding hits of the bill are provided by Lila Moore, in her ambisextrous dance, and that droll comic of stage and cinema, Wally Vernon, one of the most lackadaisical funmakers we have.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 21.

NEWSPAPERS devoted much space to the report that Sandra Rambeau had become the bride of Gen. Von Epp, the Nazi officer who drew the plans for Germany's war against Britain. Mention also was made of the fact that the Prince of Nepal, now in New York, was heartbroken. . . . Sandra was a telephone operator in Fresno, Calif., before she came to Broadway. She was among the first group of showgirls ever to descend upon Europe. Felix Ferry, who now operates the Monte Carlo Club here, took those girls abroad to work at his casino in Monte Carlo. There, among her many suitors, Miss Rambeau found favor in the eyes of a Maharajah, predecessor of the Prince of Nepal. As a token of his esteem he gave her $100,000 worth of rubies.

LYONS

ONE WEEK LATER the Maharajah sent his equerry to Sandra's apartment—to report that the Maharajah was displeased. He had discovered that the word Sandra always used in addressing him was not, as he believed, a term of endearment. "And so the Maharajah requests that you please return the rubies," explained the equerry, "because you kept calling him 'Sambo'" . . . Miss Rambeau did not return the gems, because the terms she exacted were impossible to meet. "Tell Sambo I'll give him back his rubies," was her message, "if he can give me back my affections."

AMONG HER souvenirs Sandra treasured some letters sent to her by the Duke of Kent before his marriage. After the war was declared, the British officials decided that the prestige of empire might be affected by these letters—and so emissaries were sent to recover them . . . Miss Rambau refused to negotiate except in the presence of all the Ministers. Her request was satisfied, and in full view of this grateful, august audience and for no recompense, Sandra Rambeau, of Fresno, Calif., burned the letters sent her by a Prince of England.

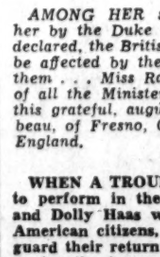
WHEN A TROUPE of American stars flew to Toronto Monday night to perform in the Canadian Red Cross benefit show, Ralph Forbes and Dolly Haas were detained in Buffalo for 5 hours. They're not American citizens, and insisted that all precautions be taken to safeguard their return . . . Alan Corelli, of the Theater Authority, accompanied the troupe. At the airport in Buffalo he met a friend, with whom he began to play cards while waiting for the plane. The airport police warned Corelli against playing cards with the suspicious-looking stranger. "It's all right. I know him a long time," Alan assured them. "He's only Fred Kaplan, the bridge expert."

"TREASURE ISLAND," one of the largest and newest Broadway cafes, shut its doors Tuesday night . . . Ralph Ingersoll, whose stories about the siege of Britain now are appearing in PM, wrote 60,000 words in ten days . . . Phyllis Colt, the young singer at Jack Dempsey's, is doubling at the Center Theater. She replaced Joan Edwards at the Ice Show there . . . June Walker's son took Helen Hayes' daughter to the night's opening of "Twelfth Night," in which Miss Hayes is starred and Miss Walker featured.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

On the set of "Topper Returns," you'll find more personalities than split infinitives. First of all, there's Carole Landis, who just missed getting a $1,000 crystal chandelier on her head; H. B. Warner, who carries his own box lunch and thermos bottle—he trusts no one but his own cook; then, wandering around like a quiet Greg Ratoff, is Nicolai Remisoff, bearded giant who used to design sets for the famous "Chauve Souris." Nick explains that this picture is a mystery. Well, guess it is, 'cause Joan Blondell gets murdered. So I made the rounds of the joint, looking for ghosts, because who every heard of a four-room haunted apartment? You've guessed it — Joan plays the ghost.



HOPPER

Then there's wee Mary Bernard, Scotch wardrobe lassie, who calls everyone, from Hal Roach down, "Partner." Joan Blondell is full of stories about her son Norman's birthday party. She put 16 kiddies on scooters at 10 in the morning, fed them at noon. They scooted until unconscious. When a pony was brought in, they were too exhausted to admire it.

I wondered why Martha Scott, who is so un-Hollywood, was hiding behind dark glasses at the House of Murphy. The reason was, she had just finished playing a 78-year-old, and the heavy make-up they used had drawn the skin around her eyes so tight that she still looked all of a pucker.

Preston Sturges had to find his own black cat for "Christmas in July." Now he wants a dachshund who can leer for "The Lady Eve." I'd offer my "Wolfie" if he wanted a smiling puss. He even laughts at me without a hat!

'You'll Find Out' How Kyser Nabs the Bogeymen at Keith's

"YOU'LL FIND OUT." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by David Butler and James V. Kern, with Kay Kyser, Peter Lorre, Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Helen Parrish, Dennis O'Keefe, Alma Kruger, Joseph Eggenton and Kay Kyser's band featuring Ginny Simms, Harry Babbitt, Ish Kabibble an Sully Mason. Music and lyrics by James McHugh and John Mercer. Produced and directed by David Butler. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At RKO Keith's Theater.

That especial brand of Korn marketed by Kay Kyser and his Kollege of Musical Knowledge is dished out with seasonal liberality in Keith's new film. And just as cone likka heps up its swallowers, the Professor's Korn has its followers and effect: it makes you feel 13 all over again. The picture's title? "You'll Find Out."

Of course you may not want to feel 13 all over again, but that's just too bad. Remember how you chilled when you watched the eyes of Bela Lugosi slicing up another victim? Remember the muffled thuds caused by Boris Karloff's unsuspecting victims? Remember flabby Peter Lorre's dastardly crimes? And remember when you, too, were a rug-cutter Well, it's all there in "You'll Find Out" even sillier than this review is turning out to be.

Actually the Kyser-Karloff-Lugosi-Lorre amalgamation falls short of its aimed-for dementia. In do-or-die spirit it pulls out all the secret panels, hidden stairways and ghostly doings in the business, but leadens the script with such lullabies as: "Quite a Collection of Hobbies." "Yes, He's Got Towels From Every Hotel in the World." (Laughter). Or, in the midst of a seance: "If I Don't Come Back, Call Me Up on the Ouji Board."

Like the Kyser debut picture, "That's Right, You're Wrong," this one is for the Kay Kyser fans. Their guileless hero is just one of the peepul and he never forgets it. To those beyond the pale of his fascination such a gentleman must remain purely a social phenomenon.

The beginning of the film finds our hero and his boys just being themselves preparatory to tripping off to play at a private dance celebrating an heiress' twenty-first birthday. Her home is a weird New England manse presided over by an aunt who has fallen under the spell of a spiritualist. The band arrives on a wild night, gradually comes upon a plot to murder the heiress. Now you go on from there.

To prove the writer is not so stuffily aloof as the foregoing account would indicate, let it be proclaimed from the roof tops that we chuckled happily over some of these doings. There is the sight of a dog's tail wagging in the dark—we caught on to THAT far sooner than Kay Kyser—and there is that bashful comic with the poetic name of Ish Kabibble to titivate the humors. There is Alma Kruger's sepulchral-voiced aunt and a daft tussle with a stuffed ape.

Too, there are songs by Ginny Simms and her associates in the band. "I'd Know You Anywhere," "You've Got Me This Way" and "I've Got a One-Track Mind." As successor to their "Little Red Fox" number of the earlier film, the boys offer an amusing enough ditty, "The Bad Humor Man."

The horror boys are very slick at their old tricks, though it's quite a shock to find Peter Lorre looking so thin and wan. The fellow must be scaring himself to death. Helen Parrish and Dennis O'Keefe are likable as the romancers.

The "March of Time's" latest release, "Arms and the Men—U. S. A." is the central supplement on the bill, depicting some of the rigors and advantages the new defense measures will bring to the men affected by the draft.

A generous assortment of football clips brightens the newsreel, including the Georgetown-Boston College battle of last Saturday and the disputed fifth down in the recent Darthmouth-Cornell game.

Marjorie Rambeau Scores a Hit As 'Tugboat Annie' at the Met.

"TUGBOAT ANNIE SAILS AGAIN." Warner Brothers picturization of an original screen play by Walter DeLeon based upon characters created by Norman Reilly Raine, with Marjorie Rambeau, Alan Hale, Jane Wyman, Ronald Reagan, Clarence Kolb, Charles Halton, Paul Hurst, Victor Killian, Chill Wills, Harry Shannon, John Hamilton, Sidney Bracy, Jack Mower, Dana Dale, Josephine Whittell and Neil Reagan. Directed by Lewis Seiler. Reviewed Thursday afternoon, At the Metropolitan Theater.

Handy at a ship's wheel and even handier with her tongue is "Tugboat Annie" who's steering a stormy course across the Metropolitan Theater screen.

No more beloved character than Annie has ever appeared in the movies. Her reincarnation by Marjorie Rambeau will interest countless people who first encountered her as the creation of the great Marie Dressler. They can be sure that "Tugboat Annie," as conceived by Miss Rambeau, is as salty, witty and hot-tempered as when she first made screen history.

Annie runs afoul of big business and double-crossing rival skippers in the new story. But she's a match and more for all of them. After saving her employer's business and crushing her No. 1 rival flatter than a flounder, she rolls off to her tug again wearing a new hat that looks like a full rigged clipper.

But before this happy culmination there is trouble by the barrelful. Alan Hale (cast as a meanie) deludes her into sailing for a salvage job that turns out to be a dead whale. Her boss tries to fire her. In a flash of temper she knocks an important customer into a cartful of fish. Her new captain shows up tight as a mackerel, falls into the bay, drinks hair tonic and gets double pneumonia. On top of all this a steamer runs into a dry dock she's towing and she has to beach it. Then she's fired sure enough. But all the bad luck in the world can't down her.

In one respect the new "Tugboat Annie" is different. She's been touched by the cool hand of the Hays office, apparently, has no waterfront loves.

But the love interest is taken care of handsomely by Ronald Reagan, playing Annie' protege, and Jane Wyman as a spoiled but spunky society girl. Jane pushes Ronald's car off the dock, gets spanked, involves him in trouble with a policeman. So they fall in love. Minor complications include Jane stowing away on the tugboat and being drafted as a cook just as seasickness gets her down. The little Wyman plays very prettily, shows considerable promise as a light comedienne. Alan Hale is his usual hearty, rambunctious self and very nearly makes his low-down stunts seem just good clean fun.

Fat and enjoyable is the list of subsidiary features. But the big thrill is in the cold magnificence of John Lewis' farewell to the C. I. O. There is real life drama unsurpassable in that icy good-by. "Porky's Hired Hand" and a Leon Errol short about television trouble provide a big quota of laughs. Danger peers from the screen in a Grantland Rice feature about motorcycle racing

MARY HARRIS.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

The alarmists who insist on using a sledgehammer to knock a fly off the baby's nose, have now rushed up with a remedy for such officiating boners as Cornell's "fifth down" touchdown which delayed Dartmouth's victory for 48 hours.

POVICH

They would rout the professional football referees and umpires out of the college games; at least they would forbid college officials to work in the pro league. Officials who work both types of games are apt to confuse the rules and the college games suffer from a lack of concentration by the referee who the next afternoon is scheduled to work in the pro league.

If you don't mind having your metaphors scrambled, that is the germ the alarmists have isolated in the epidemic of refereeing boners which thus far total three this season —Cornell's fifth down; Ohio State's illegal substitute who kicked a winning field goal against Purdue; and Navy's strange 15-yard penalty for defensive holding in the Notre Dame game.

They make the point, too, that a college and professional game on successive afternoons is too great a physical strain on a referee, but we don't see where the colleges have a bleat on that score, even if it were true. Because whereas the pros may have a tired official on the scene, he would be working the college game with five days rest.

College football may be flattering itself, incidentally, if it believes it can merely stamp a petulant foot and keep referees from accepting professional game assignments. The pro game is growing up and it can pay its officials on a scale comparable with the colleges. There aren't enough top-notch officials to go around anyway and if the outstanding referees chose to cast their lot with the pros, as they well might, college football would be spiting itself.

In the dither over the Dartmouth-Cornell fifth down, it is almost time for somebody to get rational and recognize the fact that Referee Red Friesell's error was no heinous crime, merely a mistake that can occur any time there is a human element in any situation. The mere fact that it was Friesell, one of the great refrees of our time, who pulled the boner, should remind folks that referees are not infallible under any circumstances.

Friesell's mistake did not occur on a play on which he possibly could have confused the college rules of that day with the pro rules under which he would work the Redskins-Bears game the next day, so this argument of the alarmists rises up and bites its own head off. Friesell merely lost track of the downs, and at last reports, the downs are counted exactly alike in both college and pro ball.

The fact that Friesell and other stand-out referees are employed to work the pro league games is a tribute to their skill as officials because the pro league is finicky about its officials. They have to be tops or they would make a shambles of the intricate ball handling and the faster movement of the pro game. That their officials are hired by the pro league should be a source of pride to the colleges, because there are certain prominent college officials who are not acceptable to the pro league.

To assure the finest officiating, the pro league has hired as its referee-in-chief perhaps the No. 1 authority in the Nation on football rules. He is a pint-sized, bald-pated old gentleman named Hugh Ray, of Chicago, who has made a 37-year study of football rules and has clarified and codified them for the league's purposes. They put Mr. Ray under a five-year contract as rules consultant to the league and boss of its officials.

In his intensive survey of football, Ray recently had his observers make 26,000 measurements and take 13,000 stop-watch figures in an attempt to speed up the game. He discovered that the average pro team requires 17 seconds to put the ball in play while the fastest-moving college team, Northwestern, required 18 seconds. When Ray was hired by the league, the average pro game contained 144 plays. His suggestions on time-saving have raised that figure to 147 plays.

Ray's figures show also that the football fan who spends an average of two hours watching the average game played, sees the ball in action only for 12 minutes and 22 seconds. The rest of the two hours is consumed by the 17 different varieties of legal time-outs. Under his administration of the pro league rules, rule-interpretation by the officials is uniform. College officials still interpret rules according to the section from which they hail. What we are getting around to is that college football needs the pro referees a whole lot more than vice versa.

Maryland Eleven Upsets Rutgers, 14 to 7

Joe Murphy Is Terp Star; Scores Twice

Maryland Eleven Opens First, Third Periods With Scores; 3,000 Watch Game

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—Maryland's in-and-out football eleven reached its 1940 peak at Baltimore Stadium today to win its first major game since 1936, defeating Rutgers University, 14 to 7.

Before the 3,000 fans could get in their seats, the Terp crew ripped into action. Berry kicked off to Utz, Rutgers' fullback, and after three tries at the tough Maryland line, Ray Foster booted out on the Terps' 43-yard stripe. On the first Liner play Murphy skidded right end, cut back after some brilliant blocking by Berry, Liner fullback, and dashed 53 yards for a Terp score. Harold Berry tipped the uprights to send the Liners ahead, 7 to 0.

The only scoring threat by Rutgers in the opening session died as the Maryland eleven took over on their 33.

Interception Starts Threat

Again in the second period the Rutgers eleven made another scoring threat that faded out when Bernie Ulman, Terp halfback, intercepted a Scarlet pass from the waiting hands of Fred Ratti.

The Old Liners opened the third quarter with another drive that resulted in a Maryland tally. Cordyack recovered a fumbled pass from the slinging arm of Vincent Utz and a reverse, Duvall to Murphy, netted the Terrapins a first down on the Rutgers 33. Rigby tried the line but failed. Then the light Baltimore back faded to his eight and shot a pass to Murphy for another first down on the 20.

On the next play Merle Duvall gave a shovel pass to Joe Murphy, who galloped through the right side of the Scarlet line and 18 yards for the score. Murphy drop-kicked the extra point to send the Terps out in front 14-0.

Jack Mueller, Terp right end, kicked off and the Rutger eleven started a scoring drive that ended with a tally with three seconds left in the ball game.

The Scarlet eleven after losing the ball on the Terp 40 charged back again, after Lew Bauer flipped a 10-yard pass to Ralph Schmidt. Bauer faded back again and tossed a 20-yard pass to Utz on the Terp's 18-yard stripe. Bauer then flipped the oval to Norman Kempson, Rutger end, who was standing in the end zone.

Capestro dashed into the fray to boot the extra point to send the score to 14-7.

The battle ended as the Rutger crew made an attempt to get the kickoff on a short boot that failed as the Old Liners took over.

Even though the Terps eleven made only 9 first downs to Rutger's 15, the Terrpins' front wall played a brilliant game to keep the Terps in front. Flashing Joe Murphy who accounted for 13 Liners' points was the star of the ball game. Bob

Jubilant Champions Carry Western High Coach From Field

Below, Jake Hilleary, ace of the Western backfield and maker of the winning touchdown, all but loses his balance on an end run before righting himself to gain 4 yards. Tech players rushing in for the tackle are Hightman (No. 34) and Smallwood (No. 31).

Western Comes Back To Win Despite a Break for Tech Team; Title Makes 2 in Row

By Bill Burnett

Western football players are still the best in public high school circles here.

They proved it the hard way yesterday, taking their second consecutive interhigh championship by beating a favored McKinley High eleven, 7-0.

With more than 7,000 spectators at Central Stadium feeling sorry for them, the Red Raiders ignored a break that might have broken any other team's morale and came back to win their school's second title since 1905. They did it without mirrors, merely by playing to a standstill a club which had ground them under a 21-6 count earlier in the season.

It was the quarterbacking, running, passing and kicking of Jake Hilleary that featured hostilities. Last year in the title game he was a mere understudy to All-District George Barnes, but yesterday he was the whole show.

Jake scored the game's only touchdown and he kicked the game's only extra point from placement in the final period. In addition he averaged 42 yards from scrimmage on five punts, completed 5 out of 16, aerial attempts for a gain of 70 yards and averaged well over 5 yards a try every time he carried the ball.

Hilleary completed a pair of arrow-straight passes late in the second stanza before Western encountered its heartbreaking bit of bad luck. The first pass went to Buck Herrlein, his plunging mate, for a 15-yard gain to Tech's 18 and the second went to End Bobby Leach on the 8. Leach was forced to wrestle the ball out of a defenders hands, but he came down with it.

Twich big Bill Marlow hit the Trainer line and on the second attempt it was almost certain he had fallen over after a 2-yard drive. The ball, however, was placed with its nose barely failing to touch the goal line stripe, and before another play could be run the half-time whistle interrupted things.

Tech Advance Halted

That failed to dim Western's hopes as it started the third quarter. A Tech advance was stopped on the Raider 39, and there was an exchange of punts. Hilleary's end of the deal was a 47-yard spiral. Jackie Walsh punted back to Tech's 37 and there began the winning march.

Marlow was on the pay-off end of two first downs to the Tech 4 shoved his way to the 4, and from that point Hilleary scored. It looked simple, but four Trainers were hung on Hilleary's neck as he slashed off tackle.

Giving the lie to observers who claimed the Raiders had no placement expert, Hilleary booted a perfect extra point.

The Tech line which was supposed to be twice as efficient as Western's failed to materialize. Tech's only threat was Walsh, and his best efforts couldn't pull his mates out of

Fordham Smothers Arkansas, 27 to 7

Rams Steal Razorbacks' Fire by Scoring Three Times From Air; 12,500 Attend

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 21.—The Fordham Rams met fire with fire today, stealing the aerial play away from air-minded Arkansas to turn in a 27-to-7 victory in an intersectional grid battle before 12,500 fans.

Twice in the first period, once in the second, and again in the third the Rams rambled over the Razorbacks goal, and three of the scores came via passes. Arkansas, after a fine kickoff return by Bob Forte to the Fordham 35, scored in the third period and the rest of the time saw its embryo offenses killed by its own futile, fumbling attack and an alert Fordham defense.

The Razorbacks were prepared for the Fordham running attack, and this preparation backfired. Drawn close to check the ground plays, they left themselves wide open for the bombing, which was accomplished with neatness and dispatch by Steve Filipowicz, aided and abetted by numerous teammates

Take Lead on Long Passes

Midway in the first period, after luring the Razorback secondary up close with a series of smashing plays, the Rams opened up. From the Fordham 31 Filipowicz dropped far back and shot the ball down the field to Jim Noble, who caught it on the Arkansas and went the rest of the way for the score.

On the final play of the period the Rams climaxed a 38-yard march as Filipowicz passed 5 yards into the end zone to Jim Lansing, and in the second period, after Harold Schmidt had got away a wobbly punt which went outside on the Arkansas 2, Filipowicz again passed, again to Lansing, and the play was good for 18 yards and a touchdown.

The Rams picked up their fourth touchdown in the third quarter, using an end-around for variety. Leonard Ashmont had intercepted Schmidt's pass and turned it to the Arkansas 13 with a beautiful run. He then picked up 3 through the line, and Vincent Dennery skipped around from his end position to take the ball the rest of the way.

Penalty Aids Arkansas

After Forte had returned the next kick-off to the Fordham 35, the Razorbacks began a stumbling, ragged advance punctuated by a pass interference penalty against Fordham and a mixture of good and bad passes and good and bad plunges. Max Sallings passed 5 yards to Bratton Haynes for the score, and after that neither team offered anything like a dangerous threat.

Fordham's ability to rush the passer was a major factor in the victory. Sallings and little Harold

Marshall Beats W. Va. Wesleyan

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—Jackie Hunt, of Marshall College, scored four touchdowns against West Virginia Wesleyan today to set a new all-time college record of 27 for a single season.

Marshall won the game, 67 to 0.

Hunt's feat broke the 20-year-old mark of James C. Leech, who scored 26 touchdowns while playing for Virginia Military Institute in 1920.

Leech, however, had 48 extra points and 2 field goals for a point total of 210 to Hunt's 162, scored on touchdowns alone.

Wayne Wins, 19 to 0

Detroit, Nov. 21 (AP).—Wayne University's Tartars overcame an old jinx today by defeating Bowling Green University, 19 to 0, in the football finale. It was Wayne's first win over Bowling Green in eight starts.

A penalty for holding nullified a second period touchdown for Bowling Green.

Glass High Eleven Defeats Lane, 13 to 7

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 21.—Glass High of Lynchburg won from Lane High in Scott Stadium this afternoon, 13 to 7. The local eleven led 7 to 6 until the final period, when Blanks scored the winning touchdown, following a 20-yard dash by McKenna. Lane's lone touchdown came at the close of the first half, when Brown intercepted a pass and raced 40 yards to score. Long crashed through tackle for the extra point.

Glass registered 14 first downs as against seven for Lane.

William & Mary Beats Spiders for State Title

16,000 Witness Forwards Stop Arthur Jones as Indians Win First Virginia Championship

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20.—William and Mary's warpath-minded Indians gave the University of Richmond a decisive 16-0 beating before a crowd of 16,000 here today to win their first State football championship.

The smashing Indian forwards, led by Bill Goodlow at center, and Cap. Charlie Gondak at end, swarmed all over Richmond's vaunted Arthur Jones on his punt return specialty and rushed him so mercilessly when he faded back to pass that the Spiders lost a total of 50 yards on attempted aerials. Jones was up to par with his punting, however, averaging 42.1 yards to keep the rampaging Indians possibly from adding to their score.

William and Mary counted first with a safety in the second period when Bill Fitzhugh, Richmond center, made a snapback much too high for Jones to handle in punt formation in the end zone.

Harvey Johnson, 210-pound rookie fullback, was the spearhead in a devastating drive from midfield to a W. and M. touchdown in the third, Johnson ramming over center from the 3.

Jimmy Howard, elusive junior, teamed with Johnson for a 50-yard march in the fourth which was climaxed by Waldo Matthews' 8-yard pass to Newall Irwin for a touchdown. Irwin, sub sophomore end from Seymour, Tenn., made a spectacular catch while riding high on the back of a Spider defender. Matthews kicked extra points after both touchdowns.

The outplayed Spider line made two gallant goal-line stands to stop the Indians twice just 1 foot short of a touchdown. The first time was

Christman Star Of Missouri's 45-20 Victory

By the Associated Press

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 21.—Paul Christman had himself a "day" today.

Playing his final game for Missouri against the Tigers' most ancient and most cherished rival, Kansas, he passed for one touchdown, plunged for two and set up all but one of the others in the 45 to 20 victory. And, when the towheaded kid left the game in the final quarter with the clock still showing 4 minutes to go, the 17,000 homecoming spectators rose as one for a standing ovation.

He loped to the bench to greet his father with "Dad, I've had enough," then returned to the field after the contest to be given the game ball by his teammates.

It was the first time in 49 years of rivalry that Missouri had won three in a row from Kansas; it was the Tigers tenth straight victory on the home lot, and the scoring total of 65 points was the highest in the rivalry.

Ten times Christman cracked into the pliable Kansas line for a gain of 50 yards. He drew back his accurate right arm 13 times and eight times hit his receivers for 167 yards.

Christman was denied another touchdown in the fourth quarter when Jim Starmer caught his pass in the clear and ankled to the one-foot line then deliberately stepped out of bounds so that Myron Counsil, infured senior fullback, might score on a plunge.

Despite the lopsided score Kansas got satisfaction in counting a touchdown against a Big Six rival for the first time in more than a year.

Three times in the final half the Jayhawks found their way to the tallying station after twice being rebuked in the opening half. Their first successful march was 83 yards.

Missouri found its opponents line no puzzle. Never were the Tigers forced to punt.

The game was full of whirl winds. One time Christman strolled on to the field after almost a full period's rest and completed their straight passes for a total of 37 yards and a touchdown. Late in the battle three successive interceptions of passes almost tied the linesman's chain in knots.

Sophomore Back Figures in Every Scoring Play; Tech Passes Lead Offense

By the Associated Press

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 21.—Joe Muha, Virginia Military Institute's brilliant sophomore back from McKees Rocks, Pa., passed for one touchdown and ran 50 yards for another score today to lead the Cadets to a decisive 14-to0 victory over their traditional Thanksgiving rivals, Virginia Tech, before 20,000 spectators.

Muha tossed an aerial to Nelson Catlett for a 12-yard scoring play in the second quarter, then placekicked the point. A fellow Pennsylvanian, Barney Skladany, Cadet center, set up the second score by intercepting a pass at midfield in the fourth period.

Muha, 205-pound sophomore star, carried the ball 18 times for a gross yardage of 114 yards and a net of 10444, or nearly half the 233 yards V. M. I. earned by rushing.

Tech netted only 82 yeards by rushing but counted 87 yards for the seven completed passes of 14 tried.

Mt. St. Mary's Wins Over Wash. College

By the Associated Press

Westminster, Md., Nov. 21.—Three long touchdown drives, topped each time with a pay-dirt pass, and one sparkling pass interception, gave Mount St. Mary's an easy 25-to-0 victory over Washington College here today.

The two teams, renewing a bitter State rivalry, put up a rough exhibition, marred by frequent penalties and the banishment of the Mount 's quarterback for unnecessary roughness.

Playing on Western Maryland College's Hoffa Field, "neutral" ground for both elevens, the Shoremen on the run from start to finish. Twice, they scored on passes from Asip to Rogan, once on a heave from Hall to Rogan, and, finally, on a pass interception by Hall, who ran 41 yards for the tally.

Makes Good One Kick

Four times in the first quarter, Mt. St. Mary's pounded down into Washington territory, finally marching 65 yards—including runs of 21 and 19 yards by Boyle—to the Washington 11 as the quarter ended.

Asip tossed a nine-yard pass to Rogan for the first score in the opening seconds of the next period, and climaxed a 75-yard offensive a few minutes later with a 17-yard touchdown heave to the sticky-fingered right end. Asip placekicked the point.

At the half, the Mounts had pushed down to Washington's four but the Shoremen held.

Ellis, Mount quarterback, was banished in the third for roughing Hoban, Washington pass receiver. Play was largely in midfield except for a brief Washington threat to the Mounts' 35.

Early in the fourth, the Mountaineers took off from their 40 and smashed 60 yards to score again, Hall passing 32 yards to Rogan for the touchdown. Hall ended Washington's last-minute aerial attack by intercepting a heave on the 41 and racing across for the final score.

Alumni to Hear Yale"s New Grid Policy Explained

Special Dispatch to The Post

Montclair, N. J., Nov. 21.—A large number of Yale alumni will have their first opportunity to learn what the Eli's new football policy will be on December 7 when Ogden D. Miller, director of athletics, speaks at the twentieth annual get-together of the Yale Club of Montclair. The party will be held in Nick Roberts' famous old Yale Barn.

Mr. Miller's recent speech before the New York Sports Writers' Association caused widespread comment. Nicholas Roberts, head of the Montclair Yale Alumni Association, in commenting on the present football situation made the following statement:

"We have been holding these parties for 19 years without regard to the fortunes of the football team. Of course we want to win, but we are back of Oggie Miller 100 per cent on his views on a clean and sane football policy."

In addition to Miller guests from Yale will include Harold B. Whiteman, captain of the current Eli eleven, the captain-elect for next year; Ducky Pond and his assistant coaches, and many of the players.

Lincoln Launches 63-0 Rout of Howard With 16-Yard Touchdown Sprint

8,000 See Bisons Routed by Record Score in Rivalry

Lincoln University's big Brud Holland-trained team yesterday defeated the Bisons of Howard in Griffith Stadium, 63-0, before a gala crowd of 8,000.

Passes uncoiled from the whipcord arm of Jimmie Baker, and Milton "Apple" Pearcy's consecutive boots from placement, which sailed eight times between the uprights, after touchdowns piled up most of the points for Lincoln.

Never in their string of grid engagements had the Lions struck the Bisons with such viciousness. The final score proved the largest in the history of the Thanksgiving Day "classic," played 35 times since 1894, the previous high score being the 42-0 defeated the Bisons administered the Lions a decade ago.

Score in First Period

Lincoln threatened from the initial whistle, Coach Holland having declared before the game that there would be no question, as arose last year, concerning his team's superiority. The first touchdown was made by Baker on a cutback, after his pass to Hunter had placed the oval on the Howard 16.

From the same stripe, in the second period, Baker tossed a hard one to Hunter, who loped across the Bison goal line standing up.

Bob Engs, off-tackle, and "Sir Robert" Shade, at the receiving end of a bullet pass from Baker, ran the count to 35-0, Pearcy adding the extra points with ruthless precision.

The Lions, not satisfied, cut loose with everything they had in the final period. They bucked and passed the wobbly Bisons dizzy, set them up again, and stomped them into complete submission.

Three of Baker's passes, starting from the Bison 40, accounted for the first touchdown in this period, Hunter scoring again after a 20-yard sprint. On the kickoff following, Banks ran back to the Howard 22, and one of Van Buren's passes was intercepted by Frank Murray, who set it down to the Bison 4, to allow Bennie King to count on the play that followed.

Baker tossed his final touchdown pass to Russ Beverly with 4 minutes to go. Then Holland sent in his second string, who lost no time in driving to the Howard 16, and sending "Manny" Costa across the goal line on a pass from Woodrow Glover, who went off tackle for the extra point.

Pro Draft Meeting To Precede Playoff

Redskins Consider Three Local Players; Flaherty Scouts Maryland-Rutgers Game In Baltimore; 'Skins Peppy in Drill

The National Football League will hold its annual draft meeting the day preceding the championship playoff game, President Carl L. Storck announced yesterday, and in all probability it will be a significant day of local college grid stars.

Scene of the meeting will be Washington should the Redskins clinch the Eastern title Sunday in New York.

At least three local college stars are known to be under consideration by National League clubs—Catholic University's Pete Sachon, Georgetown's Augio Lio and Maryland's Joe Murphy.

Flaherty Sees Terps

Coach Ray Flaherty, carefully refraining from mentioning the name of the player in mind took a trip to Baltimore yesterday to witness the Maryland-Rutgers game, but he left before the game was over.

"We had a tip on a man playing in that game, but I couldn't see anything out there today," Flaherty said last night.

Incidentally, Murphy scored both Maryland touchdowns yesterday, did some good pass receiving and stole the show in general. Only drawback in his case is lack of weight.

The league's draft meeting, at which tight-lipped officials of the various clubs get together to maneuver for the right to negotiate with graduating college players, will be held in the city of the league championship playoff game, and while there's a remote possibility of it being held in Brooklyn, Redskin bosses are quietly going about the business of getting ready for the meeting here, probably at the Mayflower Hotel.

Each Selects 20

Under the draft procedure, the Redskins probably will get last choice in the matter of selecting new players. Each team selects 20 players, but priority in the drawings is in reverse order to the teams' final standing.

Meanwhile, the Redskins are still moving along with four of their eight rookies virtually untried. Roy Zimmerman, triple-threat back from San Jose State; Steve Andrago, all-Western conference center last year at Ohio State; Ray Hare, blocking back from Gonzaga, and Bob Fisher, tackle and guard from Southern California, all have seen action but lately have been held out.

Rookies Show Power

But for Bob Titchenal and Bob Hoffman, Flaherty has been using his rookies with great care bringing them along for next year by using them in games when the Redskins have a safe lead. The rookie backfield combination of Zimmerman, Hare, Hoffman and Bob Seymour still has more running power than any combination on the squad, Flaherty believes, but as yet they're too inexperienced on defense.

The Skins held a lengthy workout yesterday morning, and as a result of a "talking to" given them by Flaherty showed more zip and zest for the task at hand than they have this month, according to observers.

They leave for New York Saturday at 4 p. m., and a vanguard of about 5,000 local followers began moving out of Washington yesterday to make a complete holiday weekend of the occasion. The Pennsylvania railroad is running specials, leaving Washington Sunday at 6:30 a. m. and returning immediately after the game.

Baer Adds Coach, Rover To 6-Man Team

Charlie O'Rourke Added to Bugs Club; Starts a Contest

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

While football is singing its swan song we'll cop a gander at it.

Cornell coughed up a fifth down for the Monday morning quarterbacks and Referee Red Friesell admitted he was as out of line as a buggy wheel on a bent axle.

That requires more moral courage than the fellow who first kicked a porcupine. Just for that I make Snavely coach of my six-man All-American and I appoint Friesell roving linesman with no string.

When Cornell loses its game on Monday that reverses the field of second guesses. That's the only game that was ever lost on a Monday.

I add O'Rourke, of Boston College, to my six-man ballet. That gives us O'Rourke, Kimbrough and Harmon. Three up and three to go.

O'Rourke matriculates in the preparatory huddle by his great work against Georgetown. The boy runs like an old established business, crouches like a mouse in a sugar bowl, kicks like a taxpayer and throws more passes than the press agent of a flop melodrama.

Let's see how that compares with Kimbrough, of Texas Agathas. Last week we said that Kimbrough runs like fire along a woolen skein, kicks like a customer paying the cover charges in a New York flea bag and passes like a tough heart player.

Let's see what we can do with Harmon. We said he was like Miss America tilting a pin-ball machine. Looks just as good losing as he does winning. He is also as elusive as a buttered ping pong ball in an asparagus patch, he runs like a coward carrying war bulletins and he can kick like a mule in a tin stable.

Now we have three more to pick to complete the unfinished All-Americans. You send in your choice with a description of their gymnastic fermentations and I will send $25 to the best short scenario describing the aggravated charms of your man.

Model your boost on the above itemized accounts of Kimbrough, O'Rourke and Harmon. If you pick Doodle, of Stadium Tech, just include his case history on the gridiron. Like this: He can run like whoozus, he kicks like what-you-call-it and he passes so-and-so.

I suggest you send it in on a penny postcard as soon as you read this. As this article appears all over the United States I will give you to Monday, December 2, 1940, to send in your All-American candidate. Just select one man and write three short lines.

The winner will be the fellow sending in the best three gags on his man. The $25 will probably come in handy for a little Christmas shopping and I will announce the winner in my article for Friday, December 6, 1940. Twenty-five ain't a lot of money but it ain't hay. I never saw it sticking out of barns.

San Jose State Routs S. Dakota For Tenth Victory

By the Associated Press

San Jose, Calif., oNv. 21.—Scoring in every quarter, a powerful San Jose State grid machine rode over the University of South Dakota today, 40 to 7, to run its winning streak to ten games.

The visiting Coyotes marched 80 yards to their sole tally in the third period, climaxing the rally with an 8-yard touchdown pass from Burdette Wallace to Elmo Solberg. Fornet accounted for the extra point.

A slim holiday crowd of 6,000 saw the game, which carried the official designation of "Prune Bowl" and was played for the benefit of a "Boys Town" project sponsored by the San Jose Elks.

The San Jose eleven, coached by "Pop" Warner and Ben Winkelman, ran up 23 first downs to 7 for the South Dakotans, and 344 yards to 80. The Staters have not been defeated since the 10-to-0 setback at the hands of Texas A. and I. at the start of their 1940 season.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 21.—Three thousand persons, the largest crowd ever attending a football game here, saw the Waynesboro High School win from the Hagerston High here today, 9-0.

The visitors scored all of their points in the second quarter, a 10-yard pass in the end zone to West for a touchdown and a beautiful placement from a difficult angle by Rock a few moments later.

Only one occasion did Hagerstown threaten Waynesboro's goal line, being given the ball on the 3-yard line when a pass interference was called, but four forward passes failed to click and Hagerstown lost the ball. Waynesboro threatened often but licked the punch to score again. Waynesboro's line was a stalwart one and Hagerstown's few first downs resulted from forward passes.

Armstrong High Host To Delaware Eleven

The Armstrong High School eleven, colored city scholastic champions, will clash with the Howard High eleven of Wilmington, Del., this afternoon at 1 o'clock at Griffith Stadium, to settle a point of rivalry as to the Eastern championship.

The Delawareans finished as champions in their Eastern conference, while the Armstrong team annexed the South Atlantic conference championship along with its city honors. Bitter rivalry has existed for years between the team.

Hunt Scores 4 Times, Sets New Record

Marshall Defeats Bobcats, 67-0; Back Boosts Total to 162

By the Associated Press

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Jackie Hunt, fullback for the Marshall thundering herd, bulled his way to four touchdowns against an outclassed West Virginia Wesleyan eleven to set a new national scoring record and help the Big Green to a 67-0 victory today.

Hunt's touchdown runs carried one 20, 18 and 30 yards to give him 27 for the season—one more than was scored by James C. Leech for Virginia Military Institute in 1920.

Leech, however, had 48 extra points and two field goals for a point total of 210 to Hunt's 162, scored only by touchdowns.

Wesleyan held the herd to a single touchdown in the opening period, that by Kuhl's lateral to D'Antoni on a play covernig 53 yards.

The period also saw Wesleyan's only serious threat to score, Wilfong, Gwosden and Meighan collaborating on a fake-kick which carried 73 yards from the Bobcat 4-yard line on the longest play of the game.

That was farther than the Wesleyans penetrated for the remainder of the play, however, as the smooth-working Marshall eleven clicked to turn the game into an adding machine affair.

Hunt shook off a brace of tacklers on a 20-yard foray for his first touchdown, in the second period, and shortly afterwards cashin in from the one.

He scored again in the third, from 18 yards out, and after being withdrawn for a rest, took the ball on the 30 on an end-around and lateral to shatter the record.

Stopped at the line for four first downs, to Marshall's 18, and held to a neat rushing total of 55 to 356 for the Herd, the Bobcats took to the air, but completed only one of nine pass attempts.

A crowd of 7,500 saw the game.

Georgetown Prep Wins First Game in 12-Year History of Series

By the Associated Press

New Rochelle, Nov. 21.—For the first time in the 12-year history of their football rivalry, Georgetown Prep conquered Iona High today at Haag Field, 14 to 6, with Gene Echrich scoring both the winners' touchdowns.

The husky halfback plunged across for one in the first period and the other in the second, and quarterback McDonnell added a point after each on a sneak through center.

Iona rallied in the third period for its only tally with Sid Leonardi doing the scoring. The try for the point after touchdown failed.

Little Generals Defeat George Washington High, 14 to 0

Russ Arnaud, De Celle Star For Winners

7,000 See Annual Battle; Wash.-Lee Scores in Third Period for Victory

The Old Oaken Bucket, cherished stake in their annual gridiron rivalry with George Washington High of Alexandria, was claimed again by the Little Generals of Washington-Lee High yesterday morning as they pounded out a 14-0 triumph on their home field.

Every available seat and almost every inch of standing room in the W.-L. stadium—holding about 7,000 fans—was filled for the exciting Thanksgiving Day battle. The victory was W.-L.'s fourth in the six years that the "Bucket" has been up for competition.

Though he failed to score a point, W.-L.'s Russ Arnaud was the big difference in a pair of strictly land-ridden clubs. It was Arnaud off tackle, through the center and around end all morning, but both touchdowns were credited to hard-hitting Ed De Celle on plunges of a single yard. Merrill Hoover, husky tackle who has been on the injured list most of the year, kicked the two extra points.

Both its tallies Washington-Lee crowded into the third period, the rest of the game being a push-and-pull affair with G. W. earning an even break. One W.-L. score was draped on the end of a 63-yard drive in which De Celle and Leo Urbanski cooperated with Arnaud. The second was the direct result of what started out to be an off-tackle smash by Arnaud and resulted in a 56-year broken field run.

The two teams attempted only 23 aerials and only 5 were completed. The Little Generals, however, profited by three interceptions of G. W. tosses, Arnaud making two of them.

Whatever Coach Johnny Baker told his W.-L. gridmen at the half when the score was 0-0, was enough to bring them out with fire in their eyes. They were doped to trip George Washington, and they proceeded to do it.

Arnaud took the kickoff from his own 10 to the 37 to start things and straight down the field marched the eventual winners. Freak of the drive was Arnaud's fumble on the G. W. 21, after which he recovered and picked up 13 yards to the 8. Alternated plunges by De Celle and Arnaud finally carried the ball over from the 1.

Both Clubs Offside

Hoover's first placement for the extra point was good, but he was forced to repeat the performance when both clubs jumped the gun.

After another kickoff, G. W. had two tries at the line before it kicked back and Arnaud romped up to the 47. Two tries by Urbanski netted only four yards and then Arnaud set out goalward. Down the right sideline he raced, with G. W.'s Ed Hanback coming in from the side. At the 1-yard stripe he was nailed perfectly. It took De Celle only one push to add another 6 points.

From then on G. W. never had a chance. It had almost dominated first-half play—getting to the W.-L. 22 and 30 with two fine efforts—but after it trailed by 14-0 the cause appeared hopeless. Johnny Shelton and Leon Chisolm had starred in the first half, but whatever honors the Presidents could garner in the second went to little Jack Crump, back, and Wingman Billy Bell.

Ashby Dashiell's Extra Point Gains Deadlock For Suffolk Eleven

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 21.—A nice piece of runnnig by Quarterback Ashby Dashiell to gain an extra point spelled the difference between a defeat and a tie for Suffolk High School in theri game with James Monroe High, of this city, here today which ended in a 13 to 13 score.

The highly favored Suffolk High, champions of Class B high school football in eastern Virginia, found themselves trailing seven points in the fourth period but a last-minute stand netted the necessary points to tie up the ball game. A pass from Yates to Withers eplaced the ball on the 6-yard mark and on the next play Dashiell crossed the goal to score the touchdown. The Suffolk quarterback then tied things up by skirting right end for the extra point. Suffolk began the fireworks in the first period with a drive of 53 yards for a touchdown with Fullback Yates taking the ball over from the 3-yard line.

In the second quarter Monroe tied the ball game up 6-all in five plays sparked by a nice 18-yard run by Neri to place the ball on the Suffolk 25. Baker carried the ball to the 9 and then passed to Sam Branscome who fell across the goal line.

Two passes from Conroy Snellings to Heffernan brought the second Fredericksburg score and Butler tossed a pass to Bland for the extra point in the third period to place Monroe in the lead which Suffolk equaled in the latter part of the fourth quarter. Fredericksburg outgained Suffolk, 11 to 4, in first downs.

Michigan Drills In Rain—Then Eats

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21. (AP).—The Michigan football team worked up an appetite by drilling two hours in rain today and then satisfied it with turkey dinner at a country club in the last full day at home of this grid season.

Tomorrow the Wolverines go to Toledo to spend the eve of the traditional battle with Ohio State Saturday at Columbus, O.

For the first time this week Capt. Forest Evashevski, Tom Harmon and Dave Nelson drilled together. All three will face the Buckeyes. Milo Sukup, veteran guard, won't play, however, because of his head injury.

Gophers Prepare For a Muddy Field

Minneapolis, Nov. 21. (AP).—Minnesota football gridders today engaged in their last hard workout before their final game of the season against Wisconsin at Madison and prepared to play in any kind of weather.

Coach Bernie Bierman ordered all types of shoes, regular, mud and tennis, included in equipment for the game as rain fell at Madison and more was predicted for Friday. Butch Levy still held down the first string right guard position and was a virtual certainty to start Saturday.

Canadian Arms Plants Hit Stride

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (AP).—Canada shortly will be making nearly every kind of gun used in the present war and already is letting contracts for 18 large merchant vessels for the British government in an extensive shipbuilding program, Supply Minister C. D. Howe said yesterday in the House of Commons.

Butler U. Harriers Sweep Holiday Run

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21 (AP).—Earl Mitchell, of Butler University defeated 63 rivals in winning the twenty-second annual Thanksgiving Day cross-country run here today. His time for the 5,000 meters was 16:09.9. Butler had five men in the first ten finishers and won the team title easily.

Elwood Cookes Win Mixed Doubles Title

Buenos Aires, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Argentine mixed doubles tennis championship was captured today by the United States newlyweds, Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., and the former Sarah Palfrey of Boston.

They put up a persistent battle to overcome their fellow countrymen, Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, and Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., 3—6, 6—2, 9—7.

In addition, Mrs. Cooke and Miss Bundy paired to beat Maria Teran and Zenora Zappa, of Argentina, 6—0, 6—3 in a semifinal match of the women's doubles. In the other bracket Jane Stanton, of Santa Monica, yeamed with Felisa Piedrola, of Argentina, to defeat Analia Obarrio Aguirre and Senora Caimi Garmendia, veteran local stars, 6—3, 5—7.

Gonzaga Gains 7-7 Tie With Petersburg

Dorsk Leads Attack For Virginians; Aerials Aid Purple

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 21.—By dint of superior passing, Gonzaga High, of Washington, today earned a 7-7 tie with the powerful Crimson Wave, of Petersburg, Va. It was the first Thanksgiving match the Wave has not won since 1934.

The first tally, made by the Petersburg eleven, came on the end of a 68-yard touchdown march. Led by Fullback Dorsk, the Wave started on their own 42 and relentlessly rolled towards the Eagles' goal. Eddie Smith through tackle picked up 15 yards to the Purple's 25. Dorsk then advanced the pigskin to the 15. On a double reverse Jimmy O'Donnell trekked to the 4-yard marker. From that position the hefty Dorsk plunged through guard for Petersburg's only touchdown. O'Donnell's placement was good.

Gonzaga's tying score came in the early minutes of the second quarter. Halfback Elmer Raba took Jimmy Smith's kick on his own 47 and brought it back to the Crimson 46. Raba then tossed a shovel pass to End Bob O'Donnell who picked up 13 yards and a first down. Again Raba's signal was called and he heaved an aerial to "Muffins" Healy good for 6 yards. Healy toted the leather through tackle to the Wave's 5-yard stripe. Held for three downs Raba threw a short lateral to Bob O'Donnel, who went over. Raba's tying placement was good.

All through the rest of the game the play seesawed back and forth. Petersburg threatened seriously near the end of the game with a barrage of passes, with Bryant doing all of the passing, but Hal Hartman, Purple back, intercepted a toss near his own goal and ran it back to the 37. The Eagles seemed then to be on the way to another touchdown when a penalty for offside stopped the threat as the game ended.

The factor that enabled the Eagles to tie a highly favored Petersburg team was their potent pass attack that led to one touchdown and almost set up another one. Though the Crimson outgained them on the ground, the Eagles were masters of the air.

Morgan Defeats Virginia State

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 21 (AP).—Morgan College's stout line beat back the best efforts of Virginia State's backfield today and the Maryland visitors took advantage of first and last period opportunities to score two touchdowns and a 12-0 victory.

State fumbled the opening kickoff on its own 28-yard line and a few plays later Givens shot a 20-yard pass to Campbell for the score. In the last quarter Brickley went off left tackle for a 10-yard touchdown jaunt.

With CONSIDINE

New York, Nov. 21.—SPORTIN' AROUND:

The question at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night is can Pete repeat?" Pete Lello, the Pete in question, stiffened Lew Jenkins in Chicago in March of 1939, when Lew was a spavined nobody, living on hominy and stewed Army blankets. Jenkins swears he was jobbed, and that the ref counted him out before he could get up off the canvas and really start fighting. But those who saw it called it a clean kayo, and some of them think he'll do the same thing tomorrow night. It promises to be a rough, tough fight, but with all punches aimed above the equator for a change.

CONSIDINE

Brooklynites will turn out loyally, and royally, to honor Ace Parker Sunday when the Dodgers meet the Cardinals, early-season conquerors of the Bears. Ace is nearing the end of his 3-year contract, signed with the Dodgers at the end of the 1937 season—when he played a few games with the Dodgers after Dan Topping got Connie Mack to assure him that it wouldn't hurt his baseball chances. Ace may go up with the Pittsburgh Pirates next spring. Frisch is high on him.

Wonder who's in line for Peckinpaugh's job as manager of Cleveland? . . . Clark Griffith says all big league owners would welcome Jim Farley into the game . . . Judge Landis' contract has another year to run, but it is likely that the owners will show their confidence in him, or their comical fear of him, by pressing a new one upon him at the meeting next month.

Jimmy Wilson used to give his Phillies pitchers a bottle of champagne every time they won a game, and out of his own pocket. . . . Jesse Jones, who has loaned $11,000,000,000, would make it $11,001,000,000 and build a super stadium in Washington, if there were some reasonable assurance that the Government in time would get its money back.

You can make a quick buck by betting that Tennessee and Boston College both have been beaten this year. Tennessee lost to U. S. C., 14-0, in the Rose Bowl, last January 1, and Clemson knocked off B. C., 6-3, in the Cotton Bowl the same day . . . the lightweight division has drawn bigger gates, over the past 50 years, than any other division except the heavyweight. Probably because of a series of fine or colorful champions, from McAuliffe down through Gans, Nelson, Leonard, Canzoneri, Ross, Ambers, Armstrong to Jenkins . . . Gym Gossip is that Col. Lem Stoopnagle's fighter, Lee Murray, tried to pull a sneak on Lee Savold, in a supposedly friendly workout the other day, and got only a lot of lumps for his ambition.

Ensign Norman Bennett's spirited new game, which he calls sportball, may gain its deserved national recognition in draft camps. It is a combination of football, soccer and basketball . . . Jack Hagerty, Georgetown coach, was applauded for the first time in three years when he rose to make his weekly talk at the District of Columbia football writers' luncheon last Monday. There was a house rule that forbids applauding a coach whose team has won the previous Saturday . . . Pro, semi-pro or amateur, no gridder we ever saw had the zeal of Dodgin' Dick Todd, of the Redskins.

During its 18-week stay in San Francisco this past summer and fall, the Ice Follies drew 400,000 customers . . . Senator Wild Bill Lyons may let the ship of state shift for itself, quit his New Deal office, and returned to the suit and cloak business after January . . . The National Collegiate Athletic Association soon will denounce the "rocker shift" of California's football team. The Cal linemen raise their rears just before the center snaps the ball . . . Jack Bromwich is playing a lot of war-fund tennis in Australia . . . The Japanese have dropped all American terms from their baseball playing. That oughta bring us to our knees!

Gamecocks, Miami To Meet Tonight

Miami, Fla., Nov. 21. (AP)—The South Carolina and Miami football teams wound up preparations today for a game here tomorrow night in which both elevens will try to salvage something from a disastrous season.

The South Carolina gamecocks planned a final workout under the lights tonight for their quest of a fourth consecutive victory over Miami. South Carolina won the three previous meetings, 6-3, 3-0 and 7-6.

Although beaten five times this season, the Gamecocks were favored to whip a shell-shocked Miami aggregation which has lost four games, the last three in a row.

Versatile Al Grygo was expected to lead a South Carolina attack that has made the Gamecocks tough even in defeat.

John Promoted To Illinois First Line

The Illini, 36 strong, will leave tomorrow morning for Iowa City. The team, which won its opener against Bradley and then lost its next six starts, will stop at Moline for a final workout.

Augusta Beats Fishburne Eleven, 26-6

Forkovitch Leads Way as Victors Roll Up Early Score

Fort Defiance, Va., Nov. 21.—With big Nick Forkovitch again leading the way, Augusta Military Academy scored their sixth win against one defeat, with a 26-to-6 victory over Fishburne Military School here today.

Scoring on the first play after they got the ball, Augusta built up a 19-to-0 lead in the first half, then outlasted a Fishburne rally in the second that made the game closer. Forkovitch, the State's leading scorer and ground gainer, tallied 14 points and gained 311 yards to run his season's totals to 140 points and 1,565 yards gained by both rushing and passing.

Bill (Scoop) Metzger, Augusta's great end who played a great game all day, took Forkovitch's pass on the first play after Augusta got the ball and in a play that covered exactly 50 yards, scored the first touchdown, Forkovitch added the next two in the second quarter on bucks of 3 and 7 yards, and little Skeeter Hodges added the last in the fourth period with a plunge from the 2. Bane scored Fishburne's touchdown in the third period on a pass from Haines Gregory, who showed as nearly Fishburne's entire offense.

Forkovitch gained 199 yards in 31 attempts during the game to average 6.4 yards per try, and completed three passes for 112 more. In all, Augusta gained 357 yards to Fishburne's 130, and made 14 first downs to the visitors' 6 their apparent sluggishness. It was Walsh's punting, as a matter of fact, which held the Raider's in check as long as they were. He averaged 47 yards from scrimmage, despite the fact one kick rolled off his foot for only a 12-yard gain.

Sonny Morrisette and Carleton Smallwood, the Trainer line-hitters, each missed a great deal of the game with damaged legs, accounting to some extent for Western's 167-32 margin in yards rushing.

West Point's Goats Win; Ill Omen For Army Eleven

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21.—As though the assignment wasn't already tough enough, Army's chances against Navy in their annual game at Philadelphia a week from Saturday suffered the additional impediment of a 7-0 victory by the Engineers over the Goats in their intramural game today.

20,000 See Magnificent Take Endurance Handicap at Bowie

Al Shelhamer Rides Lewis' 2-Year Old

Cis Marion Second After Photo Taken; Hop Skip Runs Third in Feature

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Bowie, Md., Nov. 21.—In a scuffling, driving, all-out finish—a beautiful thing to see—Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Magnificent nosed out E. K. Bryson's Cis Marion in the eighteenth running of the $7,500 added Endurance Handicap. It was a sight worthy of a near record crowd of 20,000 and was so close that judges and customers had to await the verdict of the camera. The picture showed Magnificent, the people's choice had lasted a fraction of a second long enough to take the victory. A length and a half behind the fighting pair came H. P. Metcalf's Hop Skip to be third in a field of eight contesting at a mile and 70 yards.

Magnificent had been a favorite from the first appearance of the entries yesterday. The fans kept a steady flow of cash into the windows on his chances. Although his victory was by a margin that kept many knees knocking, his backers considered the $3.80 payoff a just one.

The battle was one of horses as well as jockeys. Al Shelhamer, regular rider for Trainer Guy Bedwell was aboard Magnificent and W. L. Taylor had the mount on the long shot Cis Marion. Shelhamer had urged Magnificent to withstand several challenges and apparently believed he had the race won when Cis Marion came along under the pushing of the energetic Taylor.

Anybody's Race

Shelhamer increased the cadence of his ride when he saw Cis Marion and it is well that he did for Cis Marion was responding to Taylor's skill. Five yards from the wire it was anybody's race. Magnificent was equal to the task, however, and had the stamina to stay.

Magnificent, a son of Challenger II, added $6,550 to his earnings in the race and joined Fenelon, Legal Light, Sortie, Mad Frump and other popular horses which won the Endurance in their 2-year-old seasons. His time of 1:45 2-5 was one of the best in the history of the race.

While topped by a Thanksgiving Day crowd of two years ago, today's gathering was the largest of the fall season in Maryland. An hour before post time of the first race, the crowd was of ordinary week day proportions.

Commixion was first to show in front when Starter Jim Milton released the starting gate. Magnificent was on the inside from the No. 1 post position and Shelhamer appeared to rate his horse, as the favorite went into the first turn on the rail. The rider kept Magnificent's head in front as Commixion and Hop Skip ran with him. In the meanwhile, Cis Marion was being allowed to settle into stride.

Along the backstretch, Magnificent tried but could not shake off Commixion at this stage. Hop Skip was still in the thick of forward contention and appeared to have something in reserve. Approaching the stretch, Magnificent still held command and Hop Skip had replaced the now tiring Commixion as the No. 1 challenger. Cis Marion, however, was moving up boldly on the outside of the pack.

In the stretch, it appeared all over but the payoff as far as backers of Magnificent were concerned. Hop Skip had enough and began to weaken. But along came Cis Marion. It was at this point that Shelhamer saw he was in trouble and then the battle to the finish line was under way.

The program opened with a claim of foul. The Dixiana Farm's Saran came to the wire first in the six furlong sprint for 2-year olds, fillies. R. Sterling Clark's Rodia finished second and Apprentice E. Kaufman who rode the latter lodged an objection against the winner, maintaining Saran swerved in front of him in the stretch. The stewards listened longer than they deliberated and soon lighted the "official" sign. J. V. Stewart's Machree was third in the field of 12. The winner paid $20.90.

Double Pays $223.60

The daily double paid $223.60 to a chosen few in the banner crowd. E. E. Bennett's Delta Dan completed the transaction and paid $21.20 in his own right. The son of Sleepy Head lasted to win by a neck over Argella. Third in the field of 11 was Madison. Delta Dan was well handled by Jockey W. Eads, a recent arrival.

Jockey W. L. Taylor rode the winner of the third and fourth races. Aboard Sailor King in the third, he brought the son of Boatswain home eight lengths in front of the closest opponent, Scaramouch. Sir Alfred closed like the wind in third position. Sailor King was played as if the race had already been run and paid a mere $3.90 mutuel.

Taylor came back to win the fourth with E. K. Bryson's Clyde Tolson and had some work to do on this occasion. He finally got the Cararis gelding out to a good lead approaching the wire but he kept him to a drive to seal the victory. Early Moon and Jessie Gladys chased the winner to the wire. The race was named the Chase Me Purse and Clyde Tolson paid $7.80.

Loudoun Hunt Opens Season

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 21.—The Loudoun Hunt officially opened their fox hunting season with a meet at Big Spring this morning at 10:30. A field of 15 followed the hounds and 50 or more Thanksgiving holiday folks watched the start.

They drew toward former Gov. Westmoreland Davis' Mayfield farm and in 20 minutes started a big red fox near Mayfield. The animal gave them a fast; merry chase for 40 minutes that took the field to the bluff on the Potomac River, where he was denned. The fox was in sight of the entire field as they chased him. The field rode for another hour before coming in.

Magnificent Finishes Magnificently for His Backers at Bowie

Mrs. Graham Lewis' 2-year-old son of Challenger II, Magnificent, is shown winning the Endurance Handicap at the Prince Georges track yesterday over Cis Marion (8) and Hop Skip (7). The camera shot was taken on an angle and it appears that Cis Marion was the winner, but the official photo-finish of the race returned the Lewis colt the winner. Al Shelhamer was astride the favorite and victor in the $7,500 race

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DELTA DAN, $21.20, $9.00, $6.50; ARGELLA, $5.80, $4.40; MADISON, $6.00.

DELTA DAN set and pressed pace with DORA MAY and ARGELLA, responded when shaken up and wore down ARGELLA to hold away under pressure to end. ARGELLA was in thick of forward contention from start, took lead in midstretch, but could not resist winner. MADISON, slow to begin, saved much ground and closed with good energy along rail. DIZZY DAME was outrun early and closed with rush on outside.

Daily Double, SARAN and DELTA DAN, Paid $223.60

THIRD RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200. For all ages, maidens. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 2:48. Off 2:48. Winner, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAILOR KING, $3.90, $3.10, $2.60; SCARAMOUCH, $4.90, $3.90; SIR ALFRED, $7.90.

SAILOR KING, steadied while racing with SCARAMOUCH, opened good lead without effort and was in hand while drawing far out in closing stages. SCARAMOUCH was hard ridden while closest to pace and tired while under pressure at end. SIR ALFRED was placed from start and closed boldly. BRAVE LIGHT had some early speed. SATIATION was hard ridden. The others were never prominent.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:20. Off 3:20. Winner, E. K. Bryson's b. g. (3), by Carlaris—Edina. Trained by J. Serio, jr. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLYDE TOLSON, $7.80, $3.70, $2.90; EARLY MORN, $4.30, $3.40; JESSIE GLADYS, $3.90.

CLYDE TOLSON was sent to front, disposed of PHARO TATTLER and LIBERTY FRANC to open good lead and held away to end under strong handling. EARLY MORN moved up boldly approaching stretch and hung in final drive. JESSIE GLADYS improved position between horses, but was held safe in closing stretch. RED WRACK saved ground after being outrun early and weakened at end. NO SIR dwelt at start and closed with rush.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $7,500 added. The Endurance Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:50. Off 3:50½. Winner, Mrs. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAGNIFICENT, $3.80, $2.90, $2.40; CIS MARION, $4.90, $3.20; HOP SKIP, $4.60.

MAGNIFICENT saved ground early, withstood repeated bids of COMMIXION and HOP SKIP and barely held on long enough to stave off closing challenge of CIS MARION. The latter was allowed to settle into stride, improved position gradually on outside and moved to winner boldly under pressure at end to just miss. HOP SKIP was in thick of forward contention early, moved up menacingly in midstretch and weakened suddenly. HASTY NOTION was taken up when in close quarters leaving gate and closed with bold rush. BIG LEAGUE was well placed early and tired. COMMIXION quit.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:24. Off 4:24½. Winner, P. B. Codd's br. c. †Lost rider.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ABMERES, $10.30, $6.90, $4.60; COUNT MORSE, $9.70, $6.30; LYNER, $6.40.

ABMERES was allowed to settle into best stride while following pace, came between horses entering stretch and drew clear in final sixteenth. COUNT MORSE moved up boldly after a half, took slight lead at eighth pole, but could not resist winner. LYNER was moving into contention when he was shut off and knocked far back, recovered and closed with good courage to be going best at the end. MAECHANCE took command briefly, but tired. ABBASSIDE quit. ALUMINIO unseated rider at the start. The others were never serious factors.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:35. Off 4:35½. Winner, D. J. Sullivan's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK WATCH, $6.50, $4.30, $3.40; JUST TOURIST, $8.80, $5.90; DARBY DU, $6.60.

DARK WATCH was closer than usual in early stages, went to front while still in hand, but was forced to a drive to last. JUST TOURIST chased winner for last half, but was not good enough. DARBY DU closed with good courage. PANALONG ran well in late stages. SURE SWIFT ran evenly. The others were never prominent.

Phils May Be Given New Deal

Stockholders Move to Oust Gerry Nugent

Minority Group Reported Planning 'New Capital and New Ball Players'

Philadelphia, Nov. 21.—The Record, in a copyright story, said tonight a group of minority stockholders of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club "are mapping a drive to oust Gerry Nugent, bring in new capital, get new management and players and put the team back among the contenders."

To the report, Nugent, president of the last-place Phillies, declared:

A stockholders' meeting is scheduled for Tuesday.

Leading the dissenters, the record says, is William H. Harman, vice president of the Baldwin Locomotive Work. Among them they control 104 of the 5,000 club's shares. Nugent and his wife, who is vice president and treasurer, control a majority.

Harman was quoted by the record as saying that the club's stockholders "haven't received a dime on their investment for as long as I can remember. All I know is that it continually operates at a loss.

"I can think of wealthy men here who might buy control, but the Nugents are the stumbling block. I can't get accurate information—but I understand Gerry gets $15,000 a year, his wife $5,000, and Secretary Robert F. Irwin, $7,500.

"We want a showdown and we'll get it."

The Phillies have finished last in the National League the past two seasons and in the past 25 years have been in the first division only four times, winning their single pennant in 1915.

Recently the club sold Kirby Higbe, star right-handed pitcher, to the Brooklyn Dodgers for $100,000 and three players. Nugent said the sale was necessary to pay off debts.

Utah Takes Big Seven Title As Teams Tie

Denver, Nov. 21 (AP).—Utah University won the Mountain Big Seven Conference football title today, five days after it ended its conference campaign.

The title went to Coach Ike Armstrong's Utes for the second time in three seasons when Colorado's defending champions and Denver stood off each other in a 3-3 tie in their annual Thanksgiving Day feature.

Utah finished the league season with five victories against one defeat. Colorado and Denver must share second place with four wins, one loss and one tie each.

Both were beaten decisively by Utah earlier in the season, but Utah's surprising 7-0 loss to sixth-place Utah State last month gave both C. U. and Denver a chance to share in the championship by winning today.

Utah ended its season with seven victories against two defeats—to Utah State and Santa Clara—by beating Idaho 13 to 6 on a snow-covered gridiron today.

Wyoming finished its second successive season in last place by losing to Utah State, 16 to 0. The Cowboys haven't beaten a conference opponent since 1938.

Denver's tying field goal was kicked from the 18-yard line by Halfback Hank Walsmith with less than a minute left in the game. Fullback Ray Jenkins gave Colorado a lead with a 33-yard three-pointer early in the last period.

Colorado Mines, runnerup in the Rocky Mountain Conference, took a 28-0 spanking from Fresno, Calif., State in a West Coast junket.

Providence, Catholic U. Players Have Met Before

Special Dispatch to The Post

Providence, Nov. 21.—There will be a few old rivalries crop up and a few friendships renewed tomorrow afternoon when the Providence College Friars meet Catholic University in the concluding game of the season for both teams. Several of the P. C. players know, either as former teammates or as former members of the opposition, some of the C. U. players, and are looking forward to meeting them on the gridiron.

Take Don Cronin, for example, the Dominicans reserve center. Back in his high school days at Loyola in Baltimore, Don was captain of his team. For two years he led his mates in their annual Thanksgiving classic against Calvert Hall College, another Catholic high school in the same town. Calvert Hall was captained by Dave Gaudreau, currently playing tackle for the Cardinals. The Loyolans couldn't beat the Calverts, playing a scoreless tie one year and losing the next 13-6, but "Rebel" Cronin insists that the Friars will make up for it in their game Saturday.

Two of the New Jersey boys on the Providence squad are General Frank Franco, first-string quarterback, and Sam Iorio, second-string halfback. High school stars at Lincoln High in Jersey City, they were on the same team with Bill Griffith, C. U.'s fine reserve back. Griffin used to be on the receiving end of Sam Iorio's passes while at high school, and the Providence backfield ace is hoping that Griffin doesn't decide to intercept one of Sam's long passes just for old time's sake.

Franco and Iorio, who go together as much about the Providence College classrooms as they do on the football team, also have more than just a nodding acquaintance with Al Norris, the Flying Cardinal's stellar back. They played against him for two years in Jersey high school circles and have great respect for his ability, as well they might have, for it was Norris who held Lincoln High to a scoreless tie for one year, and then sparked his eleven to a 25-6 victory the following year.

Two other home town rivalries that might very well develop into something worth watching is the Worcester, Mass., set-up, with the brothers Juges—Bill, a guard, and Joe, a right halfback—meeting John Reidy of Catholic; and Hartford, Conn., coming to the fore with the meeting of Ray Roy of the Friars and Tim Murnane of the Cardinals.

Orioles Rally, Beat Rovers, 5-3, in Garden

St. Louis U. Barely Loses To Texas Tech

Undefeated Raiders Take 7-6 Game From Billikins

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—Texas Tech's undefeated, once-tied Red Raiders ran into surprisingly strong opposition from St. Louis University's injury-riddled team today, but managed to eke out a 7-6 victory on Roger Smith's successful conversion after a first-period touchdown.

With Tom Douglass, Glenn Lowe and Smith lugging the ball on straight ground plays, Tech marched 68 yards to a score 3½ minutes after taking the opening kickoff.

Douglass wound up the steady drive by going off left tackle from the 9-yard line for the Texans' marker. Smith booted the ball squarely between th goal posts on a plac kick for what was to prove the deciding point.

Midway in the second quarter the Billikens launched a counter attack after a short punt gave them possession of the ball on the raiders' 44-yard line.

Dick Weber started the St. Louisans' touchdown march with a 13-yard pass to Bob Osterholt, and then alternated with Dick Pfuhl in toting the ball the remaining 31 yards. Pfuhl went over for the tally standing up on a 4-yard sweep around Tech's end, but Weber's try from placement for the extra point was wide.

Auto Output Continues at 5-Million Rate

Current Assembly Seen Exceeding Retail Demand

Detroit, Nov. 21.—The high level of passenger car and truck production currently being maintained in the automobile industry's assembly plants is causing considerable speculation in trade circles.

Last week's approximately 122,000 assemblies was considerably in excess of retail demand, despite the large backlogs reported by all the leading producers, and but for the Thanksgiving Day holiday this week, the aggregate volume undoubtedly would exceed that of last week.

Expected Drop Delayed

Tade authorities have been observing for more than a fortnight that a tapering off in factory output was about due, but there has been no indication of just when the leveling off would take place. The trade has begun to speculate upon just now long the present high level can be maintained and to what heights it might be extended under the pressure of apprehension regarding the availability of materials and production machinery a few months hence.

The 121, 945 cars and trucks the assembly plants turned out last week was the highest output volume since the week ending July 3, 1937, when 122,890 units were completed. That figure, however, was far from a record mark. During the week ending May 1 of the same year, the assembly plants produced 150,485 units, according to figures compiled by Ward's Reports, Inc. production for the entire year 1937 reached 5,016,437 cars and trucks. That high mark was exceeded only by the 5,621,715 vehicles made in 1929.

5,000,000 Unit Year?

The trade authorities in considering the significance of the current high output volume are wondering whether another 5,000,000 unit year lies ahead. Several leading observers say this is wholly probable, but they question the capacity of the new car market to absorb that volume.

Even with the increased buying power expected to result from expanded employment, they say, there will be a large inventory of used cars to be liquidated along with the heavy factory output.

The blief prevails in some quarters, however, that the production division of the industry has determined to keep a certain volume ahead of actual demand and that the leveling off will not come until a very definite slackening in present new car demand appears.

Whether that is anything more than a guess is yet to be demonstrated.

Foreign Markets At A Glance

By the Associated Press

With the security and commodity markets generally closed in the United States for the Thanksgiving holiday, trading in foreign centers was mostly slow and price changes narrow:

LONDON—South African golds made some improvement early, but did not hold all gains. Rails were depressed on belief trade unions would soon demand higher wages. Gilt-edge issues came back after early softness. Most other sections of the list were neglected.

LIVERPOOL—Business was quiet. Trade-calling absorbed small offerings. March futures closed at the official maximum.

TORONTO—Uncertainties in the war situation combined with the United States holiday to hold transactions to about 150,000 shares. There was a minor pick-up in gold stocks toward the close. Base metals were mixed.

MONTREAL—Gains and losses were mostly fractional. Newsprints were higher. Metals moved both ways.

WINNIPEG—The shutdown in the United States held trading here nearly to a standstill. Prices were unchanged to a shade lower.

Railroad Awards $4,000,000 Order

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 21 (AP).—The Louisville & Nashville Railroad placed a $4,000,000 car order today with the Bessemer (Ala.) plant of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co.

The order, which brings the backlog for the plant to a new record, is for 1,600 50-ton Hopper cars, 100 end-door automobile cars and 50 70-ton Gondola cars.

Bank of England

London, Nov. 21 (AP).—The weekly condition statement of the Bank of England released today recorded an increase of £64,000 in bullion, continuing an unbroken upward curve for the past five weeks

Reserves also increased while circulation dropped off to £592,652,000, a decline of £1,397,000.

Government security holdings rose another £1,040,000, a fourth successive gain

The detailed statement follows (in thousands of pounds): Circulation 592,652 decrease 1,397; bullion 990, increase 64; reserves 38,337, increase 1,459; public deposits 22,387, increase 2,803; private deposits 163,807, decrease 856; government securities 140,848, increase 1,040; other securities 74,761, decrease 534; ratio of reserve liabilities 20.5 per cent compared with 20.0 last week. Bank rate 2 per cent.

Boston Wool

Boston, Nov. 21 (AP).—The increase in interest in wool, stimulated by the quartermaster's invitation to bid on further large quantities of wool goods, was quite broad in Boston today. Inquiries, however, were centered largely in foreign apparel wools because of the greatly restricted offerings of most grades of domestic wools. Not a great deal of new business has been transacted as a result of the pending Government order, but quotations were very firm on both domestic and foreign wools, suitable for combing.

Mrs. Bruckner's Funeral to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Ella Ford Bruckner, 65, former McKinley High School teacher, will be held at noon today at the Lee funeral home, Fourth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast. Burial will be in Fairfield, Conn.

Mrs. Bruckner suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Tuesday night while visiting the home of a sister, Mrs. Charles Haydn, 606 A Street Northeast.

Born in Falls Church, Va., the daughter of Clark and Lida Timmerman Ford, Mrs. Bruckner attended Columbian College here and Cornell University. She taught here for several years and served as organist for the United Brethren Church. Upon her marriage in 1906 she went to live at Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., where she had been living since.

Surviving are four children, Mrs. Helen Sue Fagans, Basking Ridge, N. J.; Mrs. Virginia Isecke and Mrs. Mabel Chomsland, Ridgefield Park, N. J., and Robert E. Bruckner, Vineland, N. J.; a sister, Mrs. Haydn; a brother, George W. Ford, of Arlington, Va., and seven grandchildren.

Roosevelt Denies Latest Bombsight Given to Britain

Copyright by New York Times

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 21.—President Roosevelt denied today that the principal secret bombsight of the United States had been released to Great Britain in connection with plans to make 46 giant long-range bombers available to the British as quickly as possible.

He did this through his press secretary, William D. Hassett, who said that the Norden bomb sight, with which the 300 first-line fighting planes of the United States are now equipped, is not being made available to the British and "of course remains an American secret."

"The bombers being made available to Britain are equipped with the Sperry bomb sight which, in relation to the more efficient Norden sight, is considered more or less obsolete," the President's secretary said. "The Norden sight, of course, remains an American military secret."

Plane Makers Show Rapid Expansion

Floor Space Doubled Since War Started, Chamber Reports

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, Nov. 21 (AP).—Combined floor space of leading United States aircraft, engine and propeller factories has nearly doubled since war broke out in Europe in September, 1939, and will be nearly quadrupled in 1942, the aviation news committee of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America said today.

When the war started, the plants had floor space totaling 9,123,143 square feet. The total now is 16,713,230 square feet.

Further current and planned expansion to be completed before or in 1942 will make the aggregate 33,370,822 square feet, the committee said a November survey showed.

The survey deals with 15 major manufacturers of airplanes, engines and propellers on the Eastern seaboard and in the Midwest—eight plane plants, five engine factories and two propeller factories—and six Pacific Coast plane plants.

	Sept. 1939 space	Present space	1942 space

Lockheed Aircraft Reports Backlog Of $280,025,373

Los Angeles, Nov. 21.—Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, for ten month period ended October 31, reported net sales amounting to $33,812,742, as compared with $28,264,519 for corresponding period in 1939.

Backlog of unfilled orders as of October 31 amounted to approximately $280,025,373, compared with unfilled business of $28,525,900 at the same date in 1939. New orders received by Lockheed for period January 1, 1940, to October 31, 1940, amounted to . . 267,900,064. Lockheed and its subsidiary, Vega Airplane Co., employed 17,034 workers as of October 31.

Majestic Radio Names Gates As President

Chicago, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Majestic Radio & Television Corporation announced that Howard Gates, active in the radio industry for 21 years, had been named president, succeeding Walter Glenn Scott, acting president, who resigned.

Gates formed the Gates Radio Co. in Cincinnati in 1920, and founded the radio division of the King Sewing Machine Co. at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1923. He was chief engineer for the Zenith Radio Corporation for several years and during the last four years was vice president in charge of engineering for the Detrola Radio Corporation.

Slain Woman's Nude Body Found In Md. Woods

The nude body of an unidentified woman, partially covered by pine needles, was found yesterday in a wooded section of Anne Arundel County near Jessups, Md.

Police Chief John Souers said she apparently had been slain. The discovery was made by Henry Sellear, of Jessups, who was hunting in the vicinity. His dog burrowed into the pile of pine needles and exposed the body, Sellear told police.

Souers said the woman was in her early 40's. She had gray hair. A dental plate taken from her mouth is the only clew to the woman's identity. So badly was the body decomposed that authorities were unable to determine how she was killed.

Souers estimated the woman had been dead for about four months. There is no report, he added, of a missing person in the community answering the woman's description.

The body of a woman found two months ago in a woods near Essex, Md., still has not been identified. The Essex woman had been shot through the head.

Contract Bridge

Sometimes it is dangerous to tamper with the popular "short" club bid, made on a two or three card suit frequently with a desire to play no trump or simply to keep the bidding low with a balanced hand. The West player of this hand, sent by B. R. H., won't be in a hurry to show up the short club bid again, for this attempt to tell his partner he and not his adversary held the clubs cost him 1,100 points.

The cards, with both sides vulnerable and South dealer:

	♠ 8 7 4 ♡ 6 3 2 ◇ 9 7 4 2 ♣ A Q 4
♠ K J 6 5 3 ♡ 8 ◇ 3 ♣ K J 10 9	NORTH WEST EAST	♠ 9 2 ♡ Q J 10 7 ◇ 4 ♣ J 8 6 5
	SOUTH ♠ A Q 10 ♡ A K 9 5 ◇ A K Q 10 ♣ 7 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	3 ♣	Double	3 ♡
Double	3 ♠	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

"The club bid was made in an attempt to reach three no trump," explains B. R. H., "if partner can raise clubs. The three-club overcall, to uncover psychic, resulted in an 1,100-point set. North led a small heart on the opening because of his partner's heart double."

1:15, p. m., WMAL—Latest returns of the Community Chest Drive from the Willard Hotel luncheon.

2, WMAL—"Resolved: That the Power of the Federal Government Should Be Increased." That is the proposition recommended by the National University Extension Association for use by school and university debaters this year. Maury Maverick, Mayor of San Antonio and former Texas Representative, and Paul Blanshard, New York author and attorney, speak for the affirmative in this model debate, an annual offering under the sponsorship of N. B. C. and the Extension Association. H. W. Prentis, jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Gov. Frank M. Dixon of Alabama uphold the negative.

3:15, WOL—Leopold Stokowski leads the Philadelphia Orchestra in the first of three programs: Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Bach (which he conducts in the new Walt Disney film, "Fantasia") and the Chaikovski symphony No. 4 in F minor.

7:15, WMAL—Milo Warner, national commander of the American Legion, is heard in a rebroadcast of a talk made at an executive meeting of the legion in Indianapolis.

7:30, WRC—"Suppose," says Alec Templeton, "Verdi had written 'Dinah' for inclusion in his 'Aida.' It might have sounded something like this——"

8, WJSV—Alice Faye, Betty Grable and John Payne take their "Tin Pan Alley" roles before Kate Smith's movie-conscious mike. Kate will join in on the choruses!

8:30, WRC—Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, asks many a question in the course of the week, there's no doubt of that. So tonight the Information Please grills him in an unfamiliar fashion.

9:30, WOL—"Once there were two traveling salesmen. Sorry there's no farmer's daughter," begins the ultimate flash on I Want a Divorce's offering of the night. Well, then, what the heck's Joan Blondell in the cast for?

9:30, WRC—Joan Crawford finally makes her appearance in Arch Oboler's "The Word" after many postponements because of the late political fracas. Remember?

11:05, WOL—Bob Elson promises an interview with the coach and players of the Chicago Bears. This is a transcription.

11:30, WRC—Jose Iturbi returns to his piano from his duties as conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra when that city salutes the United States Antarctic Service Expedition. Publisher Frank E. Gannett talks.

Listen!

with Glynn

(WJSV Announcer Hugh Conover pinch-hits today for Paul Glynn.)

I find no room for love in my stony heart for those people who smugly say: "So you're an announcer. Boy, what a cinch you've got." Let me make the situation clear by giving you a typical day's shift.

Out of bed at 4:30 a. m. No sun and it's cold. Dress, breakfast, and suddenly, through a slowly clearing fog, you discover it's 5:45 and you're at the studio (how you got there, you'll never know). For 2 hours there are recordings to be taken from the files, played and put back. After that, rehearsal for a show which follows, copy to be checked and written, research for a special events job in the afternoon, auditions, more programs to rehearse, conference with the production manager, station breaks, spot announcements.

By then, the fog returns but you've got that broadcast from the new school building still to be done. So all right, then you're through. But before going home you discover you can't keep that dinner date. You're scheduled to handle a civic meeting at 8 o'clock.

Sure it's a cinch if you don't mind working on Christmas morning, or getting up at 4:30 after a late show the night before.

Speaking of broadcasts, try these at 1460 on your dial tonight: Comedian Al Pearce, 7:30; Kate Smith, 8 o'clock and Johnny Presents at 9 p. m.

Post Want-Ads

Have a Daily Habit of Crashing Thru With

WHY

The classified advertisements in The Washington Post are read by people with above-average income. When Post readers see something advertised which they want they do not have to wait until pay day. They can, and do, act immediately.

WHO

Who gets results from Post want-ads? Just run your eye down the various classifications in the want-ads, and you have the answer: Apartment owners, rooming-house managers, dog breeders, used car sellers, real estate dealers, people with furniture to sell, employers, they all say, "My Post ad brought results!"

WHEN

Which is the best day to run a want-ad? It doesn't matter! Place your want-ad as soon as the need arises. Every day Post readers are interested in what you have to offer. Every day Post advertisers report results—often the first or second day their ad appeared.

ECONOMY NOTE

Post want-ads are very inexpensive to use. A one-time two-line ad is 40c . . . repeated insertions cost even less! Here's another point worth remembering: Sunday's Post offers you the lowest want-ad rate of any Washington Sunday paper! Phone NAtional 4200.

Labor Law Amendments To Be Weighed

Senate Committee Will Consider Proposals Next Week

By the Associated Press

Advocates of changes in the Wagner Labor Relations Act gained ground yesterday with an announcement by Chairman Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, that the Senate Labor Committee would consider a group of House-approved amendments next week.

The House voted early last June in favor of making 15 changes in the disputed law, but the amendments since have been gathering dust in the Senate committee.

Thomas disclosed that Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, had renewed a demand, first made in September, that the committee take up the suggested changes in the law. Taft later agreed to a delay until after the election.

Although the chairman expressed the opinion that better legislation might be obtained if the committee started with "a clean slate" in January, he said action seemed to be in order now since Congress apparently was going to continue in session indefinitely.

Some supporters were inclined to look upon this as opening the way for later Senate consideration of the amendments, a view which was not shared fully by one of their number, Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia. "If the Administration says it doesn't want them—or if it doesn't say anything at all—we probably won't have the votes on the committee to get them out," Holt told reporters.

Holt said he thought it was possible that Administration support might be given to "one or two" of the 15 changes voted by the House, particularly an amendment which would prohibit discrimination against craft unions in Labor Board decisions.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has been interested in this proposal and recently wrote members of the committee protesting against what he said was the "indefensible" position that they had taken by failing to act.

In general, the House-approved proposals would provide for divorcement of the Labor Board's administrative and judicial functions, give employers the right to invoke the board's services, permit the President to name a new three-member board and make changes in procedure.

Alien Registration Bureau Running Ahead of Schedule

600,000 Remain to Be Questioned; Director Fears Many Will Incur Penalties by Failing to Appear

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Chiefs of the Government's alien registration drive took time out this week for a little tentative boasting about the progress of their work and at the same time to tell their concern about the possibility that some aliens might not sign up by December 26.

The registration unit, already spread through three Washington buildings, including a roller skating rink, garage, and part of the Census Annex, is expecting to have 3,000,000 of the estimated 3,600,000 aliens registered by the end of this week.

According to Director Earl G. Harrison, and other officials of the section, the agency has been pushing far ahead of schedule in getting in the returns. They had 100 days to finish their assignment, and instead of averaging 36,000 registrations a day, they have averaged recently around 42,000.

3,000,000 Signed Up

While 3,000,000 have signed up, telling the Government who and where they are, and what their record is, only about 800,000 have so far been sent the receipts which prove they have registered.

This lag, officials said, has been a result of the difficulties in building up a Washington organization to handle the registration records sent through the post offices.

Within the last week, their organization has been boosted to 500 employes, working in the one-time roller skating rink at Delaware Avenue and Canal Street Southwest, and at a Georgetown garage, where all the registration returns are first received.

These employes make up two shifts, and with the addition of 150 coding experts to be hired within the next few weeks, they will make an organization prepared to handle 50,000 of the registration documents a day.

Examiners Keep Apace

The examiners are already up to that speed. Other sections are close behind, including those which number the registration returns, send out the receipts, record the returns on films for a permanent record. Just starting is the coding work and punch card operations that will permit the alien questionnaires to be translated into statistics.

The proposed statistical studies will become the starting point for a general report on the alien program which Harrison is expected to make to Congress some time next summer.

Harrison is optimistic about his project, and says that it is getting along "awfully, awfully well."

He likes to praise the cooperation community organizations have given in making the alien registration program "a friendly thing."

Biggest problem left, he said, is the task of persuading the alien who entered this country illegally to register, by giving him assurance of "humane and kindly" treatment from the Government if illegal entry has been their only crime.

"Going to Be Tough"

For those who don't accept this assurance, Harrison and his aides pointed out, the registration agency is "going to be tough." Among the penalties they can use are deportation, six-month prison sentences, fines up to $1,000. Eventually the organization intends to build up a field force of 150 inspectors to track down those who missed registering.

Despite the fact that the agency is not kidding about its intention to register all aliens, its relations with many of these individuals have come close to gaiety.

One man from San Francisco sent Harrison a personal letter early this week, thanking the agency for his registration receipt card and closing with "God Bless You."

Another, in Florida established contact with the registration headquarters by sending them a 30-page, double-spaced typewritten story of his life, apparently with the primary purpose of asking whether he could go back to New Mexico, where he liked to live.

En route to New Mexico, he kept sending post cards, reporting his progress. His writing could not be read, but the post cards were filed along with his life story.

SABLE-BLENDED MUSKRAT OR BAUM MARTEN-BLENDED MUSKRAT

our outstanding collection stresses individual styling

An informative, fact-giving article on furs in Nov. 16th "Collier's" tells us, in part: "Muskrat is an abundant American fur, inexpensive and sturdy, that has gone through the beauty mill for you and come out preening in the guise of sable or baum marten . . ." It's as though a fairy godmother used her magic wand to achieve a cinderella fur. We ask you to feel the soft silky pelts of our Muskrats, to marvel at their deeply resplendent baum marten and sable complexions, to wonder how it is possible to attain such supple drapes, such intricate styling. Most of our muskrats are finer northern skins, many blended by A. Hollander. We say with justifiable pride . . . here is an outstanding collection. For misses and women.
